THE UK'S BEST-SELLING INDEPENDENT NINTENDO MAG!

WELCOME TO N64

MAGAZINE

At 132 pages N64 Magazine is Britain's biggest and best-selling Nintendo mag; and here's why

Our correspondents in Europe, Japan and America supply us with exclusive first-hand news every month. We don't copy rumours and speculation off the Internet.

N64 Magazine is written by the most experienced Nintendo fans in the business. We know what we're talking about, so we're able to cram every page with useful information and advice.

Because we're independent from Nintendo, we can also review games as soon as they come out in Japan and America, so you know which games are worth looking forward to.

The main focus of N64 Magazine is always the N64 games you can actually buy here in the UK, however. We never pad out the magazine with huge articles about games that only the Japanese can play.

We won't give anything our 'Star Game' award until we've played it right through to the end. That way we can be sure it really is worth buying.

Because we're independent from Nintendo, we can write completely honest reviews. If a game's awful we'll say so.

Don't be fooled by feeble imitations!

A walk in the dark...

Although all Rare games are special, there's something extra special about GoldenEye. And, we're happy to report, thanks to Jes' cross-world jaunt to attend last month's E3 games show in LA, its follow-up not only surpasses GoldenEye, but just about every other game this year, next year and the year after. Perfect Dark is stunning.

Not that we ever doubted it would be exceptional. But, part of the reason it's as good as it is must come down to the fact that the development team behind it have borrowed at least six of the best ideas from N64's very own Perrrrrick Day competition. Remember how we asked for your suggestions for the game? Well, Rare seem to have incorporated a good few of them, and to devastating effect. Not that we mind, of course. Being able to put your own face into the game's multiplayer mode is superb. Click to page 46 to find out more.

It's actually a packed issue all round. As well as Ms Dark's adventures, we've got Donkey Kong 64, Jet Force Gemini, Resident Evil 2, the definitive Star Wars Episode I: Racer review, Quake 2, Armormines and a whole lot more. In fact, there's no reason to go anywhere else. Just settle back, get yourself a nice cup of cocoa and read on...

Good grief. Not only do we go to E3 and play Quake II to within an inch of its life, but Activision also send us a practically complete version of the game. And it plays fantastically well. It seems it's been well worth putting up with the constant delays because far from being a lazy conversion of the PC mega-hit, Quake II is an all-new version of the game, specific to the N64.

The levels have been designed exclusively by developers Raster Productions and they've been given a more colourful coat of paint far nicer than the drab browns and greys of the PC original. And the multiplayer? Well, it's one of the best we've ever played. Ever.

Raster appear to have spent a lot of time concentrating on Quake II's control. Rightly recognising that a game is nothing without pin-point accuracy, they've worked long and hard to deliver a 'feel' that is sharp and accurate. They've got completely to grips with the analogue, and there's absolutely none of the irksome inertia and wild swinging of the crosshair that was a problem with Turok 2.

Also, by cutting down on extraneous detail and limiting enemy animations, Raster have managed to get the game running at blinding speeds, almost completely free of slowdown. The game utilises the expansion pak but Quake II discards the jerky hi-res mode in favour of a faster, smoother playing experience. All of which has one major effect: Quake II's multiplayer is superb.

△ Woah. We found Martin staring wistfully at this picture the other day.

Fast and hectic, with four players Quake II's multiplayer proves to be one of the most intense and downright enjoyable friend-on-friend fragfests you'll ever play. And it's brutal. The Railgun might be hard to aim but if you get a direct hit you can kill an opponent outright. Other weapons include a top-notch rocket launcher, two different varieties of shotgun, a machine gun, the Chaingun (much like the original Turok's), the Hyperblaster, a grenade launcher and, best of all, the BFG. The BFG takes a couple of seconds to charge, but when fired it hurls a huge ball of green light which then spears opponents with lightning. Nice.

While Quake II's straight, blast-the-monsters, shoot-the-switches mentality is perfect for the adrenaline-rush multiplayer, it makes for a less satisfying solo game. Unfortunately there are none of the subtleties that made GoldenEye so brilliant. Still, Quake II is a sterling, first class addition to the N64's multiplayer masterclass. And, in such company as GoldenEye, Turok 2 and the upcoming Jet Force Gemini and (ooh) Perfect Dark, that's high praise indeed.

ANTICIPATION RATING

We've been listening to Jes's tales of Jet Force Gemini ever since he arrived back from E3, with a huge grin on his face, and a video secreted in his hand baggage to prove that he hadn't imagined the whole thing. Make no mistake, this game is going to be something special – it plays like a turbocharged version of Body Harvest, and it looks like nothing on earth.

The control system works well, once you've got over the fact that it's significantly different to the familiar GoldenEye/Turok way of doing things. The analogue stick is used for movement, with the Left and Right C-buttons controlling strafing, so it's possible to circle around an enemy. You can jump △ Vela, equipped with powered-up exo-suit, prepares to enter someone's scary lair.

△ Jet Force Gemini will contain an incredible 120 levels. That's BIG, and very good news.

with A, reload with B, fire with Z, aim – like GoldenEye – with R, and scroll rapidly through your weapons with Top and Bottom-C.

And what weapons they are. Make no mistake, Jet Force may look superficially cutesy, but beneath the bug-eyed exterior pumps the heart of a game that revels in wanton carnage. Do enough damage to one of the millions of insectoid aliens in the game and they'll explode in a storm of green goo. Accidentally shoot one of the flat-headed ewoks that you're charged with saving and you're treated to huge gobbets of red plasma flying in all directions. Some of the guns we were treated to in the few playable levels at E3 included a homing rocket launcher, a devastating multiple rocket launcher, a fantastic Razorwind-style frisbee (that can lock on to several enemies and decapitate them all) and a Ghostbusters-influenced plasma gun that holds spasming targets in its neon streamers until they expire. There's also a sniper pistol that, until Perfect Dark arrives, is second only to GoldenEye's.

Elsewhere, it seems that Juno, Vela and their trusty dog Lupus each have their own distinct levels to travel through – meeting up at the end of the game for the climactic final battle with evil overlord Mizar – along with individual powered-up exo-suits and vehicles (which morph from, say, a boat to a car when you hit land). In addition, other power-ups and equipment litter the game; one segment we played had Lupus flying over a bottomless canyon, via paw-mounted jet packs.

And, as if all this wasn't enough, Jet Force is graphically stunning. It's hard to do the game justice until you've seen it in action; fast, fluid, rammed to the gills with eyebrow-searing explosions and special effects and the most spectacular lighting. The icing on the cake is loads of hugely impressive cut-scenes involving gargantuan spaceships. Very special indeed.

As you can no doubt tell from our excitement, Jet Force Gemini is going to be a thing of greatness. And, as we sit here, we simply cannot wait for the end of August. It's going to be fabulous. N

TO BE CONTINUED... We'll be giving Jet Force a further playtest in the next issue. Howzat?

Up until this month, the lack of screenshots meant that 40 Winks was only a rumour. The only thing we did know was that it was a 3D platformer but, having seen the game in full, glorious action at E3 we can now tell you that it's a graphically stunning one at that.

40 Winks is being developed by Eurocom for GT Interactive – the very same folks that gave us the wondrous Duke Nukem: Zero Hour – and features a couple of kid characters called Ruff and Tumble. The game transports you into the dream-world of the two main protagonists, where the eponymous 'winks' have to be collected. Apparently, the Winks look after us when we sleep, ensuring we only have good dreams. Unfortunately, LIFESPAN ● Each of the two characters has access to abilities and areas that the other hasn't.

though, they've been kidnapped by the evil Nitekap, who aims to turn them into, um, Hoodwinks, which bring about nightmares. And it's up to our two heroes to save the day.

Ruff and Tumble can jump and roll, and have access to more moves that are unlocked as the game progresses. They even have projectile attacks: Ruff, in particular (he's a boy – Tumble is his sister) is able to fire a mightily impressive ball of lightning. They'll also be able to morph into four distinct other characters, including a robot, for extra abilities and equipment.

Much like the castle in Mario 64, or the lair in Banjo, or even, at a stretch, Zelda's Hyrule Field, 40 Winks features an elaborate menu-cum-hub system – set, naturally, inside a house in the middle of the night. When in the house, you're allowed to enter every room you come across, and within some of these rooms you'll find warp-gates to the game levels proper. It all looks very nice indeed. The camera, however – which, when we played, was devoid of manual operation – had a little trouble adjusting to small rooms (such as, fittingly, the toilet) but 40 Winks looks – and for the most part – plays like a dream. The animation in the game, too, is exemplary, with facial features especially well catered for.

Despite looking like kids' stuff, and despite the fairy-tale plot, 40 Winks seems to be following in the footsteps of the best Ninty games; it's packed to the rafters with detail and imagination and each of the two characters, in a Castlevania/Jet Force Gemini style, has access to abilities and areas that the other hasn't, necessitating a great deal of exploration and switching of characters.

So, then, will 40 Winks be a credible contender for the spot occupied by games such as Banjo? Possibly. At the moment, it certainly looks the part, but we'll reserve judgement until we get to review the game later on in the year. One thing's for sure, though: 40 Winks is head and shoulders above dross like Gex, Space Circus and the rest. And that's got to be good news.

TO BE CONTINUED... We'll be exploring every corner of 40 Wink in the coming months.

Project Dolphin casts its net!

Mario on DVD. On DVD, geddit? Mmm, yes. But, you can expect the next Mario adventure to appear on Dolphin.

● Nintendo unveil their PlayStation 2-beater! Codename: Dolphin...

One of the biggest announcements at this year's E3 videogames show in LA happened before the main event even started. On 12th May, Howard Lincoln, President of Nintendo of America, revealed the first details of Project Dolphin, Nintendo's next next generation console, which should be released at the end of 2000, at around the same time as Sony's PlayStation 2.

On that same day, halfway across the world, Nintendo of Japan premier, Hiroshi Yamauchi, confirmed that Nintendo would be teaming up with electronics giant Matsushita – known here as Panasonic – and IBM to create the most advanced home console the world has ever seen.

Codenamed Dolphin, the console is set to match and, most probably, better PlayStation 2 (see: 'And again in English' for a simpler explanation). It also spells something of a first for Nintendo, who have shoved their history of cartridge-based gaming aside in favour of dazzling DVD technology, just like PlayStation 2.

Also like PlayStation 2, Nintendo's new machine will make use of the important .18 micron chip – a wonderchip that provides lightning quick processing times. But whereas Sony and hardware partners Toshiba have yet to make the chip, IBM already mass produce it, meaning Nintendo are a few steps ahead before the battle's even begun.

Nintendo should also benefit from their plans to release Dolphin on the same day across the world and around about the same time as PlayStation 2's American launch.

In an hour long press conference, Howie Lincoln also touched upon piracy, a problem that's plagued Sony's PlayStation. Howser said Dolphin would have "enhanced counterfeit protection", and that Nintendo was in the middle of developing a super-advanced anti-piracy device, which will be incorporated into Dolphin.

The question of course is whether Nintendo can get the launch right. Or more importantly whether they can get enough games ready for launch. The Howster seemed confident, naming Rare, Left Field (the developers behind NBA Courtside), unknown Australian quantity Retro Studios and Nintendo of America's own Software Technology Group as developers who already have Dolphin kits. Expect more software giants to follow, including Konami, Acclaim and LucasArts, as well as Namco, Square and Capcom, who will be especially interested now the format has been confirmed as DVD, a much cheaper medium than cartridges.

Unfortunately, we're not going to be hearing any more about Dolphin for quite some time now; Nintendo have made it quite clear that the N64 is still their number one priority, well, at least until the end of next year, anyway. And with games like Perfect Dark, Donkey Kong 64, Jet Force Gemini and Resident Evil 2 on the horizon, it's not hard to understand why...

SHORT CUTS

ZELDA CLEANS UP
Take a look back at last month's news story on E3's Game of the Year awards, and you might have seen Zelda's TRIFORCE mooted amongst the potential winners. Well, as it turned out, Zelda cleaned up, winning six awards in all, including the prestigious Game of the Year and Console Game of the Year gongs. Shiggy Miyamoto was there to accept all six in a nice jacket and white T-Shirt (no N64 pin badge this time round, though), and was especially proud to have beaten away the challenge of the PlayStation's Metal Gear Solid. Well done, Nintendo, then.

MOUSE HUNT
Disney and Nintendo have confirmed that they will be working on a series of Mickey Mouse games for the N64 and Game Boy, with none other than Rare themselves taking on development responsibilities. A Mickey Mouse racing game will be the first to appear, supposedly some time this year (though that seems a bit optimistic), with Banjo-style 3D adventure titles to follow, pencilled in for 2000 and 2001.

Of course, the last of those dates ties in quite nicely with the release of Dolphin, but we'll have to wait for that announcement.

PLANET N64 NEWS

And again in English

A nice and simple guide explaining what all those very long words mean...

DOLPHIN HAS... a copper processor
This really isn't very complicated. Er, we think. Processors have traditionally used aluminium on their circuit boards. However, recently-enhanced engineering techniques at IBM mean Dolphin can now use copper, which basically just conducts electricity faster and therefore sends processor data around the chip faster. In simple terms, this means graphics – notably polygons – can be shifted around at lightning quick speeds. Oh, and remember the .18 micron chip? Well, the copper processor is actually part of it. And to make things a little easier, the micron chip will become known as the Gekko processor. Which IBM specialises in. Phew.

DOLPHIN HAS... DVD technology
If you wander into your local branch of Dixons, chances are you won't go far without finding a DVD player. Digital Versatile Discs are, according to the experts, the future of home entertainment. With their astonishingly huuuuge amounts of storage space – around seven times the size of a normal CD which, in itself, is around 18 times the size of your average N64 cart – DVDs look and behave in the same way as normal CDs do except for one thing: thanks to the size of them, DVDs can play movies. CDs simply aren't big enough. So, not only will you be able to play games on Dolphin, but you'll also be able to watch films.

DOLPHIN HAS... a 400MHz clock speed

Clock speed is all tied in to the Gekko processor, and basically defines how many different instructions can be sent to the processor. The higher the clock speed, the higher the number of instructions that can be whipped around the machine. The bearing this has on Dolphin games is obvious: the more impressive the clock speed, the more the games themselves can do. So, with a 400MHz clock speed, you're looking at something, without putting too fine a point on it, utterly astonishing. And, as a bonus, something that's already well ahead of PlayStation 2, which Sony have confirmed has a clock speed of 300MHz. Everything a little bit clearer now?

New GoldenEye multiplayer levels

Thought you'd seen it all in GoldenEye? Think again. If you've got an Action Replay cheat cartridge, you can play multiplayer games on two of the single player levels – Cradle and Statue. Just save the codes in your Action Replay, and select a multiplayer game as usual. While starting the game, hold Top-C to go to the Cradle, or Bottom-C to go to Statue Park. They're both a bit glitchy, but we certainly recommend Cradle for some superb sniper action.

The codes

Cradle	800572D1 0008 80025E47 0029
Statue	800572D1 0004 80024E47 0016

ACCLAIM NATION

Acclaim are 'becoming one' or something thanks to an E3 announcement that their various development studios will be changing names. Whereas before, studios like Iguana US and Iguana UK were called, er, Iguana US and Iguana UK, under the new Acclaim reshuffle, they'll be called Acclaim Studios Austin and Acclaim Studios Salt Lake City (breathe) – that's the US bit – and Acclaim Studios Teeside respectively. Probe are also the newly-monikered Acclaim Studios London. Unofficially, though, Iguana and Probe still keep their old names.

Just like we said

Anything familiar about Perfect Dark's 'new' features?

Well, we forwarded on your suggestions for Rare's follow-up to GoldenEye, and we wondered whether they'd take any of them on board. And, as it turned out, they really did.

In N64/22, we were the only magazine in the world to blow apart Perfect Dark for you, giving you a step-by-step guide to the opening DataDyne level and, more importantly, the only magazine in the world to give you the chance to have a say in the game. Three issues later in N64/25, we ran a follow-up feature packed to the rafters with your ideas for Joanna Dark's first N64 outing: what you'd like to see, what weapons, what characters, what features, the lot. And – would you believe it! – as soon as Jes ambled into the E3 show in Los Angeles this month, he played a version of the game complete with this little lot:

- N64-to-GB pak compatibility.
- Jumping.
- A create-a-player mode in multiplayer.
- Deathmatch Bots.
- In-game speech.
- Body heat, Predator-style weaponry.
- Bodies lying around for much longer after they die.

Of course, we won't be too upset, not least because we did invite those friendly funsters at Twycross to dip into your vast imagination, but a mention at the end of the game would be nice, wouldn't it? Or even at the beginning of the game. Right at the beginning preferably, before the game name comes up. Ah, now that would be a bit special, eh? Er, but unlikely.

Still, you can all afford to go round with a smile on your face. Good work, soldiers.

Jo takes to the DataDyne rooftop. Turn for more!

As part of our luscious new Newsdesk section, we'll be reviewing all the best bits and bobs we get sent to the office – and then giving you a chance to win the cream of the crop.

This month we've got a bit of a bumper crop thanks to Jes' journey to the Toys Heaven that is Los Angeles. Including some rather tasty Mario Kart shell-shooters. Onwards...

MOTORIZED MARIO KARTS

Toys R Us • $6 (approx £4) • order from www.toysrus.com

As if proof were needed that the Americans get all the best stuff, these motorised Mario Karts provided hours of across-the-desk fun.

Coming in Mario, Yoshi and Bowser form, all the karts have shells or in Yoshi's case bananas which, when the kart is set off (by dragging it back in traditional fashion), shoot out at a fair old pace. Mario's probably just about the best at this, as his shell is slightly raised, meaning you can get people in the eyes if you manage to get Mazza up to speed, but they're all top toys. See below if you want to have a go at winning them.

FOOTBALL BINOCULARS

Midway • $Free from E3

If there ever comes a time – perhaps when someone holds a gun to your head – when you are forced to watch an American Football match, chances are you wouldn't want to be without these fantastic mini binoculars. Watch in awe as the football itself splits in two and allows you to see... er, not all that much better, actually. But still. Turn them round so that you're looking through the big bits, and the binoculars make you look like a chameleon. Ahem. Yes, anyway.

POKÉBALL

Toys R Us • $10 (approx £6) • order from www.toysrus.com

This little beauty was instantly 'borrowed' by Wil, and with good reason. With ten different Pokémon available to 'catch', the Pokéball is basically a real life extension of the Pokémon games. This is how it works, then: by flipping back the plastic screen, you can dangle the ball from a length of elastic and snatch up the various creatures (whereby the screen flips back into place and contains the pokémon). This particular one – chosen by Jes in LA's Toys R Us – features Pikachu, and came complete with a tasty office challenge: could you catch Pika whole, without any of his bits getting caught in the screen? Hard with a tail like that, we can tell you. If you fancy getting in on some Pokéball action, just get on the Internet.

RUGRATS DOLLS

T•HQ • $Free from E3

Truth is, although we did get this Tommy doll free from E3, you can buy Rugrats cuddly toys in most toy shops now – even over here. Besides not actually doing anything particularly special they're top quality and have realistic hair and hard plastic eyes.

And for destructive personalities, the head isn't particularly well attached to the body. So that's nice.

READY 2 RUMBLE LIGHTSHAPE

Midway • $Free from E3

A useless bit of tat and no mistake. To accompany Midway's forthcoming Ready 2 Rumble, the Lightshape is a glow-in-the-dark sticker. Shame the glow dies after a couple of minutes.

POKÉMON TRADING CARD GAME

Toys R Us • $10 (approx. £6) • order from www.toysrus.com

A bit like Top Trumps, the Pokémon Trading Card Game is a superb addition to the ever-expanding Pokémon universe. Things can actually get pretty complicated, so this starter set is ideal to get you used to the rigours of counters, health points and energy spheres. The basic idea is the same but the approach is slightly different, with each player having a set number of cards and trying their darnedest to outcollect their opponent. The best bit, though, is the additional card sets on sale with even more monsters. So, once you've got a bit of extra cash, you can build up your collection of Pokémon and get trading. A vital purchase, this.

WIN! YOUR OWN MARIO KART CHARACTERS

Yup, from now on, every month we're going to give you the chance to win one of the best pieces of new goodie we review. This month? Those fabulous Mario Kart toys. To stand a chance of winning, all you have to do is answer this?

What is Bowser's name in Japan?

HOWARD'S AWAY

Nintendo of America's Chairman, Howard Lincoln, has announced he will be standing down from his position in February 2000. He will, however, remain on the board of Nintendo and the Ninty-owned Rare. Most surprisingly the vacant post won't be filled, but kind of papered over with ■ mixture of key Nintendo of America big cheeses like President Minoru Arakawa and head salesman Peter Main. Next year, the loony-eyed Japanese Chairman Hiroshi Yamauchi is also standing down, so expect some major changes at Nintendo in the next year or so.

RENTISH TOWN

Blockbuster stores have come up with ■ nifty idea to save N64 gamers ■ pretty penny or two. Basically, by selecting an N64 game of your choice to rent, you can come back the next week and buy the same game at ■ discount price, while at the same time getting your original rental fee back. Perfect for games like GoldenEye and Zelda which, with all the will in the world, you're not going to complete in a couple of days. So, if you want to know where your local Blockbuster is, just give them ■ call on 01895 258866. Not ■ bad idea, that, is it?

FANZINE FARM

What's that? Oh, fanzines, you say? Bring 'em on...

NGT

There's nothing more pleasant than a colour fanzine, and the third issue of NGT comes splashed with more red and blue than Jed's face after a Saturday night out on the town.

But, to be fair, it's not a bad read, either. With an interesting little feature titled 'What's Dat Den?' giving an insight into the lesser known names in the N64 universe (including beauties like Beetle Adventure Racing and, erm, Mike Piazza's Strikezone) and a GoldenEye and Turok 2 comparison (where Turok 2 receives quite a harsh shoeing; something that old Phil wasn't too happy about, we can tell you), there was certainly plenty to nuzzle into. Rounded off with a pleasant variety of reviews and a general all-round happiness and you've got a consistently good fanzine. Which we'd heartily recommend here at The Farm.

■ Interested in getting hold of a copy? Well, it's £1.50 from Chris Butterworth, NGT, 15 Spinneyfields, Wildwood, Stafford, ST17 4RR.

RETROWORLD with Jason Moore

A trip back to the days when Penny Racers were all the rage...

SALAMANDER Konami 1986/3Mbits

Do you remember R-Type? It was a favourite of the gaming press for 13 years or so and if the name is familiar, you'll probably also recall Konami's even older Gradius series (the first game to introduce the concept of picking up more power-ups to upgrade your ship) known to us in the UK as Nemesis. Salamander was the sequel to Nemesis.

Like R-Type, Salamander had a steady difficulty curve; an easy wave of aliens at the start allowed you to gain power-ups which appeared in a horizontal list on the screen and could be cashed in at any time. Many of the weapons, such as the missiles, could be selected more than once which allowed for some really powerful hits.

The well thought out levels gave you interactive scenery to dodge or shoot your way through and early ones took on an organic look, with strange bacteria growing at the edges of the screen intent on blocking your path.

Salamander also had a two-player option which not only provided vital power back-up but also meant friends could challenge each other's high scores; we're fairly sure they just ended up fighting over who got the power-ups, though.

GRADIUS 2 Konami 1988/3Mbits

Gradius 2 was the sequel to Salamander and, fortunately, Konami didn't lose any of the original's brilliant gameplay. In fact, it appears that they threw all the resources available to them at what could arguably be seen as an R-Type beater.

The game differed from its predecessor in that Gradius 2 allowed you to lay out your weapons menu according to your gaming strategy; depending on whether you considered missiles to be more important than smart bombs for instance.

After the early waves of aliens were beaten it soon became clear that there was more to this game than first met the eye. There was a section where you could scroll up or down, as well as across and this made room for some devastating boss creatures and obstacles: huge planets spewing screens full of fire or alien motherships showering you with legions of smaller ships.

Add to this a two-player mode for some friend-testing fun and arcade perfect sound and you've got by far the best shoot-'em-up to ever appear on the Famicom.

ROCKMAN Capcom

Capcom may be most famous for Street Fighter and Resident Evil now but they were once far more diverse, releasing all sorts of games: Rockman was a cross between a platformer and a shoot-'em-up and probably far better known to everyone as Mega Man.

46%

At the start you had to select which level you wanted and then you were given a score total to try and match. But Rockman was tough, if not close to impossible. As each enemy came onto the screen it had to be shot immediately; if you missed, they'd simply swoop down and attack, bringing plenty more enemies with them.

In addition to this there were various types of gun turrets and hidden missile installations firing down at 512Mbit, then, eh?

Huge, isn't it? Capcom need a cart that big to fit all the movie sequences and pre-rendered backgrounds in.

Won't it cost a lot of money, though?
Theoretically, yes, although Nintendo have hinted that they won't go above the £50 price point. Which is just as well, as the days of £60 and above games are long gone.

And how many characters are there in the game?
Two – Leon Kennedy and Claire Redfield. Each takes a slightly different route through the game, with different objects, equipment, and puzzles.

Anything else?
There are also two secret characters – 4th Survivor (a huge, trench-coated character) and, um, Tofu, who is a block of tofu.

Resident Evil 2

Capcom's zombie fest finally arrives on the N64. Gulp.

Resident Evil on the N64, eh? That's one of the best bits of news we've had all year. And, having played a pretty advanced version of the game at E3, we can tell you that it's shaping up to be the definitive Resi anywhere.

Of course, our N64 scarefest is actually a conversion of Resident Evil 2 with a bucket of shiny extras thrown in. Such as the randomiser, which scatters objects in different places; hidden details about the whole of the Resident Evil saga to fill you in on the plot of the series; and hidden costumes and characters. But most impressive is how Capcom, by using a Zelda-beating 512Mbit cart (that's twice the size of Shigsy's masterpiece!), have managed to squeeze all the FMV into the game and, obviously, do away with loading times, which were especially tedious on the PSX and PC when you opened a door and were treated to a s-l-o-o-o-w animation of said entrance opening.

Graphically, the game is beautiful, running in hi-res thanks to the expansion pak. True analogue control is a bonus, too, allowing you to run without fiddly button-pressing, even though the same irksome, rotational system remains. Capcom certainly seem to be doing their best to deliver a first-class conversion, and the projected November release date can't come soon enough.

Hybrid Heaven

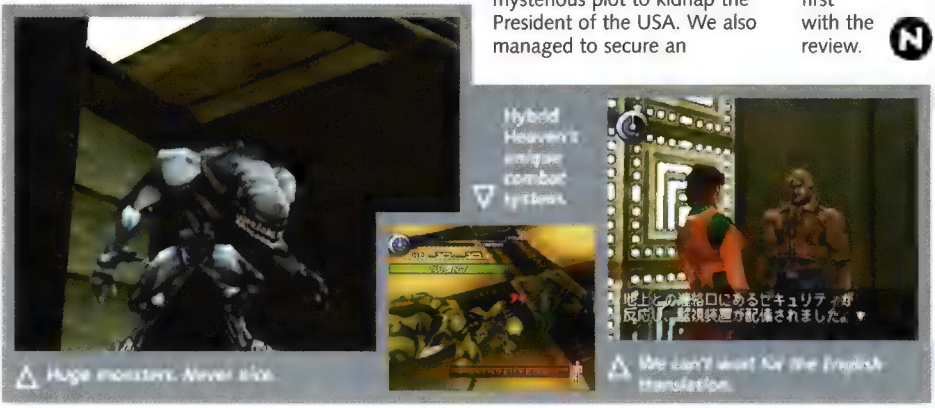

Konami's killer game looks better than ever.

Konami's gritty science fiction action/adventure/RPG is coming along in leaps and bounds. It's now expansion pak compatible, meaning that the game can run in high resolution, which is very nice indeed.

Elsewhere, we've uncovered more snippets of the game's twisty-turny brain-mangling plot via some previously unseen cut scenes - including Diaz/Slader's girlfriend waiting beneath a huge Christmas tree for her body-swapping beau, and more explanations of the mysterious plot to kidnap the President of the USA. We also managed to secure an

Q and A

How's the game's camera shaping up? It was a bit iffy before, wasn't it?

It was, yes, but Konami appear to have been working hard on sorting it out. It's now actually a bit better to navigate in enclosed spaces, and a quick tap of Top-C centres the camera behind you, Zelda-style.

Any chance of Konami doing Metal Gear Solid for the N64?

Nope, sorry. They've just announced that it won't happen. Although Castlevania 2 (or Special Edition, as it's going to be called) will be out later on in the year. It wasn't at E3, though, unfortunately.

Mario Golf

Multiplayer golfing madness for Mario and friends.

Nintendo have got a fantastic slogan for this in Japan: "For all players hoping to touch the true entertainment." It doesn't get much better than that, and by the time you read this, players in Japan will already be experiencing the True Entertainment of Mario Golf.

A quick playtest of the pre-release version confirmed the game's huge potential as a feast of multiplayer Mario fun. Four players can compete to hack their way around a course as quickly as possible, in one of several battle modes. It isn't exactly Mario Kart, but it's certainly an unusual kind of competition.

Mario Golf is incredibly simple to play, at least compared to horrible PC golf sims. Pretty much anyone can complete one of the six courses with a reasonable score, but the realistic physics used to model the game environment means that there are plenty of opportunities for clever players to put spin and swerve on the ball, and score the occasional hole in one. The better your score, the more secret characters you can unlock, from Baby Mario to the fat evil Wario. Princess Toadstool is our favourite so far, thanks to her pleasingly revealing golf attire. Review next month. N

So who's behind it, then?

A developer called Camelot, also responsible for the cutesy hack-'em-up Hot Shots Golf on the PlayStation, one of the few half decent golf games ever made.

Any unique features?

Loads of them! Apart from the multiplayer battle-race mode, there's something called 'ring shot' which, unfortunately wasn't playable in the version we got our hands on.

Reviewed next month?

Hopefully, assuming our agent in Japan can elbow his way to the front of the queue to grab a copy of the game. Import copies might be hard to come by.

Q and A

- How many levels?
50 in all, including all of the original PC ones.
- Are there any new units to use?
No, you just get the PC ones modelled in snazzy 3D.
- Any new teams?
The story is the same as the original game, so it's a big 'hello again' to the Global Defence Initiative and the Brotherhood of Nod.
- Is there any point in buying this if I've already played the PC version?
Well, the differences are largely cosmetic. There's a handful of exclusive N64 levels to play around with, but basically it's identical.

So who exactly is this aimed at?
The millions of N64 owners who haven't already experienced the PC version and its sequels and add-ons. There are at least five in the N64 office, and who knows how many elsewhere. PC owners can make do with Tiberian Sun, if it ever sees the light of day.

Command & Conquer

PC strategy classic finally makes it to the N64...

If you've got a PC, or if you know anyone who has, then you'll almost certainly have heard of the legendary Command & Conquer. It's one of the best selling and most highly regarded PC games ever made, and at long last it's on its way to the N64.

In fact, the version we'll be getting contains a number of rather nice enhancements, particularly in the visual department. The original game used 2D sprites and landscapes, but the N64 version has a smooth and fast 3D environment, which looks far better. It also supports the expansion pak for improved resolution.

At heart, of course, it's still the same game. The object is to conquer the enemy forces by commanding your own troops – hence the clever name. You start each level with a relatively small army of soldiers and vehicles, so you have to increase your strength before you can mount an assault on the bad guys (or good guys, depending on which side you choose). Mining the mineral Tiberium provides you with the cash to build new units and develop new technologies, but all the time you're sitting tight, the enemy could be about to mount an attack – you never know because of the impenetrable 'fog of war' that shrouds the edges of the battlefield, limiting your vision.

It's great stuff, and the design team have thought carefully about how to make the best use of the N64 controller – the C-buttons can be assigned to different units, and Z brings up an instant menu. Consequently we'll be seeing perhaps the best C&C to date. At the moment it's only a one-player game, but there's a chance that a two-player mode may make it into the final version. Z

NEW PICS NEW PICS NEW PICS NEW PICS NEW PICS NEW PICS NEW PICS

EPGA Golf

Actua Golf with a different name, it's time to tee off...

Actually, this is going to be the N64's third serious golf game. The first two, Glory of St. Andrews and Waialae Country Club were utterly abysmal, so we can safely say that EPGA Golf will shoot to the top of the N64 golfing chart.

The game is an update of the old Actua Golf series, using a brand new engine and all the current European PGA players. The likes of Faldo, Montgomerie, Westwood and Els are all present and correct, although Tiger Woods is sadly just too famous to make an appearance. There are even several past greats such as Tony Jacklin included, to add a little spice to the proceedings.

There are six courses to admire, all modelled authentically in 3D. Ireland's K-Club, the venue for the 2005 Ryder Cup (!) is among them, which is, you know, nice. You can play them individually, or you can opt to take a new professional on a full tour, winning money and getting invited to big money tournaments and stuff. Sounds like top entertainment for golfies.

Q and A

Does it play like other golf games?

Naturally. Press a button to start the swing meter, press again to set the power, and again to set the direction.

Any extras?

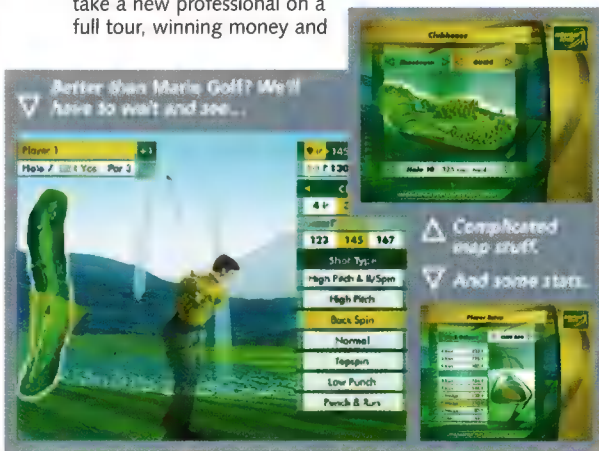

There's a driving range, which sounds pretty cool. You don't have to worry about getting the ball in the hole – just whack it as far as you can. There's also Island Golf and the PGA Challenge Tour.

But will it be better than Mario Golf?

It probably won't be as much fun, but then it's a whole different ball game. Serious golf – you either love it or loathe it.

Starcraft

Another PC conversion – but it's great!

StarCraft is a kind of Command & Conquer in space. You get a choice of three species – standard Terrans, psychic Protoss, or evil Zerg – and you have to batter your way through more than 50 missions, each of which is slightly different depending on which race you play as.

Control works in almost exactly the same way as C&C, with units assigned to the C-buttons and the analogue used as a virtual mouse. StarCraft isn't as visually accomplished though, since its plain 2D graphics suffer in comparison with the PC original. Still, it plays rather well despite the dodgy graphics, and the addition of a co-operative mode is great news.

Hopefully the programmers will be able to tidy up the graphics before the game's release in September, although sprites and bitmaps wouldn't benefit from the use of the expansion pak anyway. We'll just have to wait and see.

The Zergs. Horrible Alien-style things.

How's it different to C&C?

Erm... Well... That's a tough one. Can we get back to you?

Are there any N64 exclusive missions?

The two-player mode features specially designed levels, and the graphics have been redesigned throughout. The 50+ main missions are from the PC original and its expansion set.

What's the expansion pak used for, then?

Intriguingly, it's used to boost the power of the N64 to allow two players to play the normal missions in a co-operative mode.

Different to C&C? It's set in space. That's it.

Q and A

Wow – a track editor. That's really good news.

Yes, it is. Imagine it – you'll be able to create a track full of all your favourite bits, save it to a memory pak, take it around a friend's house and then they could play on it. The possibilities are tremendous.

And what are the regular tracks like?

They're all absolutely packed with detail. There are plenty of objects lying around which can be knocked over and moved, which means that you'll have lots of obstructions to contend with on later laps, and that you can, of course, obstruct your opponents.

And the handling of the cars?

Coming along very nicely indeed – they actually feel like radio controlled cars, with just the right amount of powerslide and lightweight cornering.

So what's the idea behind Earthworm Jim 3, then?

Weeeeell, Jim, obviously, has been struck on the head by a cow, and, whilst comatose, is stuck in his own brain. In order to maintain his sanity, he has to venture to the different parts of his mind – fear, physical, fantasy, that kind of thing – and clear out the deranged beasts that he finds there.

Sounds just a little odd.

Oddness is one thing you can guarantee from an Earthworm Jim game. It seems as if Vis are trying to outdo Jim's original creator – Dave Perry – in terms of weirdness. And from what we've seen so far it looks like they're succeeding.

gardens. A bit like Micro Machines, then, but far, far better.

The best news, though, is that the game will come with a complete track editor, allowing you to create your own courses exactly as you like them. It's a brilliant innovation and something that no-one has managed before on the N64. Couple this with the four-player mode and the future looks very bright indeed for this game of little automobiles.

The worm has (re)turned...

Well, we haven't seen this in quite a while. The power-suited annelid has recently found a new home at publishers Rockstar, who are currently working on Monster Truck Madness and the as-yet unseen GTA 64.

Jim's latest adventure is actually looking pretty darn sweet since we last saw him, some time ago. Developers Vis are plainly taking their time in order to get the game as good as it can be – and we were pleasantly surprised. The graphics are pleasingly chunky and detailed, animation is superb, and there's plenty of top 3D platforming action, involving all of Jim's signature moves (his raygun now fires like an RC-P90, which is great). Plus, of course, there's a sackful of the surreal humour we've come to expect from Jim and his games.

Mini Racers

It's not quite what we expected...

It has to be said, there's not much in the way of handling. How very disappointing.

Ahem. After all the months of rumour and chinese whispers, Mini Racers finally made an appearance at E3. And, we're afraid to say, it wasn't the Gran Turismo beater many were expecting. It wasn't even a Penny Racers beater.

Well, maybe that's a bit harsh. It seems that those people who were predicting an update of the NES RC Pro Am were half-right, as Mini Racers features small radio-controlled cars haring it around simple tracks. Could be fun, yes? Well, it was a bit of a disappointment, actually. Most of the time, the camera was stuck in one fixed position, making driving incredibly tricky due to the isometric view. Even when the camera was free-roaming, it was far too close to be of much use. And it wasn't exactly the fastest game we've seen either. Hopefully time will prove us wrong.

Didn't look too good, does it? It's like Mario Kart. But not as good.

Q and A

So, it wasn't that good, then?

Well, it's too early to tell, really. But it did seem that the only thing Mini Racers required of you was the ability to drive round and round in endless circles. There's precious little skill involved apart from avoiding the walls.

So was there actually anything good about it?

The four-player mode was entertaining – and there's a tag-team option, too, which was quite good. But, and we hope we're not making a Snowboard Kids-style preview blunder here, there just wasn't much apparent that made the game look great.

Suppose we'll just have to wait and see, then, will we?

It looks that way. We're keeping our fingers crossed.

Q and A

● Didn't Nintendo have a 'fiddle' with Winback?

Yes. They liked the look of it, so they stepped in to give it the benefit of their expertise. It's paid off, too: they've managed to squeeze in a four-player deathmatch, rather than the previous two-player affair, and they've also tweaked the controls to make it as smooth and responsive as possible.

● So it's good, then?

Absolutely. Despite looking a bit primitive, graphically, there's a wealth of ideas in the game that point towards it being the N64's Metal Gear Solid. With more action and bigger guns, naturally. One to watch.

● Automobili Lamborghini wasn't very good, was it?

Nope. It looked nice, though, and even though Titus are re-using that game's engine for Roadsters, it seems that they're packing in as much as they can and, more importantly, putting right everything that was wrong with Lamborghini.

● And you can bet in Roadsters?

Yes. Usually, you'll be betting on yourself, but you can, if you so desire, actually bet on other racers in the hope that they'll win. You'll have to throw the race, mind, but that's skulduggery for you.

● Too right. Uh-huh.

Winback

Could Koei's stealth-'em-up be as good as Perfect Dark?

It's always nice to be surprised, unless it's by a tropical disease. And Koei's Winback proved to be one of the nicest surprises at E3. It may look like a typical third-party game (some fogging, a little drab) but the Titus in good game shocker?

Roadsters

Having learnt their lesson with the lacklustre – and ridiculously named – Automobili Lamborghini, French publishers Titus are putting their all into Roadsters.

With 30 cars, eight drivers, 10 tracks and changing weather, they're certainly making a concerted effort to go head-to-head with World Driver.

A four-player championship, engine tuning and the ability to bet on yourself (and other cars, if you want to be sly) to raise cash, are all features that won't harm the game's chances either.

The handling, at the moment, is wildly oversensitive, but Titus promise that they're sorting it out. Which is nice, as this could be very good indeed.

Q and A

Do you think we've finally got a great racing game, then?

Yes. It's got the same emphasis on pinpoint handling that Top Gear Rally had (it's being developed by Boss Studios, who developed that), plus everything else you could ask for: great track design, well-balanced game progression, vicious CPU opponents, loads of cars...

Were there any other racing games at E3 for the N64?

Plenty, actually. Kemco have Top Gear Hyperbike, which was promising but needs a lot of work, and Top Gear Rally 2, which was also very early, but comes with a track editor. Ridge Racer was also at the show, but only on video, unfortunately, so we can't tell you much about it. Looks nice, though.

But World Driver Championship looked the best?

Yes. Ridge Racer, though, with all the fuss going on about Type 4 on the PlayStation, is probably the game most people wanted to see (it's going to have all-new cars and tracks, and a four-player mode), but World Driver is out in a couple of months and looks superb.

World Driver Championship

The racing game we're all waiting for.

Let's go over this just one more time; the N64 is criminally short of truly great racing games. We've had some good efforts, such as Top Gear Rally and V-Rally (despite the awful pop-up), but for the most part, it's the PlayStation that's had the lion's share of four-wheeled fun and frolics.

But, hopefully, not for much longer. From what we've seen, World Driver Championship could well be the game that earns the coveted – and much bandied-about – moniker of the N64's Gran Turismo.

This claim is reflected everywhere in the game – but most apparently in the handling. Seeing as the game features touring cars – much like TOCA and its sequel on the PC and PlayStation – the handling is a delicate thing. Oversteer and you'll go into a catastrophic spin.

Like Top Gear Rally before it, World Driver is a game that rewards practice tenfold. And, putting emphasis on your career through the championship circuit, it's a game that gets much, much faster the further you get through it.

Elsewhere, there are 30 cars to uncover, 10 different tracks that feature three distinctly disparate routes through each of them, a two-player mode and a letterboxed hi-res mode that doesn't require the expansion pak. Oh, and it all looks rather lovely, too. We'll be bringing you all the information that we can over the next couple of months, because World Driver Championship could be the racing game we're all waiting for. Here's hoping.

Gauntlet Legends

Arcade classic sees N64 conversion.

A tarian's coin-op conversion, Gauntlet Legends, is coming along surprisingly well, with the hi-res backgrounds and masses of enemies from the arcade version looking impressive on the N64.

The game uses the expansion pak to increase the screen resolution and allow more graphical detail, but even without it, it's smooth and playable.

A 3D update of the original Gauntlet - which went down a storm in arcades and on home systems during the mid to late 1980s - the aim is to fight your way through a series of mazes, with up to three friends helping you out.

Gauntlet Legends doesn't have as many levels as the original, but it's a far more varied game. You can train up and save your character, from the choice of four on offer, and join in with a friend's party on a different level.

With any luck the final version will have a few more N64-specific features to increase longevity.

Q and A

So is it arcade perfect?

Well, not quite. Even with the aid of the expansion pak, Gauntlet Legends runs at a lower resolution than the coin-op. But it's not that far off. Check out these arcade screens to see how it compares, and remember that the N64 version isn't quite finished.

Q and A

How many characters are there in Mayhem then?

There are more than 60 in the finished cartridge and each of them has their own signature move. In fact there are at least 600 motion captures in all.

That works out at...

Ten moves per rasser. Which doesn't sound that great, but many of the basic moves will be shared by all the characters, leaving more individual specials to play with.

Yay.

Come on. Mayhem is from Electronic Arts, so it's going to be the FIFA of grapple sims. If you can't get excited about that then you obviously don't like wrestling.

Or Americans.

Yes, them too.

WCW Mayhem

Men in tights line up to get sweaty again.

It used to be T•HQ's property, but the WCW licence is now in the hands of sports powerhouse EA. Prepare for a rasslin' onslaught.

WCW Mayhem is the first of many forthcoming WCW games, and if you've played one of the N64's other wrestling titles before then you'll know exactly what to expect - chunky characters, zany announcers, and plenty of authentic fight night atmosphere. Mayhem pitches its gameplay halfway between the accessibility of WWF Warzone and the depth of the WCW/NWO games.

There are 15 WCW 'sets', 12 different 'pay-per-view' bonus arenas, and fights can spill out into the car park or locker room, but the best bit has to be the player creation mode. It's totally ripped off from Acclaim's WWF series, but as a special bonus the announcers will actually speak the name of your creation. We haven't heard how well it works yet, but it opens up all sorts of possibilities for amusing naming.

Down he goes. Feet the ground blunder!

So, come on, then, what's changed?

If we're being honest, not an awful lot. Frame rates have been dabbled with, enabling the cars to take corners and multi-car straights without any of the first game's sliiiight slowdown. And the camera angles have been twiddled with to provide optimum playing comfort.

That's it?

Er, no, not quite. The teams have been updated, and the movers and shakers (read: Frenzen from Williams to Jordan, Ralf Schumacher from Jordan to Williams, Villeneuve from Williams to BAR) have been suitably placed. But the actual game itself feels a little... lacking as far as new stuff goes. It's just as impressive but actually not that different.

And no expansion pak in sight...

Surprisingly, no. You'd think developers Video System would try to make use of the extra 4Mb. But, no. Shame.

at E3, it didn't really seem all that different. Whereas games like ISS have gone that extra mile every single year, F1 WGP II doesn't appear to have had quite the same sort of effort lavished upon it. Minor tweakage and major reshufflings in the licence department are just about as far as this sequel's gone to differentiate itself from the last outing.

Last year's version featured an enviable marriage of pinpoint handling and stunning realism, and whilst this is still in place, you can't help but wish for something a little more. We won't be able to give you the full lowdown until F1 WGP II comes in for review around July, but from the E3 show version, it was obvious it might not quite have the same impact as its predecessor. Armorines

More big guns in Acclaim's huge insect simulator.

This could be very big indeed. At E3 we finally got to play an early version of Acclaim's next blockbuster. Armorines uses the Turok 2 engine and while, at the moment, it seems fairly similar to that game, we were told that the engine will be tweaked and improved so that it will appear completely different.

Everything else about the game, though, points to a fantastic bug-filled goforest. Whilst the version we played only had a couple of weapons available, the bugs themselves are already in an advanced state of creepiness. Scuttling around like house-sized insects, they're a frightening sight; in one section it was actually possible to blast the exo-skeletal face from the Queen bug to reveal a hideous insectoid skull. Top stuff.

The much-trumpeted on-rails section also looks promising. Placing you as the nose gunner in a military helicopter, you're given a Turok-style chain gun to mow down hordes of enemies. Developers Acclaim London (formerly Probe) are currently speeding these sections up to adrenaline-pumping levels. Throw in a four-player deathmatch and two-player co-operative modes and it's plain to see that Armorines is going to bring all our Starship Trooper fantasies to life come winter.

Q and A

Are there lots of different bugs?
Oh yes. Each of the games five environments features a hive of bugs specially adapted to that ecosystem. The jungle level will feature bugs that have adapted to the hot, wet conditions, and industrial bugs will be adept at urban combat. They'll look different, too, depending on the world conditions.

How many are there?
Each level contains a hive of bugs. There'll be a big, bad queen, and further down the hierarchy there'll be soldier bugs, brain bugs and other varieties that fulfil various unpleasant roles.

Will there be Turok-style weaponry?
Yup. Although there were only two weapons available at E3 – a plasma gun and a rocket launcher – many more are being worked on. As a bonus, each weapon morphs from the arms of the Armorines' body armour.

SHADOWMAN

Hello, and welcome to the second instalment of our monthly Shadowman diary. All the latest news and pictures on Acclaim's latest blockbuster are here, via exclusive contact with the gentlemen at Iguana UK. This month, Mr Guy Miller, the dashing Creative Director on Shadowman, furnishes us with a fascinating insight into his professional life throughout May. Most enlightening, we're sure you'll agree.

And within the next month or two, we'll be bringing you the world's first, frightfully exclusive review of the game we described as "Zelda's Evil Twin". It's going to be quite utterly wonderful.

On a different note, Mr Scragmore, our chief printer, has been hospitalised for reasons unknown. It's terribly sad, especially as Mr Nurple, our medical correspondent, said he seemed fine when he caught Scragmore rifling through his personal effects, mere moments before the accident. Most odd.

Anyway, we'll have more exclusive words and pictures relating to Shadowman next month. Enjoy!

Shadowman, Shadowman, Shadowman... For the past two and a half years my entire life has been dedicated to a voodoo god. I dream of duppies and zombies and Deadside. △ Inside the London tube station. Terrifying.

△ Shadowman destroys another enemy in an explosion of fire and guts. It's that kind of game.

Going Underground

Jack the Ripper, as Guy has already explained, is one of The Five, a clutch of undead serial killers bent on infiltrating Liveside to pave the way for Legion's evil plans. The Ripper's hideout is based in the London Underground, the plans for which were taken directly from Down Street, a disused – and real – subway station that Winston Churchill actually used as a base of operations during World War II. Great stuff!

Also, since last month, we've heard that Shadowman does, indeed, use a Zelda-style combat lock-on, called the Circle Strafe. Which is brilliant news. Can't wait to see the finished game.

△ Somehow, we don't think that Shadowman's going to take that train.

tomorrow, and then we'll all try to kill the beast to further tweak its AI. This process will take several weeks of continuous play and constant honing to make the experience as incredible as possible.

There are seven 'boss' characters in the game – five serial killers and two others. The serial killers each have uniquely unpleasant methods of attack. For example, Jack the Ripper, who has his lair in a London Underground station, can clamber across ceilings like a large and loathsome spider, and then drop down on you with his knife when you least expect him. Usually somewhere dark and dank.

And then there's Milton Pike, a crazed Vietnam vet and part-time cannibal; Avery Marx, who fashions furniture from body parts; Marco Cruz and Dr Victor Batrachian – and the less said about Doctor Death, the better. I don't want you having nightmares, at least, not until you play the game... Z

GAME BOY GALLERY

They're here and they're queer.

Welcome to Planet Game Boy

Phew! This has been a frantic month for the magazine as a whole, so we've had to keep Planet

Game Boy squished into eight pages for the time being. No matter though, because we've got two five-star games right here, including our first import review (remember, you can play any import GB game on your UK machine). Pokémon Pinball is just so stormingly good that we couldn't wait until whenever Nintendo deign to release it over here, and Super Mario Bros Deluxe is the latest piece of 8-bit Shigsy magic. Both are simply unmissable.

Elsewhere, the GB is expanding into new areas – as we predicted, in the case of the Perfect Dark link. Incredibly, there's another Game Boy on the way! Nintendo didn't have anything to show at E3, but it seems as if Project Dolphin won't be the only new console next year, Super Game Boy Color is what we'll call the new baby, at least until Nintendo come up with a proper name for it (by the way, if anyone in Kyoto is reading this, feel free to follow Rare's example). The SGBC will have a larger screen, using the same TFT technology as the current model, a much larger colour palette, more buttons, more link-up possibilities, and a 16-bit processor, giving it a SNES-like performance. Or better, hopefully. It'll be compatible with older GB games too.

As soon as there are any further developments, here's where you'll read about them first. No mess, no fuss, just quality GB stuff. Have fun.

REVIEW

Five Star Scoring

A simply fantastic game, and an essential purchase.

Well worth a look, this is an excellent title.

Some problems, but almost certainly good fun.

Flawed, but not worth bothering with.

Utterly unplayable. Avoid like the plague.

Pokémon Pinball

From: Nintendo Price: ¥3200 (£20) Save: No Link-up: No Colour: Yes Out: Now on import

It's not often we review import GB games here at Planet Game Boy, but with Nintendo's new Pokémon spin-off, we just had to make an exception. See, despite only having two tables, Pokémon Pinball is absolutely t'rific. And, thanks to the beauty of the universally compatible Game Boy, you can easily play a copy of this colour-only game on your tiny handheld pal.

The forest area is where you'll find the most points.

The Red table is a simple enough start to the game; a minimal amount of 'mushrooms' (those bumpers that send the built-in rumble pak crazy), and some easy-to-get-to points means it won't keep you going forever. Blue, meanwhile, is far trickier, mixing and matching a host of on-table hazards, but rewarding you with some huuuuuge point scores as well.

Where the game really triumphs, though, is in its host of little extras. Catch a monster and you can make it evolve, or use it to get into one of the many bonus levels. There are 151 monsters to find, scattered around the themed areas, and you can trade data via the infra-red port. Pikachu, though, is ever the faithful servant and helps you regain lost balls as they slip between your flippers or down the side.

All of which means this is well worth getting in. Recommended.

Just caught a monster! Levels of bonus points.

Use the bumpers to complete the puzzle.

Mario DX

Play the original game in one of five great new variations.

Unlike the GB version, you can play 100%!

From: Nintendo Price: £25 Save: No Link-up: Yes Colour: Only Out: Now

Switch on the Game Boy and step back in time. To 1985, no less, when Super Mario Bros revolutionised the gaming world. Sideways scrolling, smooth inertia, hidden secrets, shortcuts, bonuses... It's the granddaddy of modern video games.

And now it's back, in its original form.

Mario DX is the best of both worlds.

The same graphics, the same sounds, the same levels. Needless to say, it's still just as much fun to play as it ever was. It doesn't have the same depth of gameplay as Mario Land 2 or Wario Land 2, but Shig'sy's people have come up with some cunning new play modes which enhance the old codger no end.

You can compete in a Red Coin Challenge, which is effectively a kind of time trial, or a superb versus mode. One player controls Mazza, the other uses, erm, Luzza, and you have to try to be the first to get to the end of a course. Hitting switches blocks off certain routes, and it all gets nice and frantic. Plus there's an absolute warehouse of little extras, from GB printer pictures to G&W Gallery-style surprises. Everyone in the entire world ever must have played Mario Bros before, but there's enough new stuff here to make this an essential purchase. Plus you can play it on the train.

Many versus Luigi in the five-player link-up mode is great!

Top Gear Rally

From: Nintendo Price: £30 Save: Password Link-up: No Colour: Yes Out: Now

With the GB's new rumble pak in tow and some tasty track visuals, Top Gear Rally fools you into thinking it's better than it really is. But, play your way through the game's default levels and you'll realise it's not actually that great.

Like V-Rally a couple of months back, Top Gear Rally just doesn't have enough variety. Tracks are either a mixture of loooooong straights or fairly simple curves, and unlike the N64 version there's no real challenge to the game. The first time you take one of TGR's 'corners' you might be foxed, but then you realise, by tapping the brake, you can easily see off any problems that the game throws at you. And all that's left then is the three secret courses.

Of course, developers Kemco have to be commended for coming up with a nice looking and, it has to be said, pretty quick racing game but, especially where the nine minute Jungle course is concerned, there's just not enough excitement. Opponents occasionally appear, but for the most part you're travelling along incredibly barren roads, and feeling the full effects of the rumble pak as you try to edge round a curve in the track.

There's also far too much car realignment. In fact, you spend most of your time realigning your car as it pootles along.

A brave effort, then, but nothing special.

Right above you, the number just is floating. It's not in a bubble.

The more black you see, the more you can see.

It's not that you can't see the car, it's that you can't see the car.

You only ever get one car, so you can't see the car at any given time.

From: Acclaim Price: £20 Save: Password Link-up: No Colour: Yes Out: Now

Archer Maclean's classic is highly thought of among the older members in the Planet Game Boy office, and with good reason. A fantastically rapid fire blast-'em-up, Dropzone comes to the Game Boy – incredibly – for the first time ever, and still plays as brilliantly as before.

The premise couldn't be simpler: manoeuvre your space soldier through hundreds of screens worth of side-scrolling basicness blasting armies of aliens and rescuing human survivors. Chuck in some power-ups, increasingly tricky aliens and blunder storms and that's just about that.

It's not that you can't see the car, it's that you can't see the car.

the difficulty with a particularly evil accompanying laugh (actually, it doesn't, but you'll swear you can Simple stuff. Except of course the challenge is anything but simple.

After about, ooooooh, three or four levels, Dropzone ramps up hear the game chuckling as it bombs you out of the sky), and later on it becomes nigh-on impossible as swarms of aliens hammer towards you, humans take up more difficult positions and the gravity disappears altogether. Yup, Dropzone'll keep you going on the bus home at night.

WEB BOY

The worldwide cult of GB.

So the Internet is the future of gaming, is it? We're not too sure about that, but a surprisingly large number of websites are devoted to gaming on an altogether smaller scale.

Just type "Game Boy" into an Internet search engine and see how many sites it finds for you. It should find something crazy like 30,000, assuming you don't count all the dodgy ones concerning a rather different kind of boy. With that amount of sites, it's inevitable that quite a few will be on the dumpular side. Here at Planet Game Boy, we're more than willing to take the hard work out of surfing, and to spare you the traumas of AltaVista's liberal interpretation of the word "game" we've compiled a list of our five favourite Game Boy sites.

EAGB gameboy-x-one.net/jp

"The best Game Boy resource on the net" is EAGB's bold claim, and we have to admit that we're inclined to agree. There's a heavy bias towards unusual Japanese import stuff, so it's the place to go if you want to find out how to work your Pokémon Pinball cart or your Toki Meki Memorial. You'll also find a fantastic page dedicated to limited edition Game Boys, along with the usual informative news and reviews pages. Top stuff.

Check out: Val's Pokémon Pikachu diary. A tear-jerking account of the life and death of a virtual pet. Be warned – you will cry.

Game Boy Monolith www.dragontooth.rcmail.com/gbmon

Bright, colourful, and very easy on the eyes. All fine recommendations for any web site, and since GB Monolith is packed full to bursting with just about everything you could possibly want to know about the world's favourite console, all that nifty design work hasn't gone to waste. There's a selection of choice tips and cheats, and a vast A-Z list of every GB cart ever released.

Check out: The excellent Game Boy history page. Read all the facts and figures, then impress (bore) your mates with your supreme knowledge.

GBC Dojo www.nintendodojo.com/gbcdojo

Part of the huge Nintendo site, the GBC Dojo is a fine source of information. Readers are invited to send in their own news stories if they've come across a particularly hot piece of gossip, and the Dojo webmasters pass everything through their own special cack detector to ensure that the ratio of fact to rumour is kept just right. There's also a selection of Game Boy music to download and play through your huge PC speakers.

Check out: The news page. Updated daily, with all kinds of brand new info, rumours and the latest release list.

Funtography www.funtography.com

As an official Nintendo site, Funtography is largely concerned with flogging the finer points of the Game Boy Camera, but you'll find a surprising amount of handy tips among all the glossy salesmanship. Have a good read through the pages of in-depth instructions, and see how your artistic skills improve. Then send us your new and improved pictures for the Game Boy Gallery.

Check out: A full list of all the features and built-in bonuses to be found lurking within your Game Boy Camera.

Pokémon Abode www.pokeabode.com

Anthing to do with Pokémon is a good thing as far as we're concerned. Pokémon Abode is crammed full of the cute little devils, even going as far as to host several other Pokémon sites within its furry walls. The site's writers tend to take the whole thing a bit too seriously, though, with their own legal warnings plastered all over stuff that's actually © Nintendo, but you can't go wrong with a Pocket Mon. Heh. (What? – Tim)

Check out: The cool and funky desktop wallpaper. There's plenty of Pokémon artwork to brighten up your computer, but no Pikachu. Where are you, lovely yellow mouse? C'mon, where are you? C'mon, don't be shy...

SOFTER RUMBLE

Here's a great, but simple tip. Fold up a small piece of paper and wedge it gently between the cart and the top of the Game Boy. This then dampens the rumble effect and prevents the cart from rattling during a heavy spin. It works a treat on Pokémon Pinball too.

WINNER!

Fantastic use of lighting from this month's winner, Cecilia Schultz-Olsson from Malmö in Sweden. A Venetian blind was used to get this effect. Nice. Cecilia is a Depeche Mode fan.

Daryl Sage sent this creepy Quatermass effort.

This is Mr Hand. It belongs to Adam Reford of Manchester. Very good, Adam. No really, it is. Honest. Oh.

Utter rubbish. Blame the oddly named Ashley Jeggo.

From Ellwyn Male of Solihull. Ugly? Yes. Looks like one of the Village People.

Stop your grinnin' and drop your linen.

Yes! Freak time is here, and once again we've been inundated with classy pictures of lowdown mutants. From aesthetically challenged relatives to dubious body parts, it seems like the Game Boy Gallery is really getting your creative juices juicing.

Our favourite picture this month came from Sweden's answer to Countess Dracula, but it was a close thing. Lucy Green sent us an impressive portfolio of weirdness, and was thoughtful enough to inform us that her 'Mrs Apple' creation isn't actually a real person.

Daniel Kilfoyle showed off his impressive physique, Ben Culliton photographed an actual genuine alien thing, and many a family member suffered a thorough defacing.

After easing you into the horrible world of Jes Freaks last month, we were planning to show you a few of his more hardcore efforts this time. Sadly some chimp erased all the pictures from the office camera, so we'll have to lock Jes in the toilets for a couple of hours until he comes up with a few new ones. It's probably for the best.

Ruddington's Rosemary Lilley sent us this picture of Christina Ricci in the Addams Family.

David Teixeira from New Zealand, making another Gallery appearance. Lovely.

Jud really enjoyed this Devil Cat from Stephen Hutchins.

Whoa! Even Jes would be proud of this, a genuine alien sighting. They're here...

This one's from Rahul Bakshi of Dover. It may once have been a human face, but we're not too sure anymore.

Cross-dresser Daniel Kilfoyle from Swinton. Nice pecs, Dan. Very impressive.

Yes, of course you are. This was sent by Geoffrey Aire-something. Nice handwriting, Geoff.

Wahay! Top Game Artist Ryan Medlock sent us this creation - The Crazy Goron.

Send us your freaks

You can't frighten us, you know. We've seen more sickening GB camera pics than you've had hot dinners. Still, if you think that you can use the ancient art of the trick lens or the mighty power of the stamp to show us something that the world has never seen before, then pop your pic in the post and you could win a brand new game. Pictures of ugly friends and relatives are always welcome and tell us your victim's name too. Send them to:

O riginally, the plan was to take the five best entrants from each of the games but, as it turned out, we were absolutely overwhelmed with GoldenEye responses, pleasantly weighed down by F-Zero X attempts, and privy to, astonishingly, just the four Mario Kart and Turok 2 times. So, in order to make the 20 as fair as possible, we took the six best GoldenEye times – divided by accuracy percentage and then number of kills – plus the six best F-Zero X's, and the four best Mario Kart and Turok 2 entrants. The final, then, will be made up of the 20 finalists, plus four members of the masterly Team N64.

December '99

ANTICIPATION RATING

N64 Magazine's Special Investigations can take us all over the world. And, in the case of Perfect Dark, it did. To LA, in fact, and E3. And, strength, what a game we found...

It's testament to the genius of GoldenEye that we're still playing its four-player deathmatch a whole 20 months after the game's release. It's also possible that, alongside Zelda and Mario 64, Rare's stunning shooter is one of the best games that there's ever been. So, when there was talk of a sequel, we got very excited.

But, then the new Bond licence, in the shape of Tomorrow Never Dies, ended up on the PlayStation and in the hands of unknown developer Black Ops, leaving Rare... well, without the Bond licence that they'd so wondrously dabbled with in GoldenEye and, presumably, without a follow-up GoldenEye engine game.

Of course, we should never have doubted their brilliance. A couple of months later they confirmed the existence of a GoldenEye sequel, with a story created entirely from scratch and a whole new 'feel'. Then there was the name, Perfect Dark, and its female centrepiece. Half a year after that, N64 exclusively showcased the game to the world (N64/22) and then, finally, the world got to play Perfect Dark at last month's E3 videogames show.

Tomorrow Never Dies? A hideous third-person mix and match. Perfect Dark? Possibly the N64's greatest game yet...

DARK

you imagined...

DEJA MOVE

With Rare's blindingly expensive motion-capture studio installed at their new Atherstone HQ, it was a surprise that the E3 version of Perfect Dark still had the old GoldenEye enemy animation routines. However, Rare confirmed that they'd already recorded some fantastic new motion capture and that it would be fitted into the game before very long. In particular, there'll be more body-specific shots, soldiers begging for their lives when you get the upper hand, and – would you believe it – bloody head shots. Well, not really bloody, but the walls will be spattered and those heads really will flick back.

ALONE IN THE

loading

WALKTHROUGH

The mines will come in the same proximity, timed and remote flavours, but will be redesigned for Perfect Dark. There'll also be computer-controlled plastique.

Brilliantly, some areas of the game are locked or inaccessible so, to counteract this, Ms. Dark comes equipped with an updated version of Bond's mines.

They work in the same way – just place them, then detonate – and once the explosion has died down, new areas like this steel chute open up.

WEAPONS

FarSight

Surely the World's greatest weapon (even though it appeared first in Arnie flick, Erased), this literally enables you to see and shoot through walls. By picking up body heat, you can search within a two or three room radius for any sign of life. Once you've found an enemy, you simply have to tap Right-C and the weapon will lock onto them. A quick push of Z (and a penetrable bullet) later and they're crumpled in a heap on the floor. The gun moves incredibly slowly, but using a mixture of stealth and cunning, it's superb for stationary adversaries.

△ Straight out of Erased, but what do we care? It's an utterly brilliant weapon. How can it fire through walls, then? ▽ Special metal-ripped bullets, that's how.

Night Vision Goggles

At one point in the DataDyne level, you're in the middle of a firefight, and the lights go out – it's black. So you frantically equip the goggles, enabling you to hunt the enemy through a green tinge. Then, later, the lights come on again, completely blinding you, whilst about ten enemies are firing at you. Superb.

Alien Gun

This little beauty feels and shoots like a half-sized RC-P90; with staggeringly rapid-fire, it piles off nail-like yellow ammo at a stupefying rate. Satisfyingly, you can also fire side on, John Woo-style. And when there's two of them it's wonderful.

△ Don't be deceived. These two are exceptional bits of kit. Atop the DataDyne building, they'll take care of business. And then some.

DARK

For the first time ever, concrete Perfect Dark playing details. Lock and load...

The DataDyne building could conceivably exist. Its architecture is realistic, and its decor consists of stunning-looking glass waiting areas with furniture, like sofas and tables, scattered about for effect (which DataDyne guards sit around in - leading to plenty of stealthy shot-in-the-back tactics). Further on in, you'll get to carpeted areas, with tasty chrome finishing and the occasional marble pillar. Look outside, and you'll be able to see adjacent skyscrapers.

Handling like the Destover in GoldenEye, this bottom-of-the-range Perfect Dark pistol is still superb, and comes complete with laser sight for precise targeting.

AR34

Remember the AR33 in GoldenEye? Well, meet its nastier offspring. Like the Alien Gun, it's rapid fire, but where it really scores points is in its accuracy in picking out multiple enemies.

Rocket Launcher

With the game's laborious lock-on, the new Rocket Launcher is lethal. Pinpoint an area on an enemy, then fire off the Launcher's twirling silver cases for maximum body part scatterage. Like the original version, however, you've got to make sure you don't fire it off in tiny environments, or it's thankyou and goodnight.

Machine Gun

As you'd expect, the machine gun fires off rounds faster than you can blink. But, like the KFV Soviet, it sways a little, meaning you have to use the game's lock on to rid yourself of those foes.

▲ Nasty? Ooooh, yes. It's not got "Caution" written on its side for nothing, you know.

This conference room is, unbelievably, empty, despite having an incredibly amount of time lavished upon it by the Rare design team. But that's Perfect Dark all over: the detail in the game is astonishing. You can see through to other rooms via grates in the walls, and even pick out helicopters swooping past the glass. Just a few of the reasons why Perfect Dark is soooooo good.

GO! GO!

REVEAL YOURSELF

One new addition to Perfect Dark is the scanner, demonstrated here as we wandered through the DataDyne labs. When you come across an item (or even person, if you're at a distance), you can use the scanner to "assess" the object. It will then give you a breakdown of what the object is, what it does and whether it's dangerous. Here, the scanner reveals that the weapon we've assessed "may explode if shot." Fortunately, it's okay to pick up and fire off.

DataDyne Rooftop

Preceded by one of the finest real-time cut scenes you'll have ever seen, the rooftop sees Jo swinging in from a 'copter, and aiming to work her way down into DataDyne and its labs.

△ After being dropped onto the roof, Jo has to use some super-stealth to get inside.

DataDyne Labs

This is the one we simply can't wait for. Not only is there the now-famous alien 'tricky' escape, but also the introduction of the stolen Alien Gun to spice up those death scenes a bit.

▽ A brilliant, brilliant section complete with twin gun.

Chinatown

A rainy San Francisco sees Ms Dark enter Blade Runner territory. Smog, jets of steam shooting from every angle, plenty of Chinese scrawl across the walls and a fantastic VIP protection mission. Yup, chicken with cashew nuts, ta.

△ Would you believe there's around an hour and a half's worth of cut scenes in PD?

Shipwreck

With a look borrowed from the Alien films, Shipwreck is set inside a crashed extra-terrestrial spaceship embedded at the bottom of the ocean. A genuinely scary, pitch dark mission, this, with ace sounds, including distant screams.

▽ A computer console, used in the same way as those in the Facility in GoldenEye.

ENVIRONMENTS

loading

DEATHMATCHES

First off, the most surprising admission by Rare at the show was that Perfect Dark includes both the Temple and Complex multiplayer levels from GoldenEye.

Disappointed? Don't be. There'll be an unconfirmed number of new ones – up somewhere around the 12 mark, and including the cream of the one-player missions (including the DataDyne labs and alien shipwreck) – and both the aforementioned favourites will differ from how they once were.

Firstly new lighting and textures have been included to make both appear sparkling and new but, more significantly, Perfect Dark now allows players to drop down holes and jump from higher levels, both abilities that change the Complex and Temple levels substantially. Additionally, the arenas are fantastically fine for sniping, which means an ideal opportunity for a FarSight entrance. A weapon, by itself, which completely changes deathmatches forever.

▽ The number of arenas hasn't been confirmed yet, but this one looks brilliant. That's snow joke, either. Ahem.

△ Is in the top right, there. And the other guy? DataDyne special forces.

Because of the lock-on, picking off distant enemies is now even easier.

△ Fantastic! You can even play as the little Roswell aliens. All be it ones with a PhD in chemistry.

GAME BOY PAK

A stroke of genius on Rare's part (almost certainly after they read the suggestion in N64's very own Perrish Day reader write-in) was making Perfect Dark compatible with the Game Boy Camera. Take a photo of yourself using Nintendo's terrific picture-taker and then – brilliantly – download your face into the game's multiplayer, mapping it onto a body of your choice in the super Create-a-Player mode. Of course, credit where it's due: suggesting a feature like that and actually implementing it are two entirely different things – and actually being able to play as yourself in Perfect Dark only further proves Rare's immense talent. This feature wasn't up and running in last month's general E3 show version but we did get a glimpse at it behind closed doors. And the fact that you can not only create a multiplayer character with your face on it, but also make him as fat or as thin, as bearded or as clean-shaven, and as bald as you want is just mind-blowing...

Duncan Botwood/Designer/Perfect Dark

What was the inspiration behind Perfect Dark?

Mostly films we'd seen and really adored. Blade Runner is a classic that we really took on and there's definitely some homage paid to that. We liked the format of GoldenEye a lot and we just chose to expand upon it. As far as the plot is concerned, it's our own take on the futurist alien contact thing and I think it works quite well.

How much of the GoldenEye engine is actually being utilised?

It's changed a hell of a lot. We've got a new system for moving around which has been constructed from the ground up basically. In GoldenEye, you couldn't fall off edges and you can now. There's a lot more freedom and this is probably going to cause a bit of a spit feeling for some people who are used to the old GoldenEye way and liked that kind of safety around edges. It's also going to put a whole new twist on some of the old multiplayer levels that we've put in such as the Complex and the Temple — and we're going to put a few more in there. We're working on some other things to do with edges that will probably be quite good fun. But that's probably the most fundamental thing that's changed.

There's the same kind of briefing system in the game, including comments from a MoneyPenny-like Carrington. Like that.

So there's no option to jump?

I still don't believe that it's a thing that you ought to have; I can't see a reason for it. I mean, games like Zelda manage perfectly well without a jump button. We have enough fun in Perfect Dark without it.

How many levels can we expect to find in Perfect Dark, then?

I think there are around 22 levels broken up into 12 or 13 missions. We have continuity with locations. Taking the first mission as an example, you've got three levels. Skyscraper, the basement beneath (and research labs), and the third one, which is getting out again.

And there's loads of tasty weaponry to fire off too?

There's going to be quite a few. Hopefully it will be set up so that you can tell the different characters and factions in the game from the weapons they have. DataDyne, because they are this big, evil corporation, will have large, military-type guns. While another faction, being a more covert operation, will have smaller, less powerful but more operational weapons.

Any personal favourites?

I could blow my own trumpet because I designed a couple of the weapons, but I won't. I think my favourite one has to be the FarSight just because of what it can do. We were playtesting the game at first with the scope, which is vitally important as you always have to playtest these things, and the fact that you could shoot anywhere, it just seemed to be lacking something. The levels were designed in such a way that you could run around freely and that kind of kills the sniping mode. So, what we did was to have a lock-on, so that it automatically sets the distance, and as soon as we put that feature into multiplayer, the FarSight was the gun to have. You'd see four stationary people searching for one another.

How have you incorporated the expansion pak?

We're using it at the moment, but we haven't formally decided to increase the resolution or anything with it. We may go for a general performance improvement, but it's hard to say. I'd like to use it for more background interaction, more objects and things like that.

So, don't you feel it's that important?

It just seems that everybody is like, "Oh, RAM pak — that means high-resolution". I'm sure that there are other things that we can do with it so we're just going to have a play and see what comes up.

You have licensed Dolby Surround Sound be...

Yep. We're going to try and get that in all our games now. It just enhances the playing experience hugely.

What's the cartridge size?

At the moment, it's going to be 256MBit. There should be some memory on the cart to save games, setup and that sort of thing. We've got voices in the game as well — stuff like combat speech in single-player mode and in cut scenes. We also have one intro and one outro for every level. All of them have speech and are very cinematic. They're very nicely done.

The storyline's obviously a very important part, then?

There's a very strong storyline to it. There are cut scenes that occur occasionally in the levels due to the plot, so it's not just at the start and end always. Whenever there is a plot mix that we find very difficult to get across, then we'll do a cut scene.

What's new in the deathmatch department?

Bots. We hope to be able to have bots for different characters. We want to be able to select a team of bots that can play on your side, or four-player against a team of bots.

Do you think you'll be able to pull that off with a decent frame rate?

We should be able to... it would certainly be nice. We'll have to see, we haven't fully tested it yet. We have this plan. But, yeah, bots are definitely going to feature in multiplayer without a doubt. It's just how many. We'd like to do more than eight, really, but eight seems like a good figure.

So, you'll be able to play on your own in multiplayer?

Yes, you will be able to play multiplayer games on your own if you have absolutely no friends at all. The way we have it planned at the moment is that you'll be able to select a bot character from a list and it will have a certain personality type. This will give him specific traits including the way he'll attack people in multiplayer and tactics that he'll use. You can also choose the body and the head that you want, and of course, you can map your face into the game with the CB Camera.

SEARCH AND DESTROYED

The punishment unit in Perfect Dark is, as described elsewhere, something quite special. Which is why we had to point out this wondrous section during our explanation of the alien onslaught. All the darkness combined with spooky, high-wire sound effects wasn't scary enough. We suddenly uncovered this dead alien with his arms outstretched that looks like floor. Which just triggered the question: what could have killed him? We ran away very quickly.

ANTICIPATION RATING

◁ Shades of Rusty Bucket Bay, here. With shotguns.

△ Chunky, about 10 times flattened by a spiked roller.

◁ The swimming sections are even better than Banjo-Kazooie's.

Monkey shines

Donkey Kong 64 has massive 3D worlds to explore but there's also a bewildering wealth of mini-levels and games, all of which are vital to success. Here are just a few of them...

DIDDY KONG RACING

This is really fantastic. Like a huge, ape-mongous spelunking, this section of the game sees Tiny Kong racing a Kremling in lightning-fast slot cars. It's possible, at certain points, to switch onto another 'slot' and this becomes invaluable as obstacles, hazards and the super-violent opponent will all try to scupper your efforts.

MINE CART MADNESS

Many of you may well remember the mine cart/rollercoaster races from the original DK Country games. Well, Rare have sensibly updated these sections for DK64, and they're tremendous fun. The aim is to collect 70 coins whilst avoiding vicious cart-bound opposition and it's possible to jump up from the cart, and lean to the sides.

BARREL FULL OF KREMLINGS

The sub-games and mini-puzzles in DK64 are nothing if not plentiful and varied. This particular game is based on those crocodile-bashing machines that populate seaside arcades. Kremlings pop randomly out of barrels and try to attack you; it's a real test of skill and reflexes to nobble them before they get the chance to nobble you.

MONKEY BARREL ROCKET

Remember the barrel-lining from the SNES Donkey Kong games? DK64 features these in smashing 3D. The aim is to get to otherwise-unreachable areas by firing yourself from barrel to barrel. When in a barrel, the view changes to first-person; with a crosshair to help you hit the next cask.

CHARACTER CLASS
Donkey Kong and Diddy are joined in DK64 by three other, never-before seen friends. And here they are: Tiny: A small female Kong, like Dixie (from DK Country 3), Tiny can use her ponytails to fly. For a while. Chunky: Chunky is a huge and hulking Kong, slow but very strong indeed. Lanky: The most interesting of the new characters, Lanky has incredibly long, flailing arms, which are the source of many of his moves.

SURPRISE TIME
Remember Funky Kong? In DK64, he runs a shop, which seems to appear on most levels. However, when we managed to reach one of them, Funky told us that he "wouldn't be open until Christmas". What can it mean? We've got two ideas. Either there'll be some kind of Christmas event in the game, or DK64 will actually be time-coded, so that something may well happen when it's actually Christmas day. Far-fetched? Who knows...

ING 64

Rare couldn't have picked a better time to show their latest masterpiece than at this year's E3. Having released only a paltry three screenshots of the game, no-one really knew what to expect of it, and, with Nintendo not having a big name game of their own to show off, one of the gaming world's most famous characters was always going to be the centre of attention.

As such, expectations were high for Donkey Kong 64, and nobody who saw it was disappointed. First impressions may well have left most people with the feeling of a bigger, brasher Banjo-Kazooie, but having sat down (or stood in front of) the game for several hours, the great ape and chums soon revealed their true colours and promised to deliver a game more ambitious, advanced and packed full of pure gaming quality than almost anything that's coming up (the

Our Special Investigations can take us all over the world. In DK64's case, we went to E3 in Los Angeles.

Does Tiny Kong have access to some kind of flamethrower?

Ape equipment

As well as featuring multiple characters with bagfuls of different modes and abilities, DK64 also gives you access to equipment that certain characters can use at different times during the game.

◀ Diddy auditions for the John Woo film. Chow Yun Fat, your heart out.

▲ Kremling feels the business end of Chunky's bazooka.

SHOTGUN

The trusty double-barrelled variety, naturally. Available to Donkey Kong himself, this short-range weapon packs a mighty punch guaranteed to fell almost any foe.

BAZOOKA

Belonging to the never-before seen Chunky Kong (he's big and strong), the Bazooka is a long-range, explosive weapon that's not entirely accurate. Very nice indeed.

PISTOLS

Ever fancied seeing a pistol-toting Diddy Kong? Well, you can now, as everyone's favourite chimp can tote two mini-guns in a John Woo style, just like in Face/Off. Almost.

JET PACK

Another piece of kit that young Diddy can make use of, the Jet Pack is great fun, a bit like the Rocket Belt in Pilotwings, but easier to control. And much faster.

◀ Diddy Kong jet-pack action. Fun.

FUTURE LOOK

Rare have a habit of foretelling the future in their platform games. Does anyone remember Wrinkly Kong playing an N64 in Donkey Kong Country 3? It was especially clever, seeing as the N64 wasn't even out when it was released. We have a feeling there may be something Dolphin-related somewhere in DK64...

Chunky is tremendously strong - hence this boulder-lifting.

▲ Ace special effects are everywhere. We can't wait.

honourable exception, of course, being Perfect Dark).

Ostensibly a 3D platformer, DK64 proves to be much, much more than that. The game's main levels are as huge and sprawling as we'd hoped them to be, full of trees to climb, bananas to grab and beasts to avoid. But, rather than taking Donkey Kong himself through each level until you get to the end, the game holds objects and places that can only be obtained by certain members of DK64's five-strong family: Donkey, Diddy, Tiny,

Monkey Shines), copious weapons and equipment (see Ape Equipment) and the stunning technical achievements. Donkey Kong 64 looks absolutely jaw-dropping. The animation is amazing, the draw distance vast - you can see way into the distance, with no fogging, or pop-up, at all. Coloured lighting and exemplary light-sourcing abound, creating shadows and bathing objects and characters in the correct hue, just as you'd expect it to in real-life. The control is silky-smooth, and the game runs at a frightening speed. And now that Rare have once again broken a few boundaries.

All too-good-to-be-true news, then. Or is it? Well, we have a couple of small gripes. Despite looking remarkably advanced the camera isn't, as yet, up to the standard that we're used to. Despite a Banjo-style arrangement, where it's manipulated via the C-buttons, the camera wasn't quite effective enough. Tapping R (again, like Banjo) didn't centre the camera behind your chosen ape very accurately, and, when you did try to 'turn'

VISUALS Coloured lighting and exemplary light-sourcing abound, creating shadows and bathing objects and characters in the correct hue.

Chunky and Lanky. Each of these characters has their own individual abilities - such as Tiny's helicopter-style ponytail-swinging or Lanky's spasmodic flip through the air with his long and gangly arms - and this means that each character has his or her own mission objectives and route through each level (meaning that backtracking never gets tedious). Certain areas in each level can only be unlocked with a certain character - but it's up to you to discover which character you need, to do, or get, a certain thing. The potential for lifespan and replay value is enormous.

And then there are the squillions of different mini-levels and sub-games (see most of all, it's simply gigantic).

All of which might explain why DK64 absolutely won't run without the expansion pak. And also why the expansion pak is going to be given away free with the game when it's released on November 22nd. However, rather than simply allowing the game to run in a higher resolution, Rare have used the expansion pak to help with the aforementioned technical triumphs. Since DK64 is marvellously crisp, clean and wonderful-looking anyway, the extra memory is being put to use in helping with frame rates, providing extra lighting and shading, and helping the N64 cope with allowing you to see all of the game's huge levels. It's a remarkably innovative way of using the pak, and rest assured that other companies will start to utilise the little red box o' joy for more than sharper graphics, the camera, it tended to get a little stuck on scenery, or just jerked unnecessarily. Having said all this, however, and seen just how much is crammed into the game, we're sure that this is something that Rare will get just right.

▲ That's our Mr Kremling. How's Tiny going to beat him?

At the time of writing, we've only got four months until DK64 is due in the shops. And, if you weren't looking forward to it enough, we haven't even mentioned the four-player deathmatch. Look to the heavens, right now, and thank the Lord for Rare.

Unless you've been hibernating for the past six months, you can't have helped but notice the furor accompanying a certain summer sci-fi blockbuster. Star Wars Episode 1: The Phantom Menace is its name. Quite possibly the worst title ever, and if the savage US critics are to be believed, then the movie itself isn't much better. No matter though, because the Star Wars name is a guarantee of huge commercial success and fond memories. After all, the original film took a critical panning back in 1977 (test audiences actually laughed at it), and it hasn't looked back since. We won't get the chance to see the latest instalment in this country for another month, but we can get our hands on the first of a trilogy of games based on the new movie as a little taster of what's to come. And if LucasArts' latest N64 title is any indication of the quality of Phantom Menace the movie, then the critics have got it badly wrong, because Star Wars Episode 1: Racer, as the game is known, is tremendous fun.

Shop around

You can buy your pod parts at the reputable dealership frequented by R2-D2 and chums, or you can have a rummage around in the junkyard. Sometimes you'll find a choice part of a wrecked pod just lying around – turbo engines, efficient cooling systems, and other top mechanical stuff. Unfortunately you'll have to pay through the nose for it, because the owner of the junkyard won't let you take anything without first violating your wallet, and recycled parts might blow up in your face if you don't have the pit droids to repair them. Still, it's a good shortcut to a better pod, if you can afford to risk it.

▷ You'd be lucky to find a shiny new engine in the junk.

Some of the junkyard parts aren't really up to the job, but you can sometimes find a gem.

WARS 1: RACER

Upgrades

Once you've accumulated a decent wad of cash you can spend it on all sorts of new parts to make your pod racer more capable of besting the elite pilots. There are seven areas you can upgrade – traction, acceleration, brakes, turning, top speed, cooling and repair. The last two are just as important as the other more traditional racing attributes, because without decent cooling and repair systems you're likely to spend a lot of time blowing up and waiting to be put back on the track.

Each aspect of your pod's performance can be upgraded in many ways.

Some cheap parts are better to give out on you during the heat of a race.

GO! GO!

REPAIRS

Along the sides of the track, you'll see a power of speed and a danger of death in the center of the arena to show you where the damage is located and how serious it is - for many red patches and you'll see an engine. Because you're not out of control, fortunately, you can repair your engines while you race by holding the R button. So you heavily, cancels the turbo, so you can only do it once. However, you'll see a lot of speed while the main section is on. Still, it's better than crashing.

Amateur circuit - TRACK TOUR

There are 25 tracks in the game, divided into four different leagues - amateur, semi-pro and galactic have seven tracks in each, and invitational has four. Initially only the amateur league is selectable, and you have to finish in the top four in order to move on to the next track. Many of the later tracks are based on these amateur levels, sharing some of the same track sections, so it's important to get a good basic knowledge early on.

Boonta Training Course

Planet: TATOOINE
Track Favourite: SEBULUA

The desert home of the Skywalker clan plays host to the simplest track in the game. The sweeping corners are easy to negotiate without having to bank at all, but there are a couple of sections where use of the Z button will shave a good few tenths off your lap time. The only hazardous section is in the boulder-strewn prairie, where a collision with one of the larger rocks can easily rob you of an engine.

The rocky bit is the only really hazardous section on the track.

Mon Gazza Speedway

Track Favourite: TEEMTO PAGIALES

This short, fast track quickly established itself as a favourite here in the office (at least until we got onto Oovo IV). Lap times are in the F-Zero X region, it's wide enough to avoid any contact with the other racers, and it's very easy to complete three laps without ever touching the walls, making it a great one for finely tuned time trials. Plenty of opportunity to turbo, but keep an eye on the temperature gauge.

Use the boost on this long straight, but be careful.

A good bit of tight cornering here and first place is a certainty.

Beedo's Wild Ride

Planet: ANDO PRIME
Track Favourite: ALDAR BEEDO

Every racing game needs the occasional icy track, and Ando Prime is where you'll find them in Episode 1: Racer. Unfortunately the slippery-slidiness doesn't make any difference to the pod racers' handling, since they never actually touch the frozen ground. The blinding whiteness just makes the track more difficult to judge, and there are some horrendous tunnels and arches to negotiate.

The main white backgrounds are bad for visibility.

Tilting the engines back ensures a softer landing after this big jump.

Aquilaris Classic

Looking like something out of a Mad Max movie, Aquilaris introduces multiple routes, and sections of track with huge streamlined pillars dividing the road in two. A few slow practice laps are essential before you try to tackle the course at full speed. There are a couple of excellent straights which are ideal for an extended burn of the turbines, and some nice weedy sections to bank and swerve around.

It's dark and damp down in the tunnels of Aquilaris.

Use the force in the dark when the track shifts for just one year longer!

Planet: AGGRI-11
Track Favourite: GLAM HOLDFAST

Malastare 100

With its buzzing insects and glowing green swamps, Malastare reminds us of the Death Marshes from Turok 2. Skimming low over the swamps leaves a toxic vapour trail in your wake, which is a fantastic visual effect when there are several pod racers speeding across the swamps together. The track is designed for velocity rather than bicky cornering, and consequently it's a lot easier to win than Aquilaris or Beedo.

Planet: AGGRI-11
Track Favourite: BOB BEEB

The tunnels are there to scrape the life out of your engines.

Last place. Whoops. Did somebody say this track was easy?

Vengeance

Vengeance has a fairly standard sort of start, building up speed along a winding metallic XG2-style track, before introducing the first of the game's moving obstacles. There's a rotating gate - which is certain to catch you out the first time you encounter it - some spinning cog and an utterly gob-smacking zero-gravity section filled with asteroids and energy beams. Making Vengeance the prettiest track by far.

Looks rather nice, doesn't it? It's certainly not slow either.

Planet: OOVO-IV
Track Favourite: FUD SAND

Spice Mine Run

The final track in the amateur circuit is set in a different part of Mon Gazza - in the dusty gloom of the spice mines. It's the closest in look and feel to Wipeout 64, with its atmospheric lighting and undulating surface. Since it's the last track, you have to finish in the top three (rather than the top four) to gain promotion to the semi-pro circuit. It isn't as hard as Vengeance, though, so the step up in class will come sooner rather than later.

THE PRICE IS RIGHT
There are three different settings you can choose before each race to gamble with your potential winnings. Depending on how confident you are, you can choose to spread the cash (a currency called Truguts) between the top four finishers out of a field of 12, or award the whole lot to the winner. Choose wisely, because in a winner takes all race, finishing second is no fun at all.

Booster

You can turbo any time you like, but to prevent you using it too much the boost system has a couple of interesting catches. Firstly, the method used to activate it is extremely fiddly, and only really practical on long straights: you have to hold the joystick up until the turbo meter fills up, release the accelerator, then tap and hold it to start boosting. Nasty. Secondly, boosting raises your engine temperature. More than about two seconds of continuous boosting is likely to cause a fatal blow-out, so an improved cooling system is a wise, early purchase.

Scraping the walls at high speed produces a lovely shower of white sparks.

Grabbing a decent engine upgrade gives a huge increase in the turbo performance.

Unlike those characters who appeared in Star Wars for about ten seconds before going on to become best-selling cult action figures, Episode 1: Racer takes its cue from one of Phantom Menace's most memorable set pieces – a part which is ideally suited to videogaming, consisting of nothing but weird aliens, huge ships, and lashing upon lashing of cheek-flapping speed.

Must only ever find a heading like that in a Star Wars game. All newly 300mph! There's barely time to admire the architecture.

Get behind the wheel

Any self-respecting 3D game has a selection of camera angles to choose from, but in Episode 1: Racer it makes a bigger difference than most. There are the standard chase cams, of course, with two levels of zoom, and one with the camera stuck on the front of the pod. But, best of all, there's a driver's eye view of the action – which puts you right in the driving seat, with a superb view of the two massive engines. They tend to obscure a lot of the screen (up to 50%, depending on how hard you're banking) but it really cranks up the racing atmosphere.

Flip the camera around for a brilliant reverse view.

Zoomed out, you get a good view of the track around you.

PIT DROIDS

Useful, these. Sometimes an upgrade you've spent your hard won cash on will give up the ghost during a race, particularly if you got the part from the junkyard. Pit droids work on your pod craft between races and fix the damaged bits. And the more of them you employ, the less time you'll have to spend without your flashy new engine or top cooling system, which is nice.

In the film, lardy space villain Jabba the Hutt organises a pod race for super-skilled aliens, which Dark Side whelp Anakin Skywalker duly wins (to the amazement of the assembled onlookers, who have yet to see Anakin's true identity revealed in The Empire Strikes Back). In the game, you can play as the young Skywalker lad or any of his 20 opponents, whilst upgrading your pod, winning races, and generally acting like an intergalactic version of Tom Cruise in Days of Thunder. Forget the rebels, the baddies, the cuddly Ewoks and the Caribbean comedy creature. There's nothing but pure racing in this 256Mbit cart, and it's arguably superior to both XG2 and Wipeout 64, two long established specialist racers.

The best thing about Episode 1: Racer, as a quick glance at the screenshots will tell you, is its visual style. It's unmistakably

TWO PLAYERS

▲ It's fast and jerky, but nowhere near as good as it could have been.

▶ All the tracks and vehicles are available for a two-player race.

The two-player mode is something of an acquired taste, since it's just a one-on-one contest. All the computer drivers are removed, and with many of the courses being extremely long, a crash early on means you might race for another five minutes without even seeing your opponent. The speed and detail are still good though, with only a little extra pop-up in places, and assuming your opponent is of roughly the same standard there are a few laughs to be had with it. It's hardly F-Zero X, but we prefer it to Wipeout anyway.

▶ Player one is highly skilled, but player two is driving like a one-armed chimp.

pluses and minuses

chariot behind them. At ludicrous speeds, no less. LucasArts know how good the things look, and you can examine them from every angle and marvel at how on earth something made of oil drums and detergent bottles is supposed to fly.

Once you're behind the wheel of one of these monsters, the game plays like a hybrid of the N64's best future racers. The floating sensation as the pods dip and rise over hills is straight from Wipeout 64, but the handling is much more solid, like a cross between F-Zero X and XG2. Add a Z-button cornering slide which feels almost like Mario Kart's hop-and-turn, throw in a couple of original features, and that's Episode 1: Racer. Given the fact that the game has gone from concept to shop shelves in such a short space of time, it's unsurprising that much of it is borrowed from various sources, but it certainly works.

Taking a corner at high speed makes the pod's chariot swing out behind the spirit shown by the opposition is a disappointment, and although they get faster on the later levels, they rarely give the impression that they're doing anything other than following a preset line.

That's the one big problem with Episode 1: Racer. It's unlikely to last like F-Zero X does, because it doesn't present the same kind of challenge. It'll only take an hour or two to beat the amateur level, and when you move up to the next group of tracks you'll find that many of them are the same as the ones you just raced on, with different routes. The two-player mode doesn't offer anything worth coming back to, so it's down to the time trial mode to provide longevity.

But you will come back, because there's nothing else that looks remotely like it. You'll get a more rewarding racing experience from F-Zero X, and more of a challenge from Wipeout 64, but Episode 1: Racer is Star Wars through and through, and therefore well worth saving for.

MARTIN KITTS

VISUALS ● The pod craft really do look the business, although you probably wouldn't want to strap yourself into one.

Star Wars-ish throughout, and not just when R2-D2 and other familiar characters pop up on certain scenes. The rounded architecture in the cities, the dusty colours, the seedy bars and alien wide boys in the cut scenes put all similar games to shame in terms of creating a spine-tingling atmosphere, and the pod craft really do look the business – although you probably wouldn't want to strap yourself into one. They're basically just two giant jet engines fitted with all sorts of home-made modifications, which tow a fragile-looking engine, a useful indicator of when to apply a little Z-button or ease back on the joystick to angle the jets down and bite into the turn. The upgrades you buy really make a difference to the way your pod behaves, but when you've upgraded a few times you'll be able to thrash the other racers a little too easily. Once you've got the hang of timing the corners and using the tricky turbo boost, you'll leave the computer racers behind. Then, assuming you don't crash, the game turns into a race against the clock. The lack of fighting

PLAY YOUR CARDS WRONG

Sadly, the developers of Charlie Blast spent so much time programming Charlie to scratch his bum when you leave the controller alone, they forgot to build in controller pak support. So, instead, you're treated to the most annoying password system of all time. Each level has its own code of five playing cards, so not only do you have to write down the card number, you also have to note the suit. The password entry screen makes it all even worse – up/down to change number, left/right to alter suit, the C-buttons to change card... our brains hurt.

TICK-TICK-TICK-TICK, BOOM!

To help twist your brain, bombs come in several varieties. Boxes of TNT – and the detonator itself – explode in the shape of a 'plus' sign, frying tiles and bombs immediately adjacent in the four main compass directions. Meanwhile, there are three versions of the standard 'blue ball' bomb. Version 1 doesn't affect any adjacent tiles, making it the last point of call in any chain reaction. Version 2 acts the same way as TNT crates, while Version 3 explodes in a larger, diamond formation. With the smaller explosives, the tricky bit is getting them close enough to set each other off. The larger bombs, meanwhile, take out such a large area that it's difficult to find a safe spot to stand.

△ Charlie, you fool! You did it! You blew it all up!

△ Charlie Blast's pathetic-looking explosions resemble mangled bits of pizza.

CHARLIE BLAST'S TERRITORY

Falls well short of being 'da bomb'.

How do games characters get into these situations? Slack-trousered workman Charlie Blast has somehow ended up trapped in a world of bomb-filled islands. And rather than writing 'S.O.S.' on the sand in pebbles, or constructing a crude raft from fallen trees and sailing to freedom, he takes the reckless decision to detonate every lump of explosive he can find. Of course, there's a nonsensical plot behind all this, revolving around dams and 'Rainbow Valley', but we still shake our confused heads at the bizarre plight of Mr Blast.

Charlie's risky experiments with TNT take the form of a one-screen-at-a-time platform-puzzle game, bearing a suspicious resemblance to creaky Amiga game Bombuzla. Each tile-based island is home to several bombs and a single red detonator. By pushing them around until they're in close proximity, Charlie can

It's about time

Puzzle games of Charlie Blast's ilk shouldn't rely on too much challenge. They should allow you to sit and think a level through, watching through it in your mind's eye, until, finally, some over-taxed brain chemicals reveal the solution. Sadly, Charlie Blast is decidedly opposed with time on its mind. Apart from the general time constraint for each level (rendered useless by the pause button), most levels rely on combat timing as you help out moving platforms, △ Fancy waiting up to three minutes for fruit moving crates to stop? Thought not.

△ Why doesn't Charlie just push the bombs into the sea?
 △ In a Charlie case, 'Light and Shuffle' always. At the end of a level, you can see the correct arrangement of explosives.

BOMB QUARTET

With the Bomberman games a pale imitation of their once-great selves, there's a gaping multiplayer hole for another title's bomb-based deathmatch to jump into. Charlie Blast's battle modes, though, aren't up to the task. The 'territory' game – in which the players engage in a tedious battle to colour tiles in with bombs – is best forgotten. The 'survival' game is a touch better, resembling more closely the 'blow-your-opponents-to-bits' style of Bomberman at its best. But the need to constantly fetch, push, line up and detonate bombs is too laborious to be enjoyable, and the blurry, distant visuals make seeing what's going on a difficult process. Additionally – criminally – it's possible to accidentally make your supply of bombs seize up. Imagine the trigger button falling off the controller halfway through a GoldenEye deathmatch, and you're some way to realising how frustratingly idiotic this is.

△ Pretty colours, but shunting bombs around just isn't our idea of a good time.

Mistakes are even easier when you're rushing against time limits – whoever came up with the time-bombs, which explode if Charlie doesn't tap them every 15 seconds, needs their head examining.

Charlie Blast's Territory screams 'unpolished' at every turn. The camera controls are all wrong, the world themes are hopelessly derivative (desert and snow worlds, anyone?), the password system is needlessly irritating, and the levels themselves lack both variety and ingenuity. If you can learn to live with all that, you might occasionally smile at solving the odd, particularly tricky, puzzle. Arriving at each level's solution comes largely through trial-and-error, and even on the occasions when you do realise the exact sequence of jumps and pushes needed, it takes so long to actually pull it off that you'll be bursting with impatience. The hapless hairy-chested hero will push

- ✓ All 2nd hand games are guaranteed for 3 months.
- ✓ Extremely competitive prices for buying and selling.

This is how you can sell us a game:
1. Your game must be in nearly new condition. We cannot accept anything with torn or stained manuals or damaged boxes and you must clean the CD before sending it to us. 2. You must ring us before sending your game in as prices for 2nd hand games can change quite regularly. You will be given an authorisation number which will be valid for three days.
3. You will receive a credit for the agreed amount which you may use against other games, either new or used.

If you would like to buy a 2nd hand game, simply ring sales for the current price. If your choice is not in stock, you may book a copy and it will be sent as soon as one becomes available. Remember, we do not charge your card until your game is sent!

SUPER BOWLING

You can pin your hopes on this.

Hold onto your bowling caps – Super Bowling is actually rather good. Admittedly, we approached Athena's ten-pin bowling sim with the same sense of trepidation we usually reserve for games with the words 'snooker' or 'Gex' in the title. But a few rounds with Super Bowling was enough to convince us that maybe there is a future for console bowling games after the rubbishness of Milo's Astro Lanes.

Unlike Milo's, Super Bowling doesn't go for gimmicks. Well, that's not quite true. The line-up of crisp 3D characters includes a break-dancing penguin and a tiny woodland fairy. But mostly, the game concentrates on translating to the N64 whatever bowling thrills can be translated: the rumble of the rolling ball, the satisfying clatter of the pins, and the joy of watching all ten wooden sticks fall in unison.

Accurate play in Super Bowling relies on you stabbing fire at just the right time to stop a white line whisking over a coloured bar. Spin, bowling speed, ball size and even choice of lane and character have a noticeable effect on the ball's path, and right up to the final pin coming to rest on the lane floor, the physics look, feel and even sound accurate.

Despite the slightly unfair positioning of the camera – behind and above the bowler – pulling off multiple strikes is fairly easy. Although this makes completing the game a simple process, it gives the matches an exciting, professional feel, where games hang on misses or split pins caused by minor misjudgements.

Super Bowling is intuitive and well-presented enough to make knocking down coloured sticks more enjoyable than you might expect. And, as an added bonus, it isn't Milo's Astro Lanes.

pluses and minuses

- Likable and well-defined characters.
 - Wide variety of lanes.
 - Splendid hi-res visuals.
 - Immediately intuitive controls.
 - The physics 'feel' right.
- Occasionally a bit too easy.
 - Over-sensitive controls at times.
 - Computer opponents occasionally cheat.
 - It'll get boring before too long.

VISUALS 8

MASTERY 7

Fast, good-looking and with a polished feel.

LIFESPAN 6

There's a surprising amount to do, but your interest will wane before too long.

VERDICT

Yes, it's a bowling game. But someone out there's spent a long time making sure it's fun.

VERDICT

With All Star Baseball 2000 doing the sport bigger, better and beefier, Bottom of the Ninth pales into insignificance before you've started a match.

44%

BOTTOM OF THE NINTH

Twooot! Watch the ball sail across the park and into the stands. Nice.

Oh. Another CPU home run. That's nice.

Not that anyone in the N64 office can lay claim to being a fully blown baseball expert, but with Iguana's sparkling All Star Baseball 2000 coming complete with stunning hi-res visuals and a full Major League licence, and Bottom of the Ninth coming complete with neither, we rather suspect your buying decision isn't going to prove to be too hard.

Of course, Konami have shown in the past that they can quite happily surpass a big name licence with a mixture of made-up names and stunning realism, but then the staggering ISS series and the painfully average Bottom of the Ninth aren't quite in the same league. Where one took console football into a new age, the other takes baseball back down a level.

The problem BOTN has is that it's impossible to win. Even given the fact that the CPU lets you know where it's going to pitch, if you manage to hit the ball more than a couple of times during the long, loooooong matches, you can consider yourself something of a gaming God. It's not that they pitch particularly quickly, or even that they're astonishingly accurate, it's just that, for some inexplicable reason, you just can't make contact. Equally, pitching is something of an art; the glove symbol is there to help specify where exactly you want the ball to strike, but the CPU seems to know every single time what height, angle and speed your pitch is coming in at, resulting in hour after hour of out-of-the-stadium piledrivers.

A bit of a Canadian derby in the shape of a Montreal vs Toronto match-up.

Presumably, the difficulty of pitching and batting has been upped to extend replay value, but actually the opposite effect has been achieved. After barely a couple of minutes, you find your interest plummeting to stupefyingly low depths. In fact, as we tried to persist with BOTN's not-entirely-fair challenge, we found ourselves – incredibly – almost falling asleep. And even with such whiffy sporting fare as NBA Hangtime and Olympic Hockey that never ever happened. Still, at least it confirmed our suspicions.

If you wanted further proof of BOTN's shoddy workmanship, though, you need look no further than the overly fuzzy visuals and strange Mosque-like wailing which starts playing with your mind if you have the game running in the background for too long. Both are a far, far cry from Iguana's efforts on All Star, and both leave BOTN back in the dressing room...

TIM WEAVER

Picture this

There's one good thing about Bottom of the Ninth: it's got ISS's scenario mode...

With names like Countdown to Impact, No Surrender and Playing with Fire, BOTN's scenarios sound like they'd be more at home in a Jean-Claude Van Damme film. But no. As it turns out, there's actually not that much tough guy martial arts and quite a lot of last minute baseball battling between Detroit and Seattle. There are 20 of them too, so you'll be going for a while, and like ISS they get progressively harder as you nuzzle your way further into the game. Worth remembering? That local derbies are often the trickiest game.

Got something cool, funny or daft you want to share with your fellow N64 readers? Well, here's the place you can have your say...

'Bit weird'

I recently bought F1WGP and decided to try and accomplish a spot of crashage (especially after you got the Crash-mandu! competition up and running) but I got much more than I bargained for. Have a look at the pictures. I accidentally fell off the track and then everything went a bit weird, and my car started floating in mid-air and the clipping all went haywire. Is this odd or what?

Peter Broughton, Rotherham

Outstanding crashing, there. The key to this one was the fact that you somehow managed to flip the vehicle as you hit the railings. At one stage it even looks like you're floating on water. And all captured in the game's replay. Anyone else had a similarly nasty one? Ed

'Hard pushed'

Here's my entry for Crash-mandu! How about this for a dangerous F-Zero X track? On the first lap three CPU opponents flew off, while 23 more followed in the next 13 seconds thanks to a slope up and to the right, a little kink in the track, then a slope down and to the left. I reckon you'll be hard pushed to find a deadlier track than that.

Matt Dovey, Skegness

Now that is deadly. Or... is it? Ed

'That bend'

I'm writing in response to your Crash-mandu! competition. I think I've just gone and found the most dangerous F-Zero X track ever! After only nine - count 'em - seconds I'm the only one left on the track. I've enclosed photographic evidence. (Just look at that bend.)

Richard Kearney, Wirral

Blimey. That's surely unbeatable. Or... is it? Ed

Correction corner

You spot them, we don't, Andrea gets sacked...

In the March issue of N64 Magazine, you said Kirby was the star of "two Game Boy games and one SNES appearance". Wrong! There were at least three SNES games as well as a NES version of Kirby's Dreamland.
Greg Lamb, Basildon

You suggested that Wil took the blame for this tracking error. And that sounds fair enough to me: Ed

On page 12 of N64/28, you reckon N64/29 is out on Tuesday 18th April, but shouldn't it actually read Tuesday 18th May?
Michael Newton,
Welwyn Garden City

Mmm Ed

Whilst reading through N64/27's Reader Reviews, I noticed the Turok 2 review was rather long, so I started counting (es I am rather sad) and realised the review actually came to 120 words, despite the fact that you clearly state: "In 100 words or less". Why is this so?
Simon Murray, Davyhulme

Rather sad, you say: Ed

In N64/28's Ultra Release List, you've got Shadowgate highlighted blue but you've got US as the country it's coming out in first. I thought the blue bars signified UK releases.
Michael Stutt, Penzance

Sigh. There's no Ed

'Came off'

I couldn't help noticing your Crash-mandu! competition for F-Zero X's, er, 'bitchiest' track, so here's mine. I'm sorry I couldn't get the actual corner responsible for 29 of the 30 other drivers, but I've drawn a little picture on the photo to show where everyone came off.

Alex Graham, Staines

Strewth. Truly that is the most lethal of the X-Cup's tracks yet. Or... is it? Ed

'Insult me'

In issue 28 of N64 Magazine, on the Mutants competition results page, under the names of the people who had nearly made it into the top six, it says, "Swee Ling Khoo for his PlayStation Destroyer Mark 1". Well, actually I'm a 13-year old girl, not a boy. So get your facts right! The boys in my class at school have done nothing but insult me after seeing that.

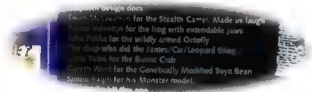

Swee Ling Khoo, Hillingdon

Sorry about that, son. Nooo, only joking. You're obviously a girl. Ed

'The chap'

I would like to express my disappointment at being referred to as, "The chap who did the James/Car/Leopard thing" in the Mutants results in N64/28. Everyone who had a highly commendable entry got their name mentioned, except me. No one would believe it was me.

Billy Mawhinney, Ballymena

Again, sorry. James wrote that page. That's why we killed him. Ed

'Suspicious'

On a recent holiday to Oman, I came across a fort that looked exactly like Gerudo Fortress from The Legend of Zelda. The fort was built into a hill, and was also a gigantic maze. Suspicious... or something more? (Only slight problem was there were no Gerudos about.)

Thomas Gibbos, Switzerland

It's actually not a bad likeness, that. Has anyone else seen a real-life location that looks exactly like somewhere in a game? Then send them in. The best will get a prize. Ed

'Odd chap'

Sorry it's a bit late coming in, but I live all the way across the other side of the world, so I tend to get issues a little bit after you Britons. Anyway, I thought you might be interested in my GoldenEye freak. I

Fantastic! No mouth, ears and nose and, who knows, maybe even eyes. If it wasn't for his blindfold, we'd be able to tell for sure. Perhaps he's just grotesquely ugly underneath. Ed

'Punters'

Why is it Nintendo are so polite when it comes to advertising? They should be shouting to the world what they're capable of doing! I mean, even the advert for Zelda was complete dump, especially compared to some of the moody ads for PlayStation. The N64 has so much going for it: it's twice as powerful, it has the amazing expansion pak, it has exclusive commitment from Rare, and it has Shigeru Miyamoto. The N64 should be a serious competitor for PlayStation 2, let alone PlayStation. But, Nintendo need to compete with Sony in the advertising stakes before casual punters start to get the

DREAM ON

Your ideal N64 game. Discuss.

PREMIER POP MANAGER 64

This is a little bit like Premier Manager, but instead of taking on the role of a Keegan-like football manager, you are the manager of a pop group. The idea, though, is the same: you have to take a little known pub band and create an international supergroup. You achieve this by choosing the band's songs, organising places for them to play, sacking members who don't turn up for gigs (that's the best bit), slipping important A&R men little brown envelopes full of cash, and befriending important people like The Spice Girls and, erm, Phil Collins. Things can easily go pear-shaped, though, with fans losing interest and albums being slated.

Robert Wilson, Dundee

Interesting. In fact, we're sure something like this has already been done in Japan. Still, a version where you could start a Brit Awards bun fight with Damon Albarn would be ace. Ed

NEIGHBOURS: MADGE GOES MENTAL

With its mix of Zelda-esque 3D exploration and Resident Evil-style scares, this licenced zombie-'em-up could run into trouble with the censors. Taking on the role of either Harold Bishop or Lou Carpenter, players must work their way through Ramsay Street trying to take down Madge, who has lost her mind and gone mental after a rabid Bouncer bites her leg. A variety of weapons are available including shotguns, barbecue-flamethrowers, bouncing bombs shaped like koala bears, deadly cans of explosive Fosters lager and Mrs Mangle's poison-tipped teeth. And there'll be a host of locations based on the hit TV show, from The Robinson Corporation and The Watering Hole, right through to Erinsborough High. Secret characters will include Jim Robinson, Joe Mangle and – the super mulleted couple – Scott and Charlene.

Colin Filton, Stoke

Sounds like an absolute corker, that. One more weapon we'd add is deadly skin bombs created from Helen Daniels' dandruff. Otherwise, your idea could be perfect fodder for Rare. Ed message that the N64 is the finest console in existence. Let's be honest, the F1, Banjo-Kazooie and 1080° adverts were rubbish.

Graeme Beech, Sunderland

Sadly, we'd have to agree with you, there. Trouble is, Nintendo haven't got a proper HQ in the UK, so there's no marketing △ Nintendo ads. Not that impressive. Still don't give up hope just yet.

set-up like there is at Sony UK. Subsequently, we've tended to get the American adverts – the "rubbish" ones you mentioned – instead of more specific UK ads. That said, it's worth remembering that Sony are an international electronic company with decades of marketing experience. By comparison, Nintendo are much smaller and much more inexperienced, particularly where advertising is concerned. Still, with Resident Evil and Perfect Dark later in the year, there's still time for Nintendo to impress us all. Ed

'Welder'

A few things: firstly, I've noticed Mario Party is sold out in most shops. Any idea when Nintendo might send some more copies out for sale? Also, what about giving away some stickers to put across the top of N64 games, so that you can easily see which game is which when you're taking them out of the N64 rack. Oh, and one last thing: I'm really enjoying your What if?'s and I was thinking you could perhaps do Legend of Welder: Blowtorch of Time.
Ewan McLaughlin, Whitley Bay

We all had a good chuckle at your What if? suggestion, and also nodded in agreement with the top-of-the-N64 stickers (a system we've actually already implemented in the office, because we could never find the games in Martin's drawers). As for Mario and his Party, it's unfortunately not quite such happy news: Nintendo seriously underestimated how popular Mazza Party would be and only ordered 30,000 copies of the game from Japan. Luckily, they've re-ordered a truck load more, so expect the game to be in a shop near you in the very near future. Ed

So tell me this

1. Is FTWGP 2 going to be drastically different?
 2. Is V-Rally 2 coming to the N64?
 3. Any news on Jungle Emperor Leo?
 4. What happened to Mother 3?
- Chris Charlton, Cambridge

1. Not that different at all. The tracks have been refined, the drivers updated and the handling tweaked but it plays basically the same. Which means it's still going to be fantastic, but perhaps not as different as we hoped.
2. Ooooooh, yes. Lined up for Xmas. And it's good.
3. None whatsoever. Perhaps a project for the next machine....
4. Still in development, and there's no release date yet.

Whatever happened to Superman? You keep saying you're going to be reviewing it in your Next Month pages, but never seem to get round to it. Is it still in development?
PJ Thwaites, Stockport

Yup. And looking, erm, okay. (If we're being honest, there's a few problems that need ironing out if it's going to do the Man of Steel proud.) Expect it some time this Summer.

1. Is there going to be a sequel to Battletanx?
 2. When's Vigilante 8: Second Offence out?
- William Saunders, Guildford

1. Oh yes. Battletanx 2: Global Assault is out in December in America, so expect a UK release around February. As for the game, it's more of the same, but with 20 new world-spanning levels, more destructive weaponry and bigger explosions.

2. Not for a while, we suspect. The PlayStation version will come first, so don't expect the N64 incarnation to turn up until early next year.

1. Are we likely to ever get forthcoming PC hit, Duke Nukem Forever?
 2. And what's happened to Daikatana? It's still in your Ultra Release List!
- Steve Fielding, Isle of Wight

1. Maybe. But not for a long, long, long time. In fact, if we ever see it, it won't be out on the N64 until well into 2000, maybe 2001, and by then we might even have a new machine.

2. Ah, well, that's at least started development though, again, it won't be out until well after the PC version (scheduled for Chrimbo). Expect it towards the end of 2000.

You mentioned a new feature on ISS99 in N64/28. When's it out?
Alistair Cantlin, London

Unfortunately, Konami have no plans to release 3-League Perfect Striker 2 (or ISS '99 as it would be known over here) this year. So, strangely, it'll only be available in Japan. This is because Major A are completely re-doing ISS for 2000.

Perrrrfick Day

Check out our Special Investigation on page 46 to see how many ideas Rare have 'borrowed'...

From Sam Teltar, Bournemouth

- Your weapons should have an auto-aim which would allow them to target two different enemies at the same time. This would be brilliant for a crowded room, and lead to quicker deaths.
- There should be areas where ceiling lights are flickering on and off, so that the corridors and rooms quickly go from light to dark, making surprise alien attacks even scarier.
- Like Metal Gear Solid, you should be able to outrun enemies and then hide from them.

From Jack Timpson, Macclesfield

- You should be able to pick up discarded guns, discharge the ammo and then load it into your current gun. And you should only be able to pick up ammo that's designed for your weapon.
- Jo Dark should visibly reload weapons, like in Half-Life.
- Manual reloading. A single button should have to be pressed to reload a new magazine. This would make gun fights far more dangerous.

From Andrew Davidson, Newcastle

- When you use a telescopic sight, the camera should actually zoom into the lens on top of your rifle, instead of the whole screen zooming in like it did in GoldenEye. It would also be great if you could adjust the amount of magnification like in Duke Nukem: Zero Hour.
- With a Create-a-Character option, you should be able to save out your design and use him or her in multiplayer. Wouldn't it be great if this was as extensive as WWF Warzone?

From Callum Warwick, Edinburgh

- Items should be placed randomly in the level meaning that, even if you become really proficient at the game, you'll still have a new challenge every time you come back to a level.
- Please, please, Rare, let us have the ability to plant mines on people.
- What about if you could cunningly place tracking devices onto enemies and then use an Aliens-esque motion device to crank up the tension and also tell you when they're approaching.

From Sandra Bowden, Manchester

- It would be tremendous if you could take off individual enemy limbs. I know the shot-firing system in GoldenEye was pretty accurate, but if I get someone in the leg in Perfect Dark, I want it to come off in a torrent of blood, veins and muscles. (One for the Mums, that - Ed)
- Alternative endings are a must. Perhaps there could be three possible routes through the game and, at the end of each route, there would be a separate conclusion and unique cut scenes.

From Geoff Norton, Cambridge

- You should be able to creep up behind guards and break their necks.
- What about a Cloaking Gun? Working best in corridors, this one basically fires a 'cloak' creating a nearly invisible wall which, when guards run into it, cloaks them in body-melting film. After a few seconds, their skin starts to sizzle and they begin to melt away. (Nice - Ed)

If you've got any ideas for Perfect Dark, send them to: Perrrrfick Day, N64 Magazine, 30 Monmouth Street, Bath, BA1 2BW. We'll forward them on to Rare once we've printed them.

WRITE YOU ARE!

Here's where you review the games. Not us. You...

You sure know your N64 games, and certainly don't have a problem telling us what you think – even if it's the opposite of what we said in our reviews. But we don't mind, bring 'em on we say.

So, how do you get your review printed? Well, perhaps you've played a game which you hoped was going to be exceptional, only to be left with a pile of proverbial. Or, maybe, you've discovered an N64 game that was slated by the gaming media – yes, even us – and found that it's a real gem, and it's now something you particularly enjoy.

Either way, write your 100 opinionated words clearly stating why you've liked, loved or loathed a game. Give it a percentage score, pop on your name and address and send it to the following address:

LYLAT WARS

I can't see why this game is so popular. Graphically it's terrible, there aren't enough enemies and you can't save your progress. It's no fun continually fighting a losing battle. Your team mates don't slaughter enough baddies and only say really unhelpful things – so I killed them.

And what about the levels? They're in a weird order mixing hard and easy ones together. I can complete a certain level and feel happy, but then die straight away on the next. What's all that about? Nice steady difficulty curve, I don't think.

You'd be better buying something with class: try F1WGP.

Mamamia! This game is sooo bad. Every time I've played it I find myself feeling sooo sleepy, and... ZZZzzzzzz

What the...? Oh, yeah... I find it so tedious and unrewarding. Just bombing about collecting stars and completing mindless level after level after level. Why are games this big? I enjoyed the other Mario games but this one with its droning music just makes me feel so... ZZZzzzzzzzz

I'm confused... Where am I? Oh, sorry. Right, believe me, I've tried to enjoy the game that everyone raved about, but so what if he swims, flies, runs and jumps – it's just too dated now. (You're obviously mental – Ed)

SOUTH PARK

With its beautiful cartoon-esque 3D graphics, South Park looked likely to be a real winner and an absolute must buy. However, I found it a tad disappointing. A game that involves repeatedly throwing snowballs at turkeys, whilst running through unimaginative landscapes, is not my idea of a good time.

I tried the multiplayer game with some mates. Kenny died and we all shouted "Ohmygod! You killed Kenny!" And that was it. No more fun to be had out of this very basic shoot-'em-up. The sound and range of weapons are okay, but that doesn't make genuine gaming entertainment.

ROGUE SQUADRON

I'm Star Wars crazy and I feel Rogue Squadron beats Zelda as the Best Game Ever™.

I don't even have an expansion pak, but the graphics are still splendid, and the gameplay is fast and furious. The sound is awesome, as well, and really creates a true atmosphere. Hell knows why you gave it a measly 85%, I think it beats Turok 2, Body Harvest and GoldenEye hands down.

And compared to Shadow of the Empire, Rogue Squadron is like a fully fledged Skywalker Jedi versus a weak minded Storm Trooper.

Personally, I can't wait for Star Wars Episode 1: Racer.

DUKE NUKEM

ZERO HOUR (PART 2)

WHAT WE SAID

We reviewed Duke Nukem: Zero Hour in issue 28 and this is what we concluded:

"That game varied enough but Zero Hour is still a brilliantly-executed blasting trip."

Dim the lights, put on some mellow music, and prepare to kick some butt!

by Daniel Glenfield

This month sees the second part of our comprehensive guide to Duke Nukem: Zero Hour. Good, eh?

Last month we tackled the first 10 levels of gun-riddled, alien-fragging action and so here we are again, thirty days later, covering the remaining eight levels.

Oh, and no guide to Zero Hour would be complete without a delve into the superbly murky world of Dukematch, a free-for-all multiplayer extravaganza with more settings than you could shake a bloodied stick at. Ooooh, yes.

So, with that in mind, it must be about time to to kick some Grade A ass and chew some tasty Hubba Bubba...

LEVEL 11: THE WHITECHAPEL KILLINGS

● Deal out some punishment to the pigs and zombies in the area and grab all the ammunition you can find. Get to the shop and collect the bombs inside before destroying the cart opposite to reveal an open manhole. Drop down into the sewer and head right, shooting the lizards and running past the zombies (they're too slow to be of any threat) to get to a door.

● Use the water valve inside to flood the sewer, and use your bombs to blow a few holes in the side wall to get back to where you dropped in. Take the left route and swim through the gap to the next area. Bomb the wall at the top of the steps to get back to the streets.

● Work past the pigs and zombies that infest the city and through the back alleys until you come to an open house (on your left as you leave the alley). Upstairs there are a few ammo clips (which always help) but the final part of the level takes place underground, via the lift under the stairs. Going down...

● Behind the strange contraption is a destructible wall, at the end of the short dark passage. Blast your way through and follow the water to a small pool, complete with its own Octobrain inhabitant. Get onto dry land and open the hidden door, then (once the enemy threat has been neutralised) swim to the exit.

LEVEL 12: PLUG 'EM AND PLANT 'EM

● Search for the two gargoyles and enter the door on the right behind them which leads to a flight of stairs. At the bottom, in amongst the coffins and alien eggs, you'll find the CRYPT KEY. Grab it and run back up the stairs to avoid the killer zombies that burst out of the surrounding coffins. Kill the pigs quickly and escape.

● Leave the area and look for two rows of trees and a locked door. Use the key to unlock it and fight through the dark passage to find a chain dangling from a box on the wall. Pull it and carry on to enter the Elementary Canal. Swim under the bridge to the ladder and climb out of the water.

● You'll come under heavy attack now so use whatever cover is available to defend yourself. Find the boat and jump on for a ride. Switch to a rapid fire weapon and shoot the enemies above you, and once they're defeated jump off the boat and pull the lever.

● Get back on the boat and pass through the lock. Ride it to the floating crates and use them as stepping stones to get to the ladder. Use it to get to the exit.

LEVEL 13: HYDROGEN BOMB

● You need to get to the long corridor where one of the doors requires a key to open. Explore the rooms further along to find some much needed ammunition. Turn right at the end and open the door, fight the guards until you get to another door at the bottom of the stairs.

● Clear the room of aliens and go through to the nest via the door on the right. Shoot the eggs before going any further down the stairs and once the gas has dissipated grab the SKELETON KEY. Run back to the long corridor and use the key to open the locked door. Behind the door is the lift shaft, and this will take you to the end of the level.

● Jump across and climb up the ladder, all the way to the top (it's a loooooong climb). Collect the Gatling gun that you find and climb all the way down to the bottom of the lift shaft where you'll find the level exit. Don't go out to explore the surrounding area at the top of the shaft – it's really not worth it.

LEVEL 14: GOING DOWN

● Climb up the ladder on the right and grab the shotgun shells, then run left and make your way into the ship. Strafe around every corner to avoid any unwanted surprises, and avoid exploring the cabins as there's not much ammo hidden away inside them.

● When you find the elevator take it down to the lower deck and open the door to your left to encounter a few aliens guarding a stash of ammunition. Grab as much as you can carry and go down the stairs, proceeding slowly to draw out the bad guys one by one. You'll see that one of the rooms has been converted into a beam in point for the aliens, and you must go through this to get to the second elevator which will take you into the engine room.

● Drop down to the floor and pick up the box of bombs in the corner. Use one of them to destroy the engine on the far right and this'll reveal a hiding place for the last of the aliens. Look for a small broken crate that you can crawl through and collect the atomic health inside before getting to the rocking car. Shoot the barrel behind it to begin flooding the ship and get back to the engine room.

● Wait for the water to rise enough so you can get to the lift and take it to the deck above. Swim through the room and up the stairs to the next elevator that you need to use to get back to the very start of the level. Now that the water has risen you can swim to leave the level.

LEVEL 15: THE RACK

● Dive under the surface of the water to avoid being hit by gunfire from above and swim to the left hand side of the castle. Enter the castle and get to the slope ahead of you but don't go up it. Opposite the base of the slope is a door that leads to a pitch black underground dungeon. Put on the night vision goggles that you'll find and search for the COURTYARD KEY.

● Leave the dungeon and get back to the surface. Around here is the door that requires the key you just found. Once opened, this door leads to a larger part of the castle that hides the GREAT HALL KEY. The key can be found on top of the anvil around the corner. Use it to enter (naturally) the Great Hall, which is filled with enemies. Run up the steps and jump across to where the lizard was firing down on you. Go right, then right again and through the door on your left (leading to the library). Collect the CATAPULT ROCK.

● Run back along the passage, past the Great Hall, through the left door and down to the catapult. Press B to launch the rock, smashing a hole in part of the castle wall, and use it to climb up onto the ledge. Run back round to where the rock landed and open the doors to find the ALIEN HEAD KEY.

● Backtrack to that long slope at the start and open the door at the top. Kill the pig and use the switch on the wall to find the exit.

LEVEL 16: BRAINSTORM

● Take the passage on the right and use your weapons to put the generator out of action. You'll come under fire from a few aliens, but they shouldn't be any trouble, especially as you can use a gap in the rock wall to fire through.

● The next generator is protected by its own shielding, but you can deactivate it by pulling the lever on the wall. Of course this releases the spiders you passed earlier, but you already guessed that would happen didn't you? Didn't you?

● This is the hardest generator to shut down as it's heavily booby-trapped. Enter the passage and hug the right wall until you eventually come to it. Move towards it, then race backwards: the ceiling will start to collapse to protect it. Run as fast as you can to get out of the area before you get squashed by the ceiling – there isn't any time for mistakes. Go back the way you came and walk down the stairs to the fourth shield wall.

● Cross the bridge and jump across the rocks to the large button on the wall near the shielded generator. Press it and the lights will flicker out in the surrounding area, making jumping back across those rocks a lot harder.

● If you go back to where the shield wall was you'll find that you can now go all the way down the staircase. This allows you to have a closer look at the large crystalline object seen from the windows.

LEVEL 17: THE BROTHERS NUKEM

● Simplicity itself. Take some time to explore the level and collect whatever weapons you can find, as you'll need all the help you can get for the next level.

Run down the alleyway and keep going straight ahead until you find a car showroom on the right full of, erm, cars. Blow the glass out of its frame and step inside the showroom to find the level's exit.

LEVEL 18: THE ALIEN MOTHER

● Immediately take out the surrounding lizards, using the space craft as cover, and open the nearby door.

At the top of the stairs (on the right) is a gun turret. This needs to be destroyed before you can safely press the button on the wall. Open the large panel and step out onto the ledge which leads to a room with another button on the wall. Pressing this will open the docking bay doors.

● Grab the BIO EMITTER from around the corner and run back downstairs to the other door. A column should drop down to the right and by pressing this you can open the door and shoot the enemies behind it. Fight your way past them to the next area and collect the CYBORG ENFORCER HEAD.

● Now you need to get back to where you got the BIO EMITTER from, and then open the door with your head (?). At the far end, past the Octobrains, is a door leading to a flooded area that you can swim through, to find a hole in the rock that leads to the surface. Take the second passage on the right and get to the anti-gravity chamber.

■ Hold the jump button to rise all the way to the top. Shoot the lizards and the Octobrain before stepping forward to face the last boss...

HOW TO... settle the score for good

● He's very strong, both offensively and defensively, so every drop of ammunition will be needed to defeat him. His attacks are easily predicted however, and with a bit of agility you can easily avoid taking damage throughout the battle!

● His poison gas breath and disorientation rays can be easily avoided by strafing left or right, but they do a lot of harm if they hit you. He throws his head back before he fires them so predicting when the attacks will come is simple enough.

■ When he takes to the skies he may well try to squash you flat. Keep away from him as he hovers above, still shooting, and continue to attack when he lands. His gun is the most dangerous weapon he has because if you don't run away from the blast quickly enough you will die instantly. Run towards him when he fires it and you should be safe.

■ Generally the best way to defeat the boss is to stay close, but to the side of him, so his attacks can't harm you. It's also possible, by jumping across the rooftops and through the open windows, to enter one of the large skyscrapers and explore inside. You can shoot out of the windows here at the boss, giving an alternative strategy if you find things a little difficult.

DUKEMATCH TIPS

ARENAS

COOL AS ICE

The first of many stages, Cool as Ice has you sliding around uncontrollably at very high speeds. This does make it hard for any opponents to shoot you, but you'll find it next to impossible to accurately hit them as well. That's why, when you see a fellow competitor, you should use a rapid fire weapon and just spray bullets in their general direction while sliding about to avoid retaliation. To grab the weapon on top of the large crate run up one of the slopes and fall onto it. The mistake many gamers make is jumping at the end; this causes your player to overshoot. The crate also acts as a diversion, as inexperienced players will try constantly to get the weapon while you surprise them by firing a few shots.

MIND FUNK

This arena is HUGE! In fact it's quite possible to get lost, so make sure the time limit set is increased or turned off altogether for any battles taking place here. Your radar will be invaluable for hunting down rival players due to the size of the area, and once you find them don't give up the chase as you can be certain you won't see them again for a while. The mirrors are in fact warps that will take you to other parts of the arena, and they're perfect for anyone who's low on health. Once you're through, duck behind something and then fire when your

ATOMIC

A very small battle stage but the number of power weapons tucked away in it means the death toll is always guaranteed to be high. The teleporters are a godsend for escaping from heavily armed opponents who fancy their chances, as there's hardly any room for strafing in the corridors. One thing to remember is that those bigger pursuer appears from the warp! When it comes to chasing an opponent, jump through the holes in the wall to tackle them quickly.

CHIMERA

Battles set in this dark, dank underground stage are often frantic and bloody. The main reason for this is that many of the weapons featured can be used in pairs, dealing out double punishment to anyone foolish enough to take you on one-on-one. The weapons take a while to regenerate, but if you choose to wait around for them to reappear watch your opponents' screens very carefully. The level isn't very big and they can be on you in seconds, and if you're pressed into a corner things get very bad very quickly. Of course, when you have two MP10 SMGs in your hands you can easily scare off any other competitors and if they look like getting away use the strafe buttons and the analogue stick to 'swing' around corners and catch them with a few bullets just before they disappear. Oh yeah, and make sure you get the armour from the top level. That'll help too.

SLIDERS

There's no ice, as the name suggests, but a series of small rooms and a number of trip switches altering the level's design. The switches raise and lower small walls so you can access new areas, but block off previous routes. Thankfully you can shoot through the walls at opponents even when the path is blocked, and the rocket launcher is particularly good for this. The transporters don't play a big part in this arena but if an opponent chases you into one, simply exit, turn, and fire a few rockets to kill them as they step through.

Weapons can't be used while running up the slope to the centre of the arena without altering the crosshairs (to do so is certain death). Players using the analogue stick for aiming won't have problems with this. Don't stand in the centre for very long as you're extremely vulnerable here.

SEWERY THING

The many pools and waterfalls in this arena lead to a network of underground pipes that hide plenty of weapons. There are lots of different levels that you can fight on, so always be on the lookout for players shooting down at you from above. Use one of the teleporters to take you to the top of the arena and you'll be pretty safe from those below, but do keep an eye on everybody's screens so you're ready if they plan to beam down to you.

HIGH NOON

This is a very large multiplayer stage, and almost a carbon copy of the Dry Town level in the one-player game. Your radar is invaluable for tracking down enemies as there are so many rooms and teleporters to escape through. Head over to where the TNT was in the one-player game (on the island surrounded by water) and you'll find a boiler plate that will protect you from a few hits. Climb up the nearby ladder and you can take up a sniper position on the rooftops. If it's health you're after take a trip to Goldigger's Saloon and warp to the underground cave where there's a stash of health pick-ups just waiting to be used.

RED SECTOR

Red Sector is separated into two areas, one has the Gamma Cannon and the other holds the Sniper Rifle. You can travel between these two places via the transporters at the top of each area, but beware of ambushes as you go to the centre to collect the weaponry. If you start to have flashbacks of Big Donut from Mario Kart 64 i.e. chasing an opponent round and round in circles, run to the middle of the arena and trap him/her behind one of the walls.

If they try to escape you can get a few hits in with the Gamma Cannon.

ROCKY KNOLL

The walkway that traverses the water in the middle of the level is the point where players are most vulnerable. There is an area above the walkway that is an ideal spot for firing down on passers-by – with guns such as the sniper rifle. When they start diving into the water and swimming across, concentrate on the other end of the path where they'll eventually surface. Dynamite is also useful as you can throw it ahead into the path of players (providing they don't see you) and watch it explode as they get near!

HIVE 8

Hive 8 is essentially a few small rooms connected by narrow passages. If you want an easy way win, pick up the grenade launcher and get to the very top of one of those passages. Watch your opponents' screens and when they get close send one or two incendiaries down to shake them up. You can finish the job with a few shots from your blasters.

CASTLEMANIA

Don't go out onto the courtyard: your fellow players will shoot you from the safety of the many slits in the castle wall. By far the best vantage point is up in the sentry box overlooking the whole of the castle. Although you can see the other players running about, you've still got to be on your guard for sneak attacks from behind (the worst kind). Drop down to the ground below and you'll find some armour underneath the sentry box: should anyone try to follow you down you'll be ready...

EPILEPSY

Not one of the greatest battle arenas but good for a change of scenery if you get bored of Cool as Ice. The pool of water has lots of exits that take you to other parts of the level, but it also contains a health top-up. The large crystals can be handy cover from enemy fire, but they're better used for setting traps. Get near one and then go up one of the small slopes nearby, but stay out of sight. As the enemy closes in, using their radar, they'll expect you to be behind the crystal. You can then jump out while they're searching for you and punish them for their insolence!

CLOBBER FIVE N64 CLASSICS

Top tips and hints for those new budget titles.

You should all be aware by now that there's a lovely, cheap, mid-price range of N64 games in the shops, called Player's Choice. There are, at the moment, five games in the range – and what titles: F1 World Grand Prix, Mario Kart 64, Lylat Wars, Wave Race 64 and Snowboard Kids – crackers, one and all. So here's a tips refresher for each of these brilliant games. Enjoy!

by Jes Bickham

F1 World Grand Prix

WHAT WE SAID

"Truly mind-blowing. No fluffed opportunity, the N64 has finally got the driving game that it really deserves."

VERDICT

Until the sequel arrives, F1 WGP remains the pre-eminent Nintendo driving game.

93%

Hawaii bonus track

Unlimited fuel

Select Grand Prix mode and enter the paddock screen. Set your car's fuel level as low as possible – you'll find that you've now got infinite fuel.

Mario Kart 64

WHAT WE SAID

"It ought to last a lifetime. Extremely entertaining, especially if you've got four controllers."

VERDICT

Arguably the best multiplayer game ever made, and a damn good time trial challenge.

91%

Course ghost racers

There are three course ghosts in the game – beat the time below to race them in Time Trial mode:

Course	Time
Mario Raceway	1'30"00
Luigi Raceway	1'52"00
Royal Raceway	2'40"00

Secret corner turbo

When powersliding round a corner – by holding R – press in the direction of the turn with the analogue stick. Now move the stick in the opposite direction, and the smoke coming from the tyres should turn yellow. Repeat and it'll go red – release R and you'll get a mini-boost. This should all be done in one smooth, quick action.

Banana recovery

When you hit a banana peel, quickly stab the brake – your character will whistle and then carry on without spinning.

Turbo start

Press A to accelerate between the second and third lights for an exhaust-flaming turbo start. Nice.

Quick restart

After falling from a track (like, say, into the river on Royal Raceway), quickly tap A and you should speed straight off when Lakitu finally releases you.

Snowboard Kids

All snowboards, characters, and courses

Silver Mountain course

Ninja Land course

Earn a gold cup on the Silver Mountain bonus course.

Play as Sinobin

Earn a gold cup on the Ninja Land bonus course.

WHAT WE SAID

"Mario Kart on ice. Technically a little ragged but still enormously good fun."

VERDICT

The sequel is the more accomplished game, but the original remains a charming and playable experience.

86%

Quicksand Valley course

Earn gold cups on the first six courses. A new snowboard and the Quicksand Valley desert track will now be available.

Lylat Wars

WHAT WE SAID

"It's got everything you'd look for in a good movie – but in a game. It's brilliant."

VERDICT

One of the landmark N64 games, and still the best shoot-'em-up. No free rumble pak at this price, though.

- Stand: (off throttle, sweep analogue stick counter-clockwise) and Somersault (hold Down)
- Roll left: (off ramp, press Right and hold Left)
- Roll right: (off ramp, press Left and hold Right)

WHAT WE SAID

"Wave Race parallels the ground-breaking brilliance of Super Mario 64."

VERDICT

HELP WANTED!

Experts wanted to write game guides. Excellent rewards!

Apply

Have you ever had a favourite N64 game and played it forever? And then gone back to play it some more, only to discover a genius way to complete it, a cool way to get the high score or something just plain fun? In Help Wanted we give you – and your fellow N64 readers – the chance to share your wealth of gaming knowledge.

If your guide gets printed, then you'll be rewarded with an exclusive N64 record bag – designed by the one, the only, Wil Overton™. And if you want to include a photo, we'll print that too. Read the ever so simple rules below, and get scribbling.

THE RULES

- Your guide should be about 600 words of expert advice on a game that you know inside out, back to front and, generally, like the back of your hand.
- Don't try to write a guide for the whole game. Rather, try and focus on just one aspect and produce a definitive guide to that. For instance, in this issue Oliver has picked out 11 quirky things you can go back and do in Zelda once you've finished the game.
- Don't worry about pictures too much. Wil and his army of art monkeys will sort that out. It's detailed writing that matters.

Please send your contribution to:
Help Wanted, N64 Magazine, 30 Monmouth Street, Bath BA1 2BW.

Remember to include your name and address, so we can a) credit you, and b) know where to send your record bag.

And one final thing: your entry will probably stand a better chance of getting printed if you do something a little bit different, and on a not-so-obvious game – there's nothing wrong with a multiplayer guide, for example, but we'd rather not run one every month. Oh, and good luck!

HOW TO...

find 11 cool things in

THE LEGEND OF ZELDA

By Oliver Bolton

Finished Zelda yet? Most of you probably have by now but, like us, you've probably been unable to resist going back to the land of Hyrule, and taking the time to explore and potter around without having to worry about rescuing the lovely princess Zelda.

And there's so much to see and do – which is why Oliver has sent us this guide to some of the game's more enjoyable quirks. Should you want to get even more out of the Best Game Ever™, then we suggest you read on right now...

1 Infinite health

First make sure that you have a bug in a bottle, and go to any drop-off. Now release the bug and catch it again so you're holding the bottle in your hand. Have an empty bottle equipped to one of the C-buttons and jump to the drop-off. While you're in the air, press the C-button for the bug, and then for the empty bottle. When you land, Link will take a drink, refreshing his health, although he is just drinking from an empty bottle.

2 Musical weapons

Do the same as before, but use a weapon instead of the empty bottle. While you're in the air, press the button for the bug, and then the button for the weapon (B or C-button) and when Link lands, he will take out that weapon and put it to his lips like an ocarina. You can actually play it – so now you can didgeridoo with a deku stick or be daring and play the bomb!

3 Strobe Link

Have the option 'Hold' turned on. When Link runs, keep tapping Z for a strobe effect.

4 Laser pointer

Set the Hookshot to one of the C-buttons. Hold Z, press the Hookshot button, press the shield button and then let go of Z. You should be running around with the red dot still visible.

5 Change ocarina notes

Whilst playing a note on your ocarina, press Z to make it flat or R to make it sharp. You can also use the joystick to bend notes.

6 Save magic with the Lens of Truth

If you want to use the Lens of Truth for a long time without losing a single bit of magic, follow this tip: instead of just pressing the related C-button once to turn it on, keep tapping it instead (an autofire button helps). Although invisible objects will only flash on the screen, you should still be able to see them as well as you would normally. This is very handy for places like the Haunted Wasteland and the Bottom of the Well.

7 Secret grotto in Ganon's Castle

If you use the Lens of Truth on the walls around the central tower in the main room, you will find a grotto full of fairies and business scrubs.

8 Freeze Navi

In the Temple of Time as an adult, read the inscription on the display, then backflip onto it. Stand between the Kokiri Emerald and the Goron's Ruby and, then facing the Emerald, play Saria's Song and listen to what Navi has to say. Navi will now get stuck – you can move around the building and she will not follow you around.

9 Change colour of One-Eyed statues

Plant a bomb by any one of these statues. After it detonates, the stone will start a countdown to when it blasts off by beeping and changing colours. If you hit it with your sword when it is a certain colour, the countdown will stop, and the stone will stay that colour.

10 Magic music

When you have completed the game and it says 'The End', wait, and it will play the song you taught to Pierre (not the Scarecrow's Song) on different instruments.

11 Play ocarina whilst doing something else

On the pause screen, select one of the grey note songs and press A to play it. Whilst it is playing, push up on the analogue stick, so that when it ends the selector will move up. Let go, press start to unpause and voilà! Whenever you press a C-button or A, the ocarina will play. To stop it playing, simply get out your real ocarina.

GOLDENEYE

Over two years old and still going strong, GoldenEye is a regular N64 lunchtime favourite. But multiplayer shenanigans aside, the one player game is starting to just – to become a little too easy, even on 00-Agent mode, for us superhumans at N64 Magazine.

So, with the aid of our infinite knowledge and wisdom we've put together a compilation of scenarios that even the mightiest of GoldenEye veterans will find challenging. Indeed, some of them even made Wii's hair stand on end!

WHAT WE SAID

We reviewed GoldenEye in issues 7 and 9 and this is what we concluded:

"Smart, unadorned and brilliant! We're not joking. Buy this game!"

LICENSE TO KILL SETTING

Thanks to the unique 007 mode you can make each mission that little bit more realistic. By adjusting the level editor so it matches the settings below you can crank up the difficulty to a 'kill or be killed' mode, where you must use stealth and cunning if you are to survive. Give it a try but beware – it ain't easy!

Enemy Health 0% Enemy Damage 1000%
Enemy Reactions 100% NO CHEATS ALLOWED

The License to Kill setting works best on levels with a finite number of enemies, such as the Dam, Facility, Frigate etc. Otherwise it's just downright unfair.

HAT'S A NEW WAY TO PLAY GOLDENEYE

Now this might be a bit of a silly way to play the game but it's good for a laugh when you've got a few friends over. Switch on the INVISIBILITY and INFINITE AMMO cheats and enter a level where most of the soldiers are wearing hats (Facility is a good one). Now try to knock off their hats using a gun without killing a single guard. The player with the most holes in hats wins!

THE LEVELS

DAM

In the wide open spaces early on in the level, dodging enemy rocket fire is relatively easy. The hardest part comes when you've got to infiltrate the tunnel inside the dam itself. There are many different approaches to try: long range rocket fire, sniper rifles etc. Try lots of tactics until you find one that works.

Cheats: All Weapons • Infinite Ammo • Enemy Rockets

007: Enemy Health 200% • Enemy Reactions 100%

Weapons: Any

Top tip: The tunnel at the end will prove to be the greatest challenge.

Fire a few rockets into the distance before ducking back around a corner to avoid retaliation.

This challenge will take more than a few attempts that's for sure. Be sure to use every scrap of cover there is available, and don't stand still for a moment.

Cheats: None

007: Enemy Health 0% • Enemy Damage 1000% • Enemy Reactions 100%

Weapons: Slap and KF7 Soviet

Top tip: You can use the KF7 without attracting any unwanted attention. Hold R to bring up the targeting sight and tap Z to fire one shot at a time. Ideal for the first part of the level.

Killing enemy soldiers before they get close has always been a good tactic, and it's especially effective for this stage where the results can be explosive (Sorry – Ed)

Cheats: All Weapons • Infinite Ammo

007: Enemy Health 200% • Enemy Reactions 100%

Weapons: Hand Grenades

Top tip: Wait for the smoke to clear before running forward to inspect the damage, especially in the tunnel at the end of the level.

FACILITY

Possibly the best level, the Facility has the most potential for hard challenges, as this demonstrates. Detailed knowledge of the level always helps.

Cheats: 2x Lasers / All Weapons

007: Enemy Health 1000% • Enemy Reactions 100%

Weapons: 2x Lasers

Top tip: This is really tough as you'll be swamped with guards as soon as you fire a single shot. Just remember the lasers can shoot through doors...

This is Martin's favourite challenge, for obvious reasons. You'll have to lure the soldiers towards you and pounce on them when they least expect it. Stealth is the key.

Cheats: 2x Hunting Knives / All Weapons

007: Enemy Reactions 100%

Weapons: 2x Hunting Knives (you may use Remote Mines for the chemical tanks)

Top tip: Kill the guards one by one i.e. so their comrades don't see you. Until it's too late...

Thankfully the Phantom has an extremely large ammo clip, and you're gonna need it for this challenge. If you find it too easy step up to the KF7 Soviet, then the DD44 (the gentleman's choice of weapon).

Cheats: All Weapons • Infinite Ammo • Enemy Rockets

Weapons: Phantom (easy) / KF7 Soviet (medium) / DD44 (hard)

Top tip: You can eliminate most of the soldiers in the first part of the level using this sneaky trick: shoot the guard in the adjacent cubicle and wait for the others to appear. They'll all run into the cubicle to your left. Slowly manoeuvre yourself so you can see the guards and begin firing. They're packed in like sardines so you can just stay in the air vent and take pot shots until they're all dead!

BUNKER 1

Make them dance with the Taser, but remember it's a little bit noisy so aim straight for the head before any more soldiers arrive.

Cheats: All Weapons

007: Enemy Reactions 100%

Weapons: Taser

Top tip: Conserve your energy for the dash at the end. Once the special forces have been alerted wait for them to move into the main room (where Boris was) before racing past them. Hopefully you'll make it outside without too much fuss.

Martin's second favourite, because you've got to momentarily switch to the trusty old PP7 to take out the security cameras.

Use your speed to rip them all new one before the guards can fire a single shot.

Cheats: 2x Hunting Knives / All Weapons • Enemy Rockets

007: Enemy Accuracy 100% • Enemy Reactions 100%

Weapons: 2x Hunting Knives • PP7 (for security cameras ONLY)

Top tip: Wave to one of the guards and dodge the missile he fires. Run back and wait for him to follow you, whereupon you can jump out and surprise him.

FRIGATE

Accuracy is the key word for this one, as a bullet that misses its target often results in certain death. And just think what's going to happen to the hostages if you miss with your first shot. Ouch!

Cheats: Golden Gun / All Weapons • Enemy Rockets

007: Enemy Reactions 100%

Weapons: Golden Gun (Gold PP7 not allowed!)

Top tip: Let the auto aim feature do the hard work for you. If, however, you miss your target, strafe quickly to avoid the rocket while you reload, 100 bullets = plenty.

An in-depth knowledge of the ship is essential for this challenge, as in the blink of an eye you can end up with your insides scattered across the deck of the vessel as the result of a well placed rocket. Hard is not the word.

Cheats: Infinite Ammo • Fast Animation • Enemy Rockets

007: Enemy Health 0% • Enemy Reactions 100%

Weapons: Silenced D5K Deutsche

Top tip: Shoot a few rounds up into the bridge from the front of the ship to draw the guards out. They will run around the whole of the ship before finally coming out to meet you. With these guys removed you can step onto the bridge and work your way through the rest of the vessel.

BUNKER 2

Head shots are recommended for this mission. But because you're using the Klabb it's extremely difficult. If you can't manage the head aim for their chest instead.

Cheats: All Weapons • Infinite Ammo

007: Enemy Health 250% • Enemy Reactions 100%

Weapons: Klabb (ha ha!)

Top tip: You can shoot out the glass in the doors and use them as cover to safely attack the enemy! A dishonourable way to win, but who cares?!

SIL0

A difficult one, since you're up against an army of soldiers and a time limit. The latter isn't anything to worry about though as you've got bags of time to complete your objectives.

Cheats: None

007: Enemy Health 0% • Enemy Damage 1000% • Enemy Reactions 100%

Weapons: Silenced PP7

Top tip: To stop Ourosomov from shooting you'll need to run towards him. Time your run well and be sure to kill the guards that appear soon after.

TRAIN

The first few carriages will be a taste and a half for any GoldenEye player, as will lacking the special forces guys near the front of the train, they prefer not to use rocket launchers but ZMGs instead.

Cheats: Gold PP7 / All Weapons

• Infinite Ammo • Enemy Rockets

007: Enemy Health 250% • Enemy Reactions 100%

Weapons: Gold PP7

Top tip: Shoot Ourosomov and Xenia at the end of the train to give Natalya a few extra seconds to locate the secret base. Oh yeah, and you can't use the watch laser on the metal cover to escape.

YOUR TURN

Completed all the challenges? Wondering what to do next? Well why not send us your own missions, complete with one or two tips on how to beat them? We here at N64 are always up for a fresh challenge and welcome any you can dream up. Just scribble them down and pop them in the post to: GoldenEye Missions, N64 Magazine, 30 Minmouth Street, Bath, BA1 2BW. We're waiting...

READERS' TOP TEN TIPS

The top tip of the month gets a fab and funky Makopad from the lovely Interact (01204 700139) and everyone else gets a shining N64 badge. So what are you waiting for? Send us your tips now! (Apart from the Turok 2 big cheat. We've known about that for ages...)

Cheat of the month

1 The Legend of Zelda
Once you've sneaked past the guards outside Hyrule Castle, and got out of the moat, play the Song of Storms at the tree in the corner. Drop down the hole that appears. Go down it, and you'll find a Gold Skulltula in the blockage behind you. Kill it so that the medallion appears, then get right next to the warp point. Z-Target the medallion, and throw the boomerang at it - as it's being brought back to you, backflip into the warp. As the screen goes white, you'll hear the sound that signifies getting a Gold Skulltula medallion. Keep repeating this and you can get 100 Skulltulas! (Remember, though, to save your game after each Skulltula, in case you muck it up.)

Chris Hanson, Swindon

2 Turok 2
Go to level 2, river of Souls, with the Nuke. Fire at the Styrcosaurus and quickly get on it. Stay in the stable, and when the Nuke explodes, so will the Styrcosaurus - but you can still ride it, as if it were invisible!
Chris McLaren, Edinburgh

3 Zelda 64
You don't need to plant a magic bean in the graveyard to get the heart piece on the ledge, but you will need the Long Shot. Jump on the fence next to the bean bed then back up on to the edge of the fence, and aim your Long Shot to hit the corner of the box above, pulling you up to the level with the heart on.
Daniel Bennet, Redditch

4 Turok 2
In level 2, when you fight the zombies near the end of the level, you can avoid their exploding limbs and corrosive blood by turning the blood colour off in the options.
Daniel Muldoon, Dungannon

5 Snowboard Kids
Save all the boards onto one memory pak. You can load it onto every player's pad in multiplayer, allowing every player to have whatever board they want.
Blair Matheson, Richmond

6 Zelda 64
Go to the Dark Tree with the Mask of Truth, go left around the back of it to find a Gossip Stone. Now climb or backflip over every root of the tree, continuing in a clockwise direction, and you'll find a secret, hidden Gossip Stone!
Richard Millam, Wolverhampton

7 GoldenEye
Start a multiplayer game without changing any settings. Go to the top level on the Temple where the KFY Soviet is. Look at the two boxes, walk over to the left one and shoot it on the handle - it will split into two boxes, one containing a rocket launcher.
Michael Cook, West Yorkshire

8 Virtual Pool 64
When the computer is lining up to take a shot, hold R to switch views, then move the analogue left and right to spin the computer player's cue. They'll miss their target every time and you'll get loads of free shots.
Thomas Charnock, Manchester

9 Zelda 64
Throw a chicken at the waterfall in Zora's Domain, but don't aim at the entrance, and watch the chicken take a trip up to the sky.
Chris Lowe, Lambton

10 GoldenEye
Activate enemy rockets and infinite ammo, and play Agent Dam. Go to the part where you need to install the covert modem. Install it, and to the left - on the big area of wall - plant 20-30 modems, until you run out. Take out your rocket launcher, and no rockets will come out - not even the baddies can shoot you.

Your Guarantee Of Value

Just lie down, relax and let the eminent Dr Kitts soothe those itchy gaming sores.

Now, this can be a bit tricky. To play as the gold character you need to first have played as the Ice Man. To get the Ice Man, you have to beat Match Race on expert. Then select Akari Hayami and press Left-C as you press A to confirm. Once you have the Ice Man you have to beat the expert mode playing with him. Then select Kensuke Kimachi, hold Top-C and press A at his statistics screen. Simple, eh? Hope that sorts things out for you.

Dr Kitts, I'm sad because I can't finish Mario Raceway in less than 1'20"00.
Paolo De Luca, Italy

Now this takes me back. There's a smashing shortcut here – in fact, I'm surprised you haven't heard of it. It's very hard, though, so be prepared to put in plenty of practice. On the corner before the one at the giant mushroom, veer sharply left up the grassy slope, and turn back on yourself before you reach the top. Use a mushroom, and hop (via R) as you reach the edge of the track. You should (it is incredibly difficult) sail over the wall just to the right of the intersection, landing just behind the big green pipe. By jumping to the left, though, you can simply cut the corner by the mushroom, which is a much easier, if not as good, shortcut. And there you have it.

Dr Kitts, I'm stuck on Mario Party. How do you get the Gameballs item to appear in the shops and do you have to spin the analogue stick a certain number of times on the Mecha Fly Guy sub game?

Matthew Doarrick, Lancashire

Dr Kitts scratches his bristly chin and doodles on his prescription pad: Right, I think this should be quite straightforward. The Gameballs are a special item and they can be purchased from the shop after you have collected 300 coins. Once bought they allow you to play random mini games in the Mini Game House. As for your other problem, well the aim of the Mecha Fly Guy mini game is to spin the analogue as many times as you can. The more times you spin it, the further the Fly Guy will fly. Now there is research that suggests you get a reward for spinning the stick a certain number of times but it hasn't been confirmed. Is that okay?

Dr Kitts, On 1080° I don't know how to select the gold boarder. I think I've got him but I don't know how to play as him. Please help.
Jack Benson, West Midlands

Fiddling with his stethoscope, Dr Kitts leans back in his swivel chair:

Dr Kitts, I'm playing Mission: Impossible but I'm really stuck on the Rooftop Escape level. I jump over the railings at the start and climb up the crates but then, when I jump down, I just fall over and the guards arrest me. How the hell do you get past the guards?
Rebecca Newton, Redditch

The colour drains from Dr Kitts' thin cheeks as he remembers this particular gaming nightmare: Mission: Impossible is a more than appropriate name for this game but don't despair; it's easy once you know exactly what to do.

At the start of the level turn left and jump over the railings but instead of climbing the crates, let yourself fall down and land in front of them. This is a shortcut and by doing this you'll avoid those pesky guards. Happy now?

You're through to the...

NINTENDO

As you all wait patiently for Star Wars Episode One: Racer (apart from Martin, who didn't wait patiently at all, in fact, he was invited to review the game of the Most Eagerly Awaited Film This Decade – see page 58 for details) you need to be playing something else of stupendous quality on your beloved N64. Something great, something absolutely huge...

And would you Adam and Eve it? You glorious N64 readers are still playing, and having the odd problem with, the World's Greatest Game Ever™. We've rooted through your masses of questions on Zelda and chosen some of the more common ones to answer. So, go on, read the most prompt solutions you're likely to find.

Zelda 64: Ocarina of Time

COMMON QUESTIONS

I'm stuck in the market shop with the guard. Where you can smash pots, I found a Gold Skulltula in a crate, but I haven't got a picture of a Gold Skulltula. Is there one more to find somewhere, then?

Q Bonny Qvistorff, Denmark

A Ahh, this old chestnut has fooled lots of people on Zelda – and that's often the way, it's usually only something very subtle that's stopping you from proceeding...

Finding all the Gold Skulltulas can be a bit of a pain, mainly because some areas are spilt into smaller sections. The Market Place is a prime example. You haven't got a Skulltula token next to the Market Place name on the screen, but that doesn't always mean you've missed a Skulltula in that area. The Market Place is part of the castle, which means if you've missed a Skulltula in the castle you won't get a token on your map screen. So, check all the areas around the castle for that elusive spider.

I went back to the stone in the Temple of Time as adult Link, but I'm now stuck. How do I change back to a child?

Q Mr and Mrs R Bodinnar, Coventry

A Once you've turned into adult Link, you can't turn back into a child until you've completed the Forest Temple. As soon as you have the lovely Forest Medallion in your hands, though, you can return to the Temple of Time, put the sword back in the pedestal, and travel back in time.

Help me, I'm stuck in the Forest Temple – I've pushed the brown square block on top of the other grey block. But, where do I go after that?

Q Jordan Davidson, England

A First of all, you need to pick up a key from the courtyard area to use later on in this section.

Right, when you get to the first blue block, push it forwards as far as you can. It should make a noise confirming you've pushed it into the right place. Then go back to where you found the block, climb the ladder and follow the path to the right. Take the next two right turns and you should find a red block. Push it forwards as far as possible, now go back to the blue block. Climb on top so you can reach the ledge above, then follow the gold arrows on the floor until you get back to the red block from before. Push it forwards as far as possible until it stops. It should make a noise again. Climb on top of the block, which allows you to reach the higher ledge. Go around the corner, up the ladder, and through the door on the opposite side of the room.

You should come out into a mad and twisted corridor. The room at the end of the corridor is all out of shape, but if you jump to the pillar in the middle of the room, you should be able to reach the door on the right-hand side. Now use the key.

Go through the door and follow the stairs down to a room with three skeletons – kill them all and a big chest will appear. Inside this chest is the Fairy Bow, which you'll need to solve the problem of the twisted corridors.

I'm stuck in Zora's fountain, I need the Silver Scale, and to get it I need to win the diving game – but I can't. What's the secret here, then?

Q Joost Ruijs, Holland

A When you dive off the top of the waterfall at the start, try to line yourself up with one of the rupees before you jump – this will ensure you get at least one easily. After that, it's simply a case of lining up your shadow on the bottom of the water with the rupees. This way you know you're directly above them. Hold down A to dive, and don't let go until you touch the rupee. This does take practice, so don't give up if it takes you a few attempts to master it.

01703 652222

I'm stuck on the Water Temple. I'm trying to find the Boss Key, but can't. Any ideas where it is? Help me please.

Adam Wilkinson, Wiltshire

A The Water Temple is one of the hardest levels in the game, mainly because it can get very confusing trying to remember where everything is.

In order to get the Boss Key you will need the Longshot (see N64/29's Hotline for details) – an extension to your Hookshot – to let it go further. Once you've found this item, you need to lower the water level right down again. Go back to the room on the ground floor where you met Ruto, take off your Iron Boots and float to the surface. Play Zelda's lullaby to the Triforce symbol in that room, then drop back through the hole and return to the main room. Follow the right wall, enter the first doorway and dive down into the next room. Get on land, and use the Longshot to get across the spikes and enter the locked door. Go forward to the water, then go left to the middle of the second tile from the left. Drop into the water and swim across the room avoiding the boulders and vortex pools. Get to the land on the other side and enter the door.

Drop to the nearest ledge on the right and bomb the crack in the wall to create an opening, then go through it. Grab and push the large block forward all the way. Exit the hallway and enter from the other opening, then pull the block out as far as you can. Enter the hallway from the opposite end and push the block into the gap and onto the underwater switch to raise the water level back up. Swim to the alcove and enter the door. Step on the floor switch, quickly cross the gap using the three water pillars and enter the door. Avoiding the rock, go into the deep water on the right and equip the Iron Boots. Walk to the end of the underwater hallway, unequip the Iron Boots and enter the locked door. And there you have it, the chest with the Boss Key is right in front of you.

When you're adult Link, Sheik tells you to go to Kakariko Village to learn a new skill.

Q How do you get the new skill?
Lewis MacInnes, Aberdeen

A The new skill the Sheik mentions is really an item. If you return to the Graveyard in Kakariko Village as an adult, you'll find that Dampe the Gravekeeper has popped his clogs, and there's a new gravestone for him on the left-hand side. It's easy to spot as there's a little line of green plants in front of it. Grab hold of the gravestone from behind and pull it backwards to reveal a hole underneath. Drop down into the hole to meet up with Dampe, who will challenge you to a race through the obstacle course. Follow him as closely as possible (watching out for the trail of flaming fireballs behind him) then once you get to the end he'll reward you with his treasure: the Hookshot. How convenient, don't you think?

Ten challenges to test the best.

So you've found every Skulltula, grabbed all the stars and broken every lap record. How do you get a new challenge out of your old cartridges?

Well, you could always try a few of these. Since N64 games tend to be the most beautifully designed pieces of software you can buy, there's usually plenty of scope for doing things a little differently. Following on from last month's Game On feature, here are ten more tricks, glitches, quirks and expert challenges to help you get the most from your games collection.

GAME ON

GoldenEye Super slapper

The standard slap is a pretty feeble weapon but if you agree to a new set of rules it can become more fearsome. Select three players, License to Kill, Golden Gun, Archives, ten minutes. Your two opponents must nip off and collect a golden gun each – this is the only weapon they can use – while you are limited to slaps alone. The slow reload of the golden gun evens things out a bit in this 2 on 1 contest, and even a single slap is lethal. Subtract the number of times you died from your total kills.

SCORE 5 3 2

Super Mario 64 Bob Beamon

Think you're good at long jumps? Go to Whomp's Fortress and select the first star. Make your way to the summit and face off against the ginormous whomp at the top. Don't kill him though, because you need him alive to add a bit of difficulty. With the old whompster chasing you, long jump off the platform and try to hit one of two targets. The first, the green platform, is a cinch. The second, the tall pole, is trickier, but you can use the Mario camera view. Hitting the pole using the Lakitu camera is gold medal stuff.

TARGET Pole Lakitu cam Pole Mario cam Green platform

Zelda Bug catcher

You know how when you drop a bottle bug on the floor, it spawns two extra bugs? There's a race game to be had out of that quirk. First, equip two bottles and catch some bugs. Then go to the Temple of Time and stand on the raised area surrounding the sword. Empty one of your bottles, then run around to the other side and empty the other one. Running in circles around the sword, the object is to keep your bug collection alive for as many laps as possible, by picking them up and dropping them.

LAPS 10 6 4

Rokuga Kids Now that's magic

Konami's cartoon beat-'em-up didn't fare too well in the charts but it's a rather good little game, well worth the 80% it earned back in issue 22. For those of you who did buy it, here's a challenge. With the time and difficulty level both on the default settings, try and beat a computer opponent using as many magic moves as you can. Combos raise your magic meter very quickly, but they also reduce your opponent's energy bar, so the trick is to do lots of quick air punches to boost your meter.

MAGIC MOVES 8 6 4

Top Gear Overdrive Chicken

Anyone who has ever played Top Gear Overdrive will be fully aware of the game's strange way of dealing with collisions. Sometimes you can ram another car and get away without the slightest loss of speed. Other times you'll brush the track perimeter and explode in a ball of flames. You can exploit this 'quirk' for your own pleasure by playing chicken with the computer cars – select the dark Sandy Beach course, turn your car around, and try and complete three full-speed reverse laps, suffering as few fireballs as possible.

FIREBALLS 0 4 8

F1 World Grand Prix Kwik fit

Judging from your letters to Club 64, knocking the wheels off your F1 car is a highly popular pastime. However, since some of you seem to be having a little trouble ridding your car of all four wheels at once, we thought that maybe a concerted effort would produce a reliable method of guaranteeing wheellessness. The best technique we've found is to use the gold car and keep it in first gear, enabling you to build up a huge speed on a nice long straight. Then all you need is a solid wall, a head-on impact, and a bit of luck.

LOST WHEELS 4 3 2

GoldenEye Super slapper part 2

As a variation on the slapping theme, here's a slightly easier contest. It's using the good old License to Kill setting once more, but this time it's three slappers against one shooter. Choose automatics or pistols, depending on how confident you're feeling, and go to the Facility. Getting 'buzzed' by three slappers at once can be a terrifying experience, and the key to success is a steady hand and a confident aim. Don't just spray the room with bullets, because a stealthy slapper will sneak through and chop your neck.

SCORE 8 6 4

Pilotwings Score monster

Getting all the gold medals in Pilotwings is maddeningly difficult. There's always one task which seems almost impossible to accomplish leaving you with a lone silver medal ruining your array of gold. There are 21 medals to get, with a maximum total score of 3600. We're currently on 3528, which is where we'll set the silver standard. Beat that.

3600 3528 3400

Lylat Wars Dummy Starwolf

When you get to the end of the training level you'll be confronted by a swarm of weedy little ships in all-range mode. They don't present much of a challenge, but if you kill enough of them (about 50 or so) you'll get to fight against trickier opponents, based on the evil StarWolf team. As soon as you see the dark shape appear on your radar, go and kill it. Take out five of them as quickly as you possibly can and time your performance. Gold standard is three minutes, which is tough but gettable.

TIME (MINUTES) 3 4 5

Rogue Squadron AT-AT blasting

Almost impossible, this. On the Battle of Hoth bonus level, get to the last stage, where the AT-ATs and AT-STs are attacking the power generator. You have to take down the AT-ATs without using the harpoon tower. Which means that you have to shoot them, which will take at least a couple of minutes of concerted blasting for each one. Yoiks. To sweeten the deal, we've included a mixture of the weaker AT-STs as well as AT-ATs to make the target scores a bit easier. But it's still one of the hardest challenges we've ever set. Think you're good enough? You'd better be...

SCORE 2 AT-ATs 1 AT-AT, 2 AT-STs 1 AT-AT

TAT'S ENTERTAINMENT

Feather dusters are worn out,

Back in issue 27 (a good issue, that, mainly because Andrea was away on holiday for much of it, so we had less bruises than usual by deadline day), we had a little spring clean, and decided to give the big buckets of Nintendo-related stuff we had hiding in the office away (about £1000 worth, all told), in return for tat of your own.

And what a response we've had! Ignoring the odd piece of string, the bag of tissues and the mind-boggling thing somebody once trod on, we received bags and bags of excellent stuff.

Cast your eyes onto the opposite page and you'll see a rundown of everything we were sent - we had a great time going through everything. It was like Christmas, opening all those exciting packages. Well, Christmas at Tim's house, anyway, where he has to make do with some lumps of coal and a couple of spent matches.

But still. Congratulations to the winners, whose tat is pictured below, and thanks to everyone else that entered. We'll be sorting out our tat anytime soon and sending it off to you. Well done all.

RESULT!

WINNERS!

Chris Willoughby of Wellingborough, for his Bubbaloobird puppet.

David Gordon of Hertford for a Commodore 64C.

Whoever sent the Nintendo Power Mario sweatshirt and cassette single of Super Mario Land by the Ambassadors of Funk. We lost your name and address, unfortunately, so please get in touch and tell us. Sorry!

Carol Harrison of South Ockendon for the smashing tank-top embroidered with the N64 Magazine logo, Mario, Luigi and other Ninety stuff. Tops!

Danile Ashmore of Reddish for some real tat. A clearly fake Han Solo figure in official Luke Skywalker packaging.

Daniel Morris for an 'old style' Game Boy (in glorious red), with two games and a carry case.

Nick Henry of Gloucester for a Sega Master System and about ten games. Devotion above and beyond the call of duty.

Brian Murray of Enniskillen for his Programmable TV Console.

Mark Cullen of Leeds for the utterly brilliant radio-controlled Mario Kart Aces.

Luke Sampson of Fleet, for two SNES controllers that open up into Streetfighter playsets.

I'M THE BEST

Your simply the Best (Um, yes...)

I'm the Best is heading for a complete overhaul over the next couple of months. We know how hard you've worked, and there are some really fantastic times in there, but some of the leagues have been in the mag since day one and so we figured it was definitely time for some fresh challenges. For a full list of all the courses we want your best times for then turn to page 107.

And remember, we must have proof of your achievements – you can send your evidence in using a camera, video recorder or a Game Boy camera.

STAR PERFORMANCE

We tend to see lots of familiar names in I'm the Best and while that's great, it's also good to see times thrashed by a complete newcomer. This month we were particularly impressed with Neil Evans from Wimbourne and his incredibly nippy F1 World Grand Prix times. Congratulations to Neil – we'll be sending him something rather special.

And remember, if you think you've achieved something worthy of recognition, just send it in to us, marking your envelope "Star Performance" and enclosing some evidence, and you might see your name in this very box next month.

NEW HIGH SCORE!

Back in issue 28 we asked for your fastest times on Rogue Squadron's Death Star Trench Run bonus level. We weren't exactly swamped with entries but we did see some pretty awesome times. The fastest of these, a mighty 1:54 was sent in by Richard Dunn from Lincolnshire. Congratulations Richard, there's a joypad on its way to you.

THIS MONTH'S TIME TO BEAT

Perfect for time-trialing, this month we want to see how good you are at racing Beetles. EA's Beetle Adventure Racing has sold by the bucketload so if you've got a copy have a go at three laps of the Metro Madness course. Jes reckons it's best to use the police car and anything under seven minutes is pretty impressive. Get racing!

How to enter

Remember, you need to send in a photo or video for your effort to be 'confirmed'. Any photos MUST have your name, address and score/time on the back. Videos must have a label attached with the aforementioned information easily legible. Send all your bits to:

I'm the Best, N64 Magazine, 30 Monmouth Street, Bath, BA1 2BW

If you'd like your videos or photographs back, please include a stamped, addressed envelope (with the correct number of stamps) and we'll promise to do our best to return them.

And remember, each issue has to be completed far earlier than you could ever imagine, so don't fret if your entry doesn't appear in the first issue after you post - it'll be there in the next one.

Bags o' skill. Skilled right up. All the skill in the world. Yup, it's all right here...

Where else can you find the opportunity to show off your games-playing expertise as well as in Skill Club 64? Nowhere, that's where. N64 Magazine is proud to show – to the whole world – exactly how good you lot are at playing games. And that's pretty darn good, going by this month's evidence.

Even if you've only managed to get in the Bronze Club, you can be certain that you're one of the very best gamers in the country, if not the world. And you can still, with a bit of concerted effort, get into the Silver and Gold Clubs, and win yourself an unavailable-anywhere-other-than-here certificate and exclusive, shiny, Overton-designed N64 pin badge to prove your undoubted worth. Nice.

Aaaaand also, should you get into the Gold Club, because we're so bloomin' generous, you'll also win a lovely Manta Ray pad from Nugen (01992 707407) for you to go onto greater gaming glory.

Best get playing, then, eh?

the rules

- You need to accomplish three challenges to earn yourself a Bronze placing, seven for Silver and all ten to make it into the Gold list.
- You can enter for whichever challenges you like - it is entirely up to you.
- You can use PAL or NTSC copies of the games but, if you opt for NTSC, you'll have to achieve the faster of the two listed times in Mario Kart and Wave Race.
- Each challenge entered must be accompanied by photographic or video proof. Squeezing everything on to the one video tape seems the most sensible solution to us.
- We know how to recognise the influence of cheat carts and codes. Offenders will be held up to ritual humiliation and stoned out of the country by zealous citizens.
- You can enter for the leagues in stages if you wish. If you've made it into the bronze league, for instance, you could send us further proof of four or more challenges to elevate yourself to a loftier position.
- Bronze, Silver and Gold leagues will be published in each future edition of N64 Magazine.
- If you'd like your tapes or photographs back, please include a stamped, addressed envelope.

HOW TO... prove your achievements

Taking photographs

Point at the screen and click away. For best results, turn off or cover up the flash (it will reflect off the screen), draw the curtains and use a fast film - 200 or, better of all, 400 ASA.

Taking Videos

- Take the lead that connects your N64 to your TV and plug it in to the 'Signal In' socket on the back of your video.
- Connect the 'Signal Out' plug on your video to your TV and turn both on.
- Switch your TV to the video channel and switch on your N64 with a game plugged into it.
- Find a spare channel on the video's tuning mechanism and look for the N64 signal. Save the settings.
- Achieve your challenge and get to the appropriate result screen.
- Put in a tape and press 'Record'. Press 'Stop' after five seconds or so.
- Repeat steps 5 and 6 according to the number of challenges you're attempting.
- Rewind the tape to the beginning of your evidence (so we can see your scores quickly and easily). That's it.

Club 64'S DIRECTORY

strike a light! Your most up-to-date N64 games directory just gets better every issue...

How it all works

NEW! Yep, we reviewed some of the games in Directory over TWO years ago so, whilst they might have deserved their mark then, some of them have been superseded by newer games. Our Star Mark shows how we feel the game fares now. Out of five.

It's now super-easy to see whether the game in question got a Star Game Award (85% or over). If it did, we recommend you buy it!

PERSONAL RELATIONS 64

64% Publisher • Price • No. of players • rumble pak • Type of save • expansion pak • Issue reviewed • Reviewer (see opposite)

It's not hard, is it? No. But such exasperating incompetence comes with years of practice, and - hey! - why change now? You might as well make our lives even harder than usual. We're getting used to it, anyway.

Do remember to make sure that every possibility and eventuality is woefully uncatered for. After all, we're only here to help you, and it wouldn't do for you to make things easy for us. Would it?

NEW! Information now includes whether a game uses a Rumble, Controller or Expansion Pak.

Here we tell you whether you should buy the game or not, in a quick and informative fashion. You can rest assured, we know our games and we know how to tell if games are good.

In here will be a tip of the topmost variety, packed like tuna into a nice and concise space. Handy!

UK Game releases

1080° SNOWBOARDING

89% Nintendo • £40 • 1/2 players • rumble pak • On-cart • Issue 21 • MK

Stomach-whirlingly good, but it takes a while to get into. Still, stick with it and that familiar Nintendo magic shines through.

Issue 22's Double Game Guide + features more than enough tips and hints to enable you to access all the secret boarders.

AERO FIGHTERS ASSAULT

58% Konami • £55 • 1/2 players • rumble pak • controller pak • Issue 16 • MK

Good in spells, but flawed and disappointing at length. Feels realistic but is too dull, too often.

AERO GAUGE

10% ASCII • £55 • 1/2 players • rumble pak • controller pak • Issue 17 • MK

A real stinker of a Wipeout clone with pop-up, cheating opponents and terrible controls.

Here's one you won't forget in a hurry: don't ever - EVER, mind - buy this game.

ALL-STAR BASEBALL

84% Acclaim • £40 • 1-4 players • rumble pak • controller pak • Issue 22 • TW

A meticulously put together baseball sim, with hi-res graphics and ultra-detailed gameplay.

Try entering the following cheat codes: ATEMYBUIK • BRKNBATS • GRTBLSFDST • BBNSTRDS • PRPPAPLYR

ALL-STAR BASEBALL 2000

68% Acclaim • £40 • 1-4 players • rumble pak • controller pak • expansion pak • Issue 28 • MG

More of the same for hardcore baseball fans. Not much of an update really, but still quite impressive.

When pitching in arcade mode, press and hold Bottom-C and A to throw a deadly and hittable fastball

ALL STAR TENNIS

68% Ubi Soft • £40 • 1-4 players • on cart • Issue 25 • MK

Schizophrenic tennis game that can't decide whether it wants to be sim or arcade.

When serving, push the stick towards your opponents and aim for the centre line to produce an unreturnable power ace.

AUTOMOBILI LAMBORGHINI

67% Titus • £20 • 1-4 players • rumble pak • controller pak • Issue 10 • TW

Not bad, just competent.

Beat every different game mode to access the four hidden cars. Rock and, moreover, roll.

BANJO-KAZOOIE

92% Nintendo/Rare • £50 • 1 player • rumble pak • on cart • Issue 18 • JA

Rare's mastery of the N64 hardware is once again demonstrated in this vast, stunningly beautiful Mario-alike.

After you've drained the sandcastle in TTC, return to Banjo's house and look up at the picture of Bottles to play a puzzle game.

BATTLETANX

74% 300 • £40 • 1-4 Players • rumble pak • controller pak • Issue 21 • TW

Strangely compulsive multiplayer tank blaster.

Enter WMNRSMRTR as your password to access the excellent Storm Ravens female gang in multiplayer.

BEETLE ADVENTURE RACING

81% EA • £40 • 1-4 players • rumble pak • controller pak • Issue 27 • ME

Enjoyable American-style racer with squillions of shortcuts and stacks of detail.

In championship mode, drive through the barn on Coventry Cove. Hit the box inside the haystack closest to the road and finish the track to enable the cheat mode.

BIO FREAKS

76% GT • £11 • 1/2 players • rumble pak • on cart • Issue 20 • JA

Arm-ripping beat-'em-up with excellent graphics, but a little bit shallow on the gameplay front.

Disable blocking, and do nothing but shoot. Hold Left on the D-pad and press Start to switch to first-person.

BLAST CORPS

88% Nintendo/Rare • £20 • 1 player • on cart • controller pak • Issue 5 • JS

One of the most idiosyncratically original games on the N64, and one you're almost certain to enjoy.

Re-enter a race after 'doing' it to race against your very own ghost.

BODY HARVEST

91% Gremlin • £20 • 1 player • rumble pak • on cart • Issue 22 • TW

Brilliant shoot-'em-up with stacks of bug-pummelling, tonnes of vehicles and the biggest worlds on the N64.

TOP TIP Start a game with your name as ICHEAT. Press Left-C, A, Top-C, Down on the D-pad, Right-C, Right on the D-pad to fly.

BOMBERMAN 64
50% ★ Hudson/Nintendo ● £11 ● 1-4 players ● on cart ● Issue 8 ● ZN

Oh dear. The one-player mode is tedious and the multiplayer game has been completely ruined.

TOP TIP Collect all 100 cards and complete the game to open up a whole new hidden world.

BOMBERMAN HERO
66% ★ Nintendo ● £40 ● 1 player ● rumble pak ● on cart ● Issue 21 ● TW

Uninspiring 3D adventure, but compulsive at times. Up against Banjo, mind, it looks rubbish.

TOP TIP Hold A, B and Z to open the Level Select menu. Complete the hidden planet to enable the Gold Bomber mode.

BUCK BUMBLE
70% ★ Ubi Soft ● £50 ● 1/2 players ● rumble pak ● controller pak ● Issue 20 ● JP

Dodgy graphics, unconvincing controls, but not the worst shoot-'em-up we've ever played.

BUST-A-MOVE 2
80% ★ Acclaim ● £40 ● 1/2 players ● controller pak ● Issue 17 ● JA

One of the best puzzle games in the world, and certainly the finest so far on the N64.

TOP TIP Press L, Up on the D-pad, R and Down on the D-pad on the title screen to open up Another World.

BUST-A-MOVE 3
82% ★ Acclaim ● £40 ● 1-4 players ● rumble pak ● controller pak ● Issue 11 ● MK

Bust-a-Move as it's always been except for a simultaneous four-player mode. Recommended.

TOP TIP If you've got a bubble that won't match up, dangle it amongst a group of others and save it to use as part of a combo later on.

CASTLEVANIA
81% ★ Konami ● £40 ● 1 player ● rumble pak ● controller pak ● Issue 27 ● JB

Learn to live with the ropey camera and the 3D Castlevania delivers shocks aplenty. Spook!

TOP TIP Spend over 30,000 gold pieces on goodies from Renon's shop and you get to fight him to the death.

CENTRE COURT TENNIS
67% ★ Hudson ● £40 ● 1-4 players ● rumble pak ● controller pak ● Issue 25 ● TW

Not the tennis game we were hoping for. We still yearn for a 64-bit version of Super Tennis.

TOP TIP Aim for the down-the-line smash as much as possible. The opponents just can't handle it.

CHAMELEON TWIST
70% ★ Ocean ● £40 ● 1-4 players ● on cart ● Issue 10 ● JD

Thrills and spills but it won't take you long to finish. The multiplayer game is okay, mind.

TOP TIP If your life meter is low when you enter a room, save the game and exit. Reload and you'll be full of Chameleon-esque liveliness.

CHAMELEON TWIST 2
55% ★ Sunsoft ● £40 ● 1 player ● controller pak ● rumble pak ● Issue 26 ● MG

Unimaginative, short-lived platform dross. With no multiplayer it'll last you all of two hours.

TOP TIP Look out for the little parachute that comes out of the chameleon's backpack. It's so cute...

CLAYFIGHTER 63 1/2
24% ★ Interplay ● £20 ● 1/2 players ● on cart ● Issue 11 ● JB

As painful as a game where you have red hot needles shoved into your eyes. Very, very hard.

TOP TIP Breaking the cart open reveals several chips of varying thickness. Stack them together to prop up wobbly chairs, etc.

CHOPPER ATTACK
81% ★ GT ● £50 ● 1 player ● rumble pak ● on cart ● Issue 20 ● JP

A simple yet engrossing helicopter shoot-'em-up, very much in the Desert Strike tradition. Top!

TOP TIP On the 'press start' screen, press Top-C seven times to access the hidden Level Select option.

CRUIS'N USA
24% ★ Nintendo ● £20 ● 1 player ● rumble pak ● on cart ● Issue 13 ● TW

Dump. Less about driving, more a rule book on how to cock-up console games.

TOP TIP After entering your initials, push down and scroll to the conveyor belt. Hold Left on the D-pad and a severed head will roll by.

CRUIS'N WORLD
38% ★ Nintendo/Midway ● £20 ● 1-4 players ● rumble pak ● on cart ● Issue 20 ● TW

Why Nintendo put their name to this appalling sequel is a mystery of Area 51 proportions.

TOP TIP To pass the other cars easily, tap A twice to do a wheelie and they'll all get out of the way. Fun or what?

DARK RIFT
69% ★ Vic Tokai ● £20 ● 1/2 players ● on cart ● Issue 11 ● JD

Uninspiring special moves and similar characters. Nicely animated but, ultimately, really rather dull.

TOP TIP Enter this code at the title screen to play as the game's two secret bosses: A, B, R, L, Bottom-C and Top-C.

DIDDY KONG RACING
90% ★ Nintendo/Rare ● £40 ● 1-4 players ● rumble pak ● on cart ● Issue 10 ● JA

This game is huge, a massive adventure mode and three different vehicles. Not quite as good as MK though.

TOP TIP For a fast start, wait for the 'Get Ready' sign, then press the accelerator after it disappears and just before 'Go!'.

DOOM 64
77% ★ GT ● £25 ● 1 player ● controller pak ● Issue 7 ● JA

Solid and workman-like but, up against Turok and GoldenEye, it looks dreadfully old hat.

TOP TIP At the password screen enter 77JL BDFW BFGV JYVB for a complete cheat menu. • Tips in Issues 3 & 7.

DUAL HEROES
50% ★ Bitwave/Hudson ● £23 ● 1/2 players ● controller pak ● Issue 17 ● MK

Stashed full of innovative features, this is sadly ruined by some terrible AI. Shame, that.

TOP TIP To beat the CPU in an open arena, use Z to run around him at the edge of the platform, confusing him into falling off.

DUKE NUKEM 64
85% ★ GT ● £25 ● 1-4 players ● rumble pak ● controller pak ● Issue 10 ● TW

A commendably violent and vastly enjoyable conversion. Gorgeous new explosions and a brilliant multiplayer.

DUKE NUKEM ZERO HOUR
90% ★ GT ● £40 ● 1-4 players ● rumble pak ● controller pak ● expansion pak ● Issue 28 ● MG

Duke gets a new third-person view, but retains the same old gameplay. Not perfect, but when it's good, it's very, very good.

TOP TIP Decapitate the fire hydrants and partake of the sweet, nutritious water contained therein.

EXTREME G
87% ★ Acclaim ● £30 ● 1-4 players ● rumble pak ● controller pak ● Issue 9 ● TW

Impressive in its day with face-melting speed and beautiful tracks but somewhat displaced by XG2, F-Zero and Wipeout.

TOP TIP Enter your name as RA50 and quit a race - you'll finish in whatever position you were in when you selected quit.

EXTREME G2 (XG2)
85% ★ Acclaim ● £40 ● 1-4 players ● rumble pak ● controller pak ● Issue 23 ● JB

The sequel to Extreme G, XG2 is considerably easier to play, better to look at, and sports a vastly improved multiplayer.

TOP TIP You've only got three nitros per race. Make sure you use them on long straights or you'll career off the track. Ohyesyouwilll.

OFFICE FAVES
 The five carts that keep us busiest at lunchtime. All of them multiplayer classics, of course.

TIM'S CHOICE

Using his new All-Seeing Eye, our esteemed editor gazed into the dark recesses of his mind to come up with a list of his favourite N64 games. Declaring his top five to be the only definitive list ever produced, Tim donned his lucky Kiss-Me-Quick hat and defied anyone to beat his evil 5-3-2 ultra-defensive Italy. We each lost 1-0.

F1 POLE POSITION

71% ★ Ubi Soft ■ £25 ■ 1 player ■ controller pak ■ Issue 7 ■ JD

Good fun in places, but obvious flaws include horrendous pop-up and stop-dead banks.

TOP TIP Set your fuel level to a mere 10% before a Grand Prix and you'll find that you're super fast and you never run out of petrol.

F1 WORLD GP

93% ★ Nintendo/Paradigm ■ £30 ■ 1/2 players ■ rumble pak ■ on cart ■ Issue 20 ■ JA

TOP TIP Astonishingly realistic, visually stunning racing sim that really shows off the N64's power. This is Formula One.

TOP TIP Select exhibition and change D. Williams' last name to Vacation to access the Hawaii circuit.

FIFA 64

39% ★ EA ■ £25 ■ 1-4 players ■ controller pak ■ Issue 2 ■ TW

How in the wide, wide world of sport was this made legal? Like a rash. Only not as enjoyable.

TOP TIP Remember, only tap the shoot button once. The delay is terrible but you will eventually produce something.

FIFA '98

83% ★ EA ■ £30 ■ 1-4 players ■ controller pak ■ Issue 10 ■ TW

Banishing the memory of FIFA 64, there's plenty of promise here. Not perfect, but better.

TOP TIP Try using the lob (Top-C) to seek out players in front of you. It's safer than the ground-level pass.

FIFA '99

83% ★ EA ■ £40 ■ 1-4 players ■ controller pak ■ rumble pak ■ Issue 26 ■ TW

The best FIFA game yet. FIFA 99 actually plays a solid game of footie. It's no ISS '98 though.

TOP TIP As with every FIFA game don't forget that it may take several minutes before your button presses are registered on screen.

FIGHTERS DESTINY

86% ★ Ocean ■ £50 ■ 1/2 players ■ rumble pak ■ controller pak ■ Issue 13 ■ JB

TOP TIP Gorgeous animation, likeable characters and an ingenious Master Challenge. In a very real sense our Tekken. For now.

TOP TIP Enter the Master Challenge with any character, beat everyone, and you'll be able to select the Master as a playable character.

FLYING DRAGON

73% ★ Interplay ■ £30 ■ 1/2 players ■ controller pak ■ rumble pak ■ Issue 27 ■ TW

The game formerly known as Art of Fighting Twin comes to the UK, and proves to be fairly enjoyable but instantly forgettable.

TOP TIP To be able to play as the oddly-named Bokuchin, simply beat him in a normal fight.

FORSAKEN

87% ★ Acclaim ■ £50 ■ 1-4 players ■ rumble pak ■ controller pak ■ Issue 16 ■ MK

TOP TIP A fabulous Descent-style shoot-'em-up with great lighting and visuals. Weak multiplayer but worth investigation.

TOP TIP At the Press Start screen enter A, R, Z, Up on the D-pad, Top-C, Bottom-C, Bottom-C. Guide in issue 17.

F-ZERO X

91% ★ Nintendo ■ £40 ■ 1-4 players ■ rumble pak ■ on cart ■ Issue 22 ■ JP

TOP TIP The fastest racer on earth, and one of the most exhilarating four-player games you can buy. Fast, strong and very long.

TOP TIP Complete all four cups on all four difficulty levels to access the 5th, secret cup: a completely random track generator.

GASP!!

47% ★ Konami ■ £50 ■ 1/2 players ■ rumble pak ■ controller pak ■ Issue 22 ■ TW

A stinky old fighter, sneaked out quietly. We sprang out and punched it in the face.

TOP TIP Beat the game to come face-to-face with the two terrifying boss characters: the Sumo and the Werewolf. Exciting? Yeeeno.

GEX 64: Enter the Gecko

59% ★ GT ■ £50 ■ 1 player ■ rumble pak ■ controller pak ■ Issue 21 ■ JP

This rough-around-the-edges 3D platformer isn't so much dreadful as painfully average.

TOP TIP Think about this: Mario 64. Banjo. Mystical Ninja. Aaaaand goodnight.

GLOVER

83% ★ Hasbro ■ £50 ■ 1 player ■ rumble pak ■ on cart ■ Issue 21 ■ MK

An inspired, superbly odd idea turns out to be a stonking, but hard, 3D adventure.

69% ★ Konami ■ £40 ■ 1/2 player ■ rumble pak ■ on cart ■ Issue 29 ■ JB

After the excellent Mystical Ninja 3D adventure, Goemon steps back to the days of the SNES for this average 2D platform romp. Disappointing.

TOP TIP Keep the analogue stick pressed diagonally up at 45° to get the maximum distance when swinging on the poles.

GOLDENEYE 007

94% ★ Nintendo/Rare ■ £50 ■ 1-4 players ■ rumble pak ■ on cart ■ Issue 9 ■ TW

TOP TIP Brilliant levels, and scenery and a perfectly judged difficulty curve. It doesn't get much better than this.

TOP TIP We've had tips and tricks for this game in just about every issue since it was released. Check out N64/12 and 14 in particular.

GT 64

67% ★ Ocean ■ £30 ■ 1/2 players ■ rumble pak ■ controller pak ■ Issue 17 ■ TW

Handles well, but it's slow, ugly and there's far too much pop-up. Not what we were hoping for.

TOP TIP Win the championship on Easy mode to get the mirror tracks. Win the championship on 24 laps-per-race to get the secret track.

HEXEN

69% ★ Midway ■ £30 ■ 1-4 players ■ controller pak ■ Issue 11 ■ JD

SPECIAL INTERROGATION

LETTER FROM AMERICA

An E3 Special Interrogation

The biggest games show on Earth means some of the biggest names in the business. Handily, we were perfectly placed to get the lowdown on the latest, greatest N64 games...

Tell us about... Turok: Rage Wars

David Dienstbier • Creative Director • Turok: Rage Wars

How did you come up with the idea for Rage Wars? When we were developing the multiplayer mode for Turok 2, we were having so much fun playing monkey tag and things like that, I figured there was no reason why a real dedicated multiplayer game couldn't do well for the N64 and brought up the idea at a meeting. All the people necessary said, "We agree with you, that's a good idea and let's do it". That's when the project was born, towards the end of Turok 2's development.

What was the first step? We asked ourselves what was wrong with Turok 2's multiplayer. We're really very happy with it, but there's always room for improvement. If you don't end a project with a list of things that you need to work on, then you aren't paying enough attention to your work.

So how does it differ from Turok 2? Rage Wars is a stand alone title. We didn't reuse character models, we didn't reuse weapon models, we didn't reuse any of the environments. All the geometry for the worlds is far more detailed: more interesting shapes, angles and things like that. Also, the maps are a lot more interesting than the Turok 2 maps were. We're aiming for between 36 and 40 levels right now; there's going to be loads of maps. Obviously though we can't just release a four-player deathmatch game. You have to have something for someone who's playing by themselves, so we added bot AI, enabling you to play against up to three bots if you're playing by yourself. Additionally, we've created a simple storyline that concentrates on arena-based, deathmatch-style gameplay.

So there's no single player mode at all? Actually, yes. In single-player mode, the story benefits the multiplayer stuff because you unlock new characters that can then be selected as multiplayer characters. If you go through the first pod of the mission tree as Joshua Fireseed, you will unlock Adon as a character and Adon will also open a different branch that you can then take to open the single-player story mode. There are 18 characters in the game to play as. And, like I said, you do have to unlock some of them before they become playable.

Will there be a create-a-player mode? We're still considering that. The fundamentals have to be done before we can get to that, but if it's not realised in this project, other, as-of-yet unannounced projects will take full advantage of it. We also might steal Rare's GB pak idea.

Are there any new weapons? We've got six totally new ones plus, due to popular demand, we've brought back the Mini Gun from the original Turok. I'll give you one new weapon as an example. One of the guys on the team is a big PC deathmatch and he came up with the idea of rocket magnets. You can throw these magnets onto characters or walls and your rocket, when you fire it, will attract to them. Half the fun of getting a guy on the back with the magnets is running around going, "You don't want me to shoot at you". If the guy knows the magnets are on him he's going to be jumping all over the place. We also made repulsers, though, which, if you're lucky, can bounce the rockets away again.

△ Jar Binks. Will he be annoying in the new Star Wars movie?

▽ The Nintendo logo shown on this mass.

GO! GO!

Tell us about..

Hybrid Heaven

Yasuo Daikai • Director • Hybrid Heaven

How important is the storyline? Incredibly important. We were aiming for a storyline and a cinematic feel. We wanted to make this game like a movie, so we started with heavy suspense, right at the very beginning of the game, and then we tried to implement many thrilling aspects to keep the players – or even the viewers – interested in the plot. And, as you go through to the end, there are a lot of surprises, and many mysteries. And, when you solve those mysteries, you'll create many more. It keeps you playing the game. I've considered the storyline many times because, of course, there are many gamers that watch movies and read stories. I was very careful on where the story went. It was difficult to do.

So who's the good guy, then, Diaz or Slader? Well, I can give you a hint by saying that Diaz is a fake and that Slader is real. But this has many meanings to it, and, I'm afraid, you'll have to play the game to find out.

How long has the project taken? From scratch, three years. The 3D engine of the game – and, in particular, the battle system – has taken up the most time. We tried hard to get it as good as we could. We thought of creating an RPG battle system, but since the game is 3D, we needed 3D fighting action elements. And in real fighting, it's not just a case of punching and kicking, it's also a case of thinking at the same time; we wanted that to come across in the fighting system. So, for the action, it's the moving parts, where you face your enemy, and for the thinking part, you have to think of the command to come up with your moves. So yes, I think we've created an intelligent new-style RPG battle system. Multiplayer-wise, when you play through the Story Mode, you can 'grow' your character through the combat system, and it varies for who is playing the game. Then you can save your unique character onto a controller pak and play against a friend.

How long will the game take to finish? If you play for the first time, it will definitely take at least 25 hours, and probably a lot longer. If you know all the plot, and you just zip through the game, you could do it in just, say, five hours, by skipping all the messages and cut-scenes. Not that you'd want to do that, of course.

And how have you used the expansion pak? Basically, it's only enhancing the graphics resolution, allowing you to play in hi-res. But, it looks great.

The Nintendo stand was huuuuuge.

Tell us about..

Rainbow Six

Mike Lomas • Vice President, Red Storm • Rainbow Six

The Rainbow Six team consists of ten people: three programmers, three artists, three 'data wranglers' who program in the level information, and a musician. The biggest feature of the N64 version will be multiplayer cooperative campaigns. In the PC version you can play single cooperative missions but no campaign data is saved to create consequences for player's choices and tactics. Since multiple players are so fundamental to the console-playing experience we felt this was logical. This will support at least two players. We're trying to preserve everything else that already works in the PC version while making the most of the N64.

We are going to add environmental touches to enhance realism, like real-time lighting for characters, effects like rain and variable vertex lighting to create the flickering of fire, faulty light bulbs and that sort of thing.

Planned changes to gameplay include improved team and enemy AI, more intuitive grenade throwing – through shot-out windows, over railings – and possibly new weapons. The N64 game will feel and look like GoldenEye yet will have the great planning and strategy elements of the PC. It is important to take advantage of the capabilities of new platforms, so the N64 version will take full advantage of the console's built-in features.

▷ This is a shot of the PC version of the game.

▷ This Mario fountain charmed onlookers throughout the show.

▷ Pikachu was often seen taking a gentle stroll.

Tell us about.. Perfect Dark

Duncan Botwood • Designer
• Perfect Dark

We always knew that we were going to do a sequel of sorts after GoldenEye. We pretty much finished GoldenEye first and then took a small break before we continued on with Perfect Dark. Actually, it wasn't really a break from work as we were constantly knocking ideas around and thinking about how we'd improve it. I guess we could have exercised our rights to do a sequel (Tomorrow Never Dies, that is - Ed), but we chose not to because licences by nature are very restrictive things. Although it was good fun to do a Bond licence, we thought we could do other things. It was a chance for us to grow. Besides, GoldenEye was the team's first game and we didn't want to do another licence. It's a completely different story with completely different characters. It uses a very highly modified version of the GoldenEye engine and it should be improved at every turn. We hope it will be a lot more flexible in multiplayer mode particularly.

• For the rest of N64's interview with Duncan Botwood, simply turn to page 46.

△ The future is perfect. And, indeed, dark.
△ The best multiplayer game ever? It could well be.

△ The Pokemon Beetle - stuffed full of Pocket Monster toys

E3

Our man Jes reports back from halfway across the world...

Donkey Kong! Donkey Kong! Bloomin' great.

E3, then. It was hot, it was sweaty, it was huge. Perfect Dark was there, as was Jet Force Gemini, Donkey Kong 64, Resident Evil 2, Winback, Shadowman, Hybrid Heaven, Star Wars Episode 1: Racer, Armorines, F1 World Grand Prix II, Command & Conquer, Starcraft, Quake 2 and Mario Golf. Other nifty newbies included the promising Eternal Darkness - a medieval-style Resident Evil with stunning graphics - and Rainbow Six, an excellent conversion of the PC stealth-'em-up.

Nintendo's stand was massive. Bigger than Sega's and Sony's, it featured huge, celebratory banners of Pokémon (which has become incredibly big business in America - just wait 'til it hits the UK), massive models of Donkey Kong, the effortlessly cool Perfect Dark enclosure and loads of Star Wars hype; a life-size Pod Racer overhung a giant 'Nintendo' sign, and towering models of characters from the Phantom Menace (including the terrifying Darth Maul) lined the entrance to the Episode One: Racer room, which itself was showcased by two floor-to-ceiling screens on which you could play the game. About 20 TVs were also available for playing on a smaller scale.

It was a sure sign to all those predicting the death of the N64 that there are years of life left in our little Grey Box - and, in fact, that it's looking stronger than ever. Feel proud in having stuck by your N64; look at the games mentioned in the first paragraph, throw in a multitude of others (including Top Gear Rally 2, the brilliant World Driver Championship and, yes, the upcoming GTA 64) and you'll see that there's stacks to look forward to.

By comparison, Sony had very little to show off. There was the admittedly excellent Gran Turismo 2 and Final Fantasy VIII, but other than that there were legions of ropey-looking platformers, relentlessly cloned beat-'em-ups, indistinguishable driving games and two rank sub-standard Mario Kart clones: Speed Freaks and Crash Team Racing.

Yup, it was Nintendo's show, and no mistake. Howard Lincoln made his announcement about Project Dolphin the day before E3 started, and Sony, shocked by the announcement, hurriedly shoved a playable demo of PlayStation 2 onto their stand to counter such good news. Project Dolphin itself was actually rumoured to be at the show, if behind closed doors, and one of the anonymous industry bods that saw it told N64 "Take everything PlayStation 2 can do, and add a little bit more".

The future's so bright it's blinding, and it's undeniably Nintendo-shaped. But, perhaps more importantly, where we are now is equally as exciting. We played all the games at E3, and the second half of 1999 holds more riches for N64 fans than you would have believed. It's going to be brilliant.

△ Jet Force Gemini. Absolute gaming magic.

We head up Twycross way to gaze longingly at Rare's first game of '99. Whacking great guns, eight-legged beasts and liberal splatterings of goo, it's going to be an absolute cracker.

Beatles Adventure Racing

thicket to ride

The lack of big name licences on the N64 should finally be put right this month with the release of Beatles Adventure Racing, a semi-sequel to Paradigm's fantastic driving game of a few months ago, featuring the Fab Four as you've never seen them before!

As Lead Programmer Gideon Thicket explains, "We wanted to approach this sequel in a different way, and a big name licence was top of our list. Unfortunately, we couldn't get Billie because she was attending a love festival in the New Forest, so The Beatles had to do".

The finished game will feature the same mix of realistic driving physics and cunning shortcuts, but the tracks and general 'feel' of the game have changed quite a bit. "We spent four months going through the entire Beatles back catalogue searching for inspiration," says Thicket.

"Norwegian Wood" is a pretty easy opening track, with every bonus crate containing a 50-point Rubber Soul LP, but things really start to spice up with 'Back in the USSR'. Now that's a course. Basically, you have to chase John and Yoko through the streets of Leningrad, before running them off the road and then somehow 'disposing' of Yoko before she splits up the band. I mean, it's not going to be excessive, but you can tie her to the roof of your car and 'accidentally' not tie the knots properly. All I'd say is just watch where those wheels go!"

More will also be made of the time trial in this version of BAR. "You can time trial on all of the game's courses, but we've created some specific ones too. 'Yellow Submascream' should be good – basically, you have to belt it through the sub and beat the clock or Ringo starts singing – but 'While My Carburettor Gently Weeps' is also pretty nifty, where you have to do four laps of George Harrison's mansion before your carburettor stops working. If you don't do it in time, George goes a bit bonkers and crops up later on in another sub-game called 'Time A Taxman', where him and Guru Ravi Shasi try to hijack your car using razor sharp sitars."

A bit like Rainbow Road, this.

Of course, the cars are as much a part of BAR as they were in the previous game. "John and Paul both have V8, 16-valve, fuel injected Beetles," says Thicket, "while George has a nifty new B4 model with yellow dip lights. Ringo has what we like to call the 'Moustache Mobile'. It's a three-wheeler with no suspension. Unfortunately, we forgot what his name was at a crucial time in development and it never really crossed our minds again until about a day before the game had to be shipped out. The only deal we could sign was with Robin Reliant."

BAR should be assured of success come the end of June.

OUT OF PRINT ARCHIVE.COM

WE ARE A SMALL GROUP OF PEOPLE DEDICATED TO PRESERVING A PART OF CLASSIC GAMING THAT SEEMS TO BE OVERLOOKED MOST OF THE TIME, NAMELY CLASSIC VIDEO GAME MAGAZINES. OUR GOAL IS TO PRESERVE THESE MAGAZINES BY DIGITIZING AND RESTORING THEM BEFORE THEY ARE LOST FOREVER. BESIDES LETTING PEOPLE ENJOY SELECT ARTICLES DIRECTLY ON THE SITE AND ON TWITTER, WE ALSO CREATE CBZ FILES, SUCH AS THE ONE YOU ARE LOOKING AT RIGHT NOW. THESE CBZ FILS FEATURE THE COMPLETE MAGAZINES FROM START TO FINISH. THIS GIVE US THE BENEFIT OF CREATING MUCH HIGHER RESOLUTION VERSIONS THAN WHAT IS FEASIBLE ON A WEBSITE. THIS WAY, ANYONE WHO IS BUT A MOUSE-CLICK AWAY WILL BE ABLE TO ENJOY THESE CLASSIC MAGAZINES ONCE MORE.

WE DO HOWEVER ONLY SEEK OUT MAGAZINES WHICH WERE RELEASED AT LEAST 10 YEARS PRIOR TO THIS WRITING, UNLESS PERMISSION HAS BEEN GRANTED BY THE PUBLISHER IN QUESTION TO DO OTHERWISE. REPRINTS AND RE-ISSUED CLASSIC MAGAZINES IN ANY SHAPE OR FORM (DIGITAL VERSIONS INCLUDED) WILL BE TREATED LIKE NEW MAGAZINES, WHICH MEANS WE WON'T BE SCANNING OR DISTRIBUTING THEM IN ANY SHAPE.

THE REASON FOR RESTRICTING OURSELVES TO MAGAZINES PUBLISHED BEFORE A CERTAIN DATE, IS TO GIVE PUBLISHERS ENOUGH BREATHING ROOM TO SELL REPRINTS OR DIGITAL VERSIONS OF THEIR OLD MAGAZINES IF THEY WISH TO DO SO. THESE ARE HARD ENOUGH TIMES AS IT IS FOR PRINT AND THE LAST THING WE WOULD WANT TO DO IS HAVE ANY KIND OF NEGATIVE EFFECT ON THEM. WE SEEK OUT TO WORK WITH PUBLISHERS AND ARE ALWAYS LOOKING TO SEEK APPROVAL TO DIGITIZE, RESTORE AND RE-DISTRIBUTE THEIR WORKS IN WHATEVER WAY THEY SEE FIT. (PUBLICLY OR WITH SILENT APPROVAL)

WE HAVE NO INTENT NOR DESIRE, TO PROFIT FROM THESE DIGITAL MAGAZINES IN ANY WAY, SHAPE OR FORM. NOR DO WE HAVE ANY DESIRE TO FINANCIALLY HARM ANY PUBLISHER, EDITOR, WRITER OR PERSON INVOLVED IN CREATING THESE, OR ANY OTHER MAGAZINES FOR THAT MATTER. WE ARE NOT HERE TO DO HARM, BUT TO HELP PROTECT THEIR LEGACY. THAT IS WHY THE 10 YEAR TIMELINE IS IN PLACE: TO PROTECT THEIR BUSINESS AND LIVELY-HOOD, AND TO MAKE SURE THAT WE WILL BE ABLE TO KEEP ENJOYING NEW MAGAZINES FOR MANY YEARS TO COME. WHILE AT THE SAME TIME ENJOY THEIR BACK CATALOGUE.

WE WOULD LIKE TO THANK EVERYONE WHO MAKES THIS PROJECT POSSIBLE. FROM THE ORIGINAL WRITERS, EDITORS AND PUBLISHERS, TO THE CURRENT COPYRIGHT OWNERS AND EVERYONE INVOLVED IN ACQUIRING, DIGITIZING, RESTORING, PRESERVING AND DISTRIBUTING OF THESE MAGAZINES.

ONE LAST THING:
IF YOU COME ACROSS ANYONE TRYING TO SELL ANY OF THESE DIGITAL MAGAZINES, OR PROFIT FROM THEM IN ANY WAY, SHAPE OR FORM, PLEASE DO NOT SUPPORT THEM!

THANK YOU!

THIS IS A PRELIMINARY VERSION OF THIS MAGAZINE, WHICH MEANS THIS IS AN ISSUE THAT IS NOT QUITE READY FOR FINAL RELEASE. THE REASONING BEHIND RELEASING THESE LIKE THIS, IS BECAUSE AT THE POINT OF THIS WRITING, I HAVE NEARLY 400 MAGAZINES IN VARIOUS STATES OF BEING SCANNED AND EDITED.

IN A BEST CASE SCENARIO, WHERE I WOULD RELEASE ONE ISSUE A WEEK, IT WOULD TAKE ME OVER 7 YEARS TO COMPLETE JUST THESE MAGAZINES. AND EVEN THAT TIME-TABLE IS JUST NOT FEASIBLE FOR ME WITH THE AMOUNT OF WORK THAT GOES INTO EACH ISSUE, AS WELL AS WORKING A FULL-TIME JOB. COUPLED WITH THE SERIOUS HEALTH ISSUES I HAVE HAD TO DEAL WITH OVER THE PAST COUPLE OF YEARS, I FEEL THAT NOW MORE-SO THAN EVER, TIME IS OF THE ESSENCE WHEN IT COMES TO MAKING SURE PEOPLE CAN ENJOY THEM.

A 100 PAGE MAGAZINE TAKES ON AVERAGE AROUND 40 HOURS TO COMPLETE. THE ISSUES IN THIS SECTION HAVE BEEN SCANNED, STRAIGHTENED, CROPPED, COLOUR CORRECTED AND HAVE RESCANS DONE WHERE NEEDED. SO THESE ALREADY HAVE AROUND 15 HOURS PUT INTO THEM, DEPENDING ON CONDITION AND PAGE COUNT.

THESE ISSUES DO NOT REPRESENT THE QUALITY OF THE ORIGINAL MAGAZINES AT THE TIME OF THEIR RELEASE, NOR DO THEY REPRESENT THE LEVEL OF QUALITY OF THE END PRODUCT, ONCE THEY HAVE GONE THROUGH THE FULL RESTORATION PROCESS. SO PLEASE KEEP THAT IN MIND.

I DECIDED TO RELEASE THEM IN THIS STATE, WHILE I CONTINUE WORKING ON THEM, SO THAT PEOPLE CAN ENJOY THEM AND USE THE INFORMATION STORED INSIDE THEM, AS I KEEP WORKING ON RESTORING THE PAGES TO THEIR FORMER GLORY AND TURN BACK THE HANDS OF TIME TO MAKE THEM LOOK BRAND NEW AGAIN.
